EOC Board Rejects Breakup Of Agency

Aides Vow Fight Despite Fund Woes

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A move to disband the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council was rejected last night by the poverty agency's board which vowed to struggle on despite mounting financial troubles.

The proposal, offered by board member William J. Bielser as a means of starting anew with another poverty agency, was defeated on a 9-5 vote with seven abstentions.

Board members opposing the proposal argued that if the EOC was scrapped it was doubtful that another agency would ever be created in Marin to replace it.

The agency, under fire from the federal government for unauthorized use of funds and a lack of accountability for spending, has until June to clean up or face financial strangulation.

The already black picture was darkened even more last night with disclosure that another poverty agency is poised to file suit against the EOC while a second is demanding return of a $5,700 donation.

According to board member J. Kevin Donovan, the Marin County Legal Aid Society board is expected to authorize suit tonight against the EOC to regain about $5,000.

Donovan, a member of the society board also, said that the board's position appears to be that it was "bamboozled" out of $5,000 by the EOC for administrative supervision which was never done.

Following closely on the heels of that disclosure was an announcement that Freedom From Hunger, a nonprofit group supporting nutrition among the poor, has demanded return of a donation made last year.

The group, which in Marin has sponsored the "walk for survival" campaigns, has charged that its $5,700 donation was "inappropriately used" by the EOC.

Bielser's proposal to junk the agency and start anew gained immediate support from board member Harold Stockstad, long an outspoken supporter of the EOC.

Stockstad, said, however, that he had "reluctantly reached the conclusion that there is no hope of continuing."

He charged the board with having forgotten the poor, which the agency serves, during the last few months of controversy.

"This thing is dead, dead as dead can be," he said. "That's the reality of it."

He said that to continue would be "like pulling the wings off a dead fly."

"Let's end this right now and start planning (for a new agency)," Stockstad said.

The proposal to phase out the agency brought strong reaction from other board members and

U.S. Bombs North; Saigon Threat

SAIGON (UPI)—The United States today carried out heavy retaliatory air and naval bombardments of North Vietnam. In the south, four Communist divisions were reported moving into areas north and northwest of Saigon in the most serious threat to the capital since the 1968 Tet offensive.

Hanoi Radio said 10 American planes were shot down in the first hours of the bomb attack north of the Demilitarized zone (DMZ.)

UPI field reports said three F4 Phantoms, an unidentified jet fighter plane and an HH53 Super Jolly Green Giant rescue helicopter were known to have been shot down on both sides of the DMZ. The U.S. command reserved comment.

The field reports said two F4s were downed north of the DMZ and that the third was shot down just north of Quang Tri City, 18 miles south of the DMZ, by the first missiles known to have been installed in South Vietnam. The HH53 was shot down while trying to rescue the two pilots.

Military sources said four full divisions of 40,000 to 50,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were in Tay Ninh, Binh Long and Binh Duong Provinces just above Saigon and that heavy fighting was under way in regions 60 to 75 miles from Saigon. Some of the Communist troops moved in from Cambodia.

The U.S. command said the bombardment of North Vietnam by fleets of Air Force and U.S. Navy planes—up to 500 in all— and by five U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers equipped with missiles and five-inch rifles was in retaliation for the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam.

The command said the strikes were being carried out because the invasion had endangered the lives of the diminishing American troops in South Vietnam. It was the first time since the 1968 bomb halt ordered by President Lyndon B. Johnson that the bombings were not called "protective reaction" strikes.

Military sources said Communist troops were closing in on three sides on the district town of Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, and that casualties on both sides were "very heavy" as the outumbered South Vietnamese fought back.

Thousands of government troops formerly in the areas guarding Saigon were flown earlier to Quang Tri Province in the northern part of South Vietnam to stem the Communist invasion across the DMZ border, and the military sources said the defenders were outnumbered by a full division.

"The III Corps Region (the 11 provinces surrounding Saigon) has no reserves left," one military sources said. "They are short on tactical air, short on helicopter redeployment and resupply aircraft and are getting no B52 strikes." (The B52s also have been concentrating on Quang Tri Province.).

The sources said government commanders in the II Corps region had appealed to the U.S. command for help. One American general also urged the high command to give more American air and artillery support to the beleaguered government troops.

The four Communist divisions involved in the new offensive were the 4th North Vietnamese Division, the 9th North Vietnamese Division—considered Hanoi's toughest—the newly formed Binh Long Division and the 7th North Vietnamese Division. Saigon has three understrength divisions in the area.

Military sources said the 9th Division had crossed the border from Cambodia and was moving toward Binh Long, 67 miles due north of Saigon. The 5th Division was battling near Loc Ninh and was threatening An Loc, the capital of Binh Long Province 60 miles north of Saigon. The other two divisions were in the same general area.

UPI correspondent Leon Daniel reported that the Communists were attempting to overrun strategic government positions along Highway 13 and that they had become so bold that on Wednesday night they ran a truck convoy with lights on a dirt road leading into Highway 13.

At one point the government was forced to close Highway 13 at Chon Thanh, 40 miles north

CHINA BOUND

Keeper Bids Farewell To Milton And Matilda

By MARC NURRE

Milton and his older sister, Matilda, are President Nixon's gifts to the people of China, but up until now they've just been Maxwell's babies.

A former director of the Louise A. Boyd museum of Natural Science in San Rafael until more than a year ago, Maxwell lives with his wife and two children in Terra Linda. He is now a zoologist at the San Francisco Zoo, where both musk oxen were born.

Milton and Matilda have been Maxwell's charges — especially after the announcement of their destination. He's sorry to see them go, he said, but in return the zoo will get credit from the government toward purchase of a rare Okapi, a foraging animal.

Nixon's gift of the musk oxen was in exchange for two giant pandas from the Chinese people to the United States. The pandas will be kept at the National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C., according to Maxwell.

The two young musk oxen were supposed to be shipped on March 1, but Milton caught a respiratory infection and had to be nursed to health before making the 26-hour jet journey.

"I slept with him several nights when he was sick, we were that worried about him," Maxwell said. Eventually, Milton's health improved, but Maxwell continued the tender loving care. "We've been babysitting him, the veterinarian and I," he said. "We come in every morning and take him for a walk."

Although Milton is not quite a year old and weighs 102 pounds, "I have a hard time keeping up with him when he's on the end of a rope," Maxwell said.

His sister, Matilda, is nearly two, weighs nearly 400 pounds, has developed her horns and is not nearly so friendly as Milton. Consequently, she dosn't get as much attention from the public.

When Milton is out on a run, he roots through the grass in search of his favorite delicacy

Pollution Worse, Engineer Claims

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Air pollution in the Bay Area is far worse than reported by smog officials, a chemical engineer reported yesterday. (Another smog control story, page 5.)

His criticism would mean that air quality in the region does not meet minimum standards set by the state and federal governments, thus opening the way for government intervention to impose tougher regulations on the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

It also would mean more smog alerts.

The analysis by Dr. David T. Mage would explain long-time complaints by citizens and even some district directors that air quality often seems not nearly so good as indicated by district measuring equipment.

Mage, an assistant professor at San Jose State College's school of engineering, disclosed what he termed "serious deficiencies" before district directors at their monthly meeting. The district's air quality monitoring equipment, he said, was too far from many heavily polluted areas, too high above ground, incorrectly calibrated and inaccurate.

His report won immediate praise from several directors, and promises that it will be given to "outside" experts with no vested interest in verifying or refuting its criticism of the district.

Mage's report came immediately after the board adopted a complicated new system for daily reporting of pollution levels. His report thus challenged the reliability of the new system, based on measurements

'U.S. STARTS WAR AGAIN' —PARIS REDS

PARIS (UPI) — Viet Cong Foreign Minister Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh today said President Nixon has started the Vietnam war "all over again" by ordering U.S. land, air and sea support for the South Vietnamese fighting the new Communist offensive.

The North Vietnamese delegation, at the same time, denied its troops had invaded the south although it said all Vietnamese "are entitled to exercise their legitimate right of self-defense to punish the U.S. aggressors."

Both the Viet Cong and Hanoi spokesmen also urged Nixon to end the American boycott of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Catholic School Pledge By Nixon

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — President Nixon said today that collapse of Catholic and other nonpublic schools would be catastrophic to the nation and pledged federal help to keep them operating.

Nixon renewed the pledge he made last summer to Catholic educators that he would work to save the financially beleaguered parochial school system. And for the first time, he said his long promised education finance reform plan would include "specific measures to preserve the nonpublic schools system."

The President made the promise in a speech to some 10,000 nuns, teachers and priests attending the 69th annual convention of the National Catholic Education Conference, which heard more disquieting reports of the woes of Catholic education —with costs soaring and enrollment dropping.

He spoke coincidentally on the same day and in the same city where a three-judge federal panel today declared unconsitutional a Pennsylvania law providing for state reimbursement of parents of children attending nonpublic schools.

Nixon said collapse of nonpublic schools would be catastrophic from several standpoints but particularly to big city public school systems which would have to absorb a new load of students.

He added:

"For many Americans, allegiance to their nonpublic community schools is their strongest single tie to city life,"

Nixon Will Spend Weekend In Florida

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has decided to fly to his bayside villa today at Kay Biscayne, Fla., for the weekend. The White House said he would continue to keep in close touch with the situation in Southeast Asia while in Florida.

It was also announced that the President and Mrs. Nixon have accepted an invitation of the Shah of Iran to visit the Asian nation May 30-31 following Nixon's visit to Moscow.

Marin's Thirsty Reservoirs Not Helped By Late Rains

Marin's thirsty reservoirs benefitted only mildly from the late spring storm that hit the county yesterday and today, and a Marin Municipal Water District official said some form of voluntary summer rationing program still is under consideration.

William R. Seeger, district general manager, said, however, the rationing would be only a "mild" one, if and when it comes. "We'll probably advise people not to waste water, let it run into the street and that kind of thing," he said. In any case, no program would begin until after May 1, he said.

Seeger said the district will have a much better idea of how serious the water shortage will be by the end of the month "because there's not much chance of rain after that time."

District officials, fretting over a reservoir supply far below normal levels, previously have said an enforced rationing program would be considered if a voluntary effort failed.

The recent storm, which left more than an inch of rain in some parts of the county, raised district reservoir levels to a total of about 13 billion gallons, J. Dietrich Stroeh, manager of engineering, said today. Capacity is 17 billion gallons and district officials have pointed out reservoirs normally are filled at this time of year.

"It helps, everything helps," Stroeh said of the storm. "But as far as the total outlook, it's still about the same."

The showers, accompanied by blustery winds that reached 45 miles per hour in Tiburon, caused auto accidents and minor storm damage in the Marin-Southern Sonoma area.

Rainfall figures for a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today were: Woodacre, 1.14; Ross, .93 of an inch; Santa Venetia, .75; Tamalpais Valley, .24; Petaluma, .23; Novato and Mill Valley, .22; Sausalito, .16, and Tiburon, .12. San Rafael recorded .18 for a 24-hour period ending at noon, bringing the seasonal total to 17.09, nearly half the winter average.

U.S. Air Strikes Against North 'Will Be Restricted'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American air strikes against North Vietnam in retaliation for an invasion of South Vietnam are likely to be restricted to the area just north of the Demilitarized Zone, according to military sources.

The sources indicated Wednesday it was unlikely there would be widespread attacks deep into the North such as those ordered by former President Lyndon B. Johnson. Their comments occured before American planes started bombing the north today.

While the sources indicated in advance that a bombing campaign against the North was inevitable, they said it was "unrealistic" to think that American ground troops might become involved in the fight.

The sources also said dispatching U.S. Marines to the war zone would be "absurd" although there are extensive Marine forces based on Okinawa.

Meanwhile, 12 House Democrats have asked President Nixon to avoid any action such as bombing North Vietnam that "widens the war" in Indochina, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has called for an immediate ceasefire and a U.S. return to the Paris peace talks.

The House members, including Ronald V. Dellums of Alameda County and Phillip Burton of San Francisco, made their appeal Wednesday, urging

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Drugs Less Popular

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Cigarettes and alcoholic beverages are more popular with the younger generation than marijuana and illegal drugs, a University of Michigan researcher said today.

Lloyd Johnston, director of a nationwide study by the U-M's Institute for Social Research (ISR) on drug use among young persons, said youth attitudes toward drugs are more conservative than usually is thought.

The ISR researchers asked a representative sample of 1,600 young men a year after they had graduated from high school questions about previous use of drugs.

The survey was conducted in 1970 and less than 25 per cent of those questioned admitted to having experience with drugs while in high school, Johnston said.

Aid Handicapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee voted Wednesday to liberalize the welfare system for the nation's aged, blind and disabled, in a move that would lift 4 million of them above the poverty level.

Adults in those categories now receive an average payment of $76 a month. They would be assured an income of $130 a month for single people and $195 for couples under the committee's unanimous action.

At an increase of $3.5 billion in federal welfare expenditures, this would add 4.3 million persons to the 3.1 million adults who now draw benefits from the states.

Ex-Policeman Awarded Pension

NEW YORK (UPI) — Edward (Popeye) Egan, the narcotics detective turned actor who was dismissed from the New York City police force seven hours before he was to retire, can collect a $6,800 annual pension, a judge ruled yesterday.

Egan

New York State Supreme Court Justice George Stark ruled that the police department — which has been at odds with Egan ever since his exploits were dramatized in the hit movie "The French Connection" — must pay Egan his pension.

Stark said the department's action against Egan was "disproportionate" to his alleged offenses — failing to observe department regulations by not keeping court dates and appointments with prosecutors and not turning over evidence such as narcotics and guns seized in raids.

"It's a big relief," said Egan in his Hollywood office at Paramount Studios, where he is an executive.

C5A Attacked Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force's controversial C5A transport plane was under new attack in Congress today on the basis of a government report which says it is still beset by major deficiencies and is ready to fly only about half the time.

"It is clear from the report that the Air Force has bought a $60 million plane that is coming apart," said Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md. Long released a report on the C5A made by the General Accounting Office, the agency which monitors government spending for Congress.

Lindsay On Ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay's name must remain on the June 6 California primary ballot, even though he has withdrawn from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"The law doesn't provide any way for him to get off the ballot," Deputy Secretary of State Tom Quinn said Wednesday. "Once you're certified for the ballot, that's it."

Irish Peace Sought

Belfast, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Roman Catholic politicians, long overshadowed in Northern Ireland by bombers and gunmen, today launched a peace drive they hoped would break the Irish Republican Army's grip on Roman Catholic ghettos.

"We intend a massive campaign to win support for peace," said Gerry Fitt, leader of the Social, Democratic and Labor party SDLP, the political voice of Northern Ireland's half million-Roman Catholic minority.

Hostage Released

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Warden Hiram Schoonfield walked unarmed into an inmate-held cellblock of the Baltimore City jail and talked about 200 rebellious prisoners into surrendering a hostage guard.

"I just told them how it was and they backed off," Schoonfield said.

About 175 riot-gear equipped policemen, some carrying tear-gas grendades, stood at the entrance of the 75-year-old jail Wednesday night awaiting word from Schoonfield.

"There was no negotiating. They had some demands, but I just told them that we're going to have to straighten things out and to let the guard go," Schoonfield said.

Meeting Accepted

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh said today India has accepted in principle a summit meeting between Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Pakistan President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto to solve the two nations' post-war problems.

Singh, who returned today after three days of talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow, said talks between special emissaries of the two leaders were first necessary to prepare the ground for the summit.

Kosygin Visiting

BEIRUT (UPI) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived in Iraq today for a visit Arab political sources said could lead to a significant extension of Moscow's influence in the Middle East and a treaty between the two nations. Iraq has not been formally aligned with a major power for 14 years.

One Killed As Blast Rips Gas Tank Farm

ATLANTA (UPI)—A thundering explosion ripped through a gas storage tank farm in the Atlanta suburb of Doraville today killing one workman and bathing nearby homes in flames.

At least four other persons, all residents of nearby houses, were injured and three houses were left in charred ruins.

About 300 other homes were evacuated.

Cause of the blast, which triggered a series of lesser explosions, was not immediately determined.

The explosion occurred at the Triangle Refinery, part of a vast complex of storage tanks situated just off Atlanta's busy four-lane perimeter highway, about 15 miles northeast of downtown Atlanta. The tank farm is surrounded by many small houses and is near a large auto assembly plant.

Flames from three of the huge storage tanks shot hundreds of feet in the air and firemen worked frantically hosing down four other tanks to keep them from exploding. Two adjacent tanks — one containing 54,000 barrels of gasoline and the other 35,000 barrels — were in particular danger.

A great pall of black smoke, clearly visible to residents of two counties, rose into the early morning sky and traffic coming into the city from the northeast sector of the metropolitan area was jammed.

The blast occurred shortly before 6 a.m. EST and rattled doors and windows in homes as far as 10 miles away.

Ambulances and fire fighting equipment sped to the scene and scores of law officers from surrounding communities converged on the area and went to work rerouting traffic, helping with evacuation and holding back a mob of sightseers.

Officials closed schools in the area and asked spectators to stay away.

Big Windstorm Gouges Vancouver, Killing Six

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — High winds hopscotched through this southwest Washington city Wednesday, ravaging a shopping center and ripping apart an elementary school minutes before students were to return from lunch. Six persons died and 250 were injured.

Hundreds of children were returning to Peter X. Ogden Elementary School when hail and high winds hit the building. None of the children was killed, although about 100 were injured.

Jason Spicer, 10, a fourth grader, said, "It was raining bricks." The boy had a bandage over a head injury and told of being pinned under the falling bricks. But he was freed by two men and made his way to safety dodging around downed utility lines.

Power and telephone lines in the area were blown down and Clark County Public Utility District officials estimated it would take most of today to restore service. Telephone communications between Vancouver and the outside were on an emergency basis.

The Coast Guard said the wind was a tornado, but the Weather Bureau said it could not confirm that description. Tornados are rare in the Pacific Northwest.

Vancouver's East Side bore the brunt of the storm. The wind smashed buildings and uprooted signs, then lifted up to spare other vulnerable structures, only to land again and ravage stores and homes a few blocks away.

The storm raked a wide area of northwest Oregon, but damage was not as extensive as in Vancouver. The wind was part of a series of storms which have buffeted the Northwest this week.

Mrs. Clifton Clevidence, 25, Vancouver, her daughter Denise, 5, and a one-week-old infant died when the six inch concrete walls of a supermarket collapsed. Mrs. Wilbur LeRoy Adams, Vancouver, and her son Brian Keith Adams, about 3, died in a Ware-Mart store and Sharon Graser, 30, was killed when the roof of a bowling alley collapsed.

Triple Explosion: 8 Die Inside Food Plant

DALLAS (UPI)—Eight persons were killed in a triple explosion and fire at a food processing plant Wednesday. Firemen said an unstable chemical used in preserving bread could have caused it.

Seven persons were injured, including one seriously.

It was the worst explosion or fire in Dallas since 1946 when 10 persons died in a downtown hotel blast.

Fire Department spokesman Gene Myers said the explosion occurred near a storage area in the Pennwalt Corp. plant containing 15-20 tons of potassium bromate.

"That chemical is volatile and must be kept at a certain temperature and humidity," Myers said. He said the chemical was capable of causing such a blast, but the department has not officially determined the cause.

It took firemen eight hours to recover the bodies, which were buried under tons of rubble.

Nineteen persons escaped the building after the first explosion. The eight victims remained inside the building when the second—and most intense— blast rocked the plant, shattering its walls and damaging seven buildings in the neighborhood.

Library Presenting History Slide-Talk

John McLaren Society historian Raymond H. Clary will present a slide-talk on the history of San Francisco's Golden Gate Park at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Corte Madera branch of the Marin County Library.

The program also will be presented at the Novato branch library at 8 p.m. April 18, according to Jacquelyn Mollenkopf, Marin County Free Library reference librarian.

12% Pay Hike Demanded As School Budget Studied

With the Marin County Board of Education amid budget deliberations, its nonteaching employees have demanded a 12.6 per cent pay raise.

According to Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent of county schools, the raise would cost county taxpayers $89,870 a year if grnted to the 127 employees.

In March 1971 the same group requested an 8.3 per cent hike, and after protracted negotiations — interrupted by the wage freeze —received an average 2.8 per cent increase in January. Florence Franklin, a secretary in the board office, is president of the group.

Spain said he met with group representatives yesterday, telling them the county board is now checking with the federal pay board to see if raises that high are permitted.

The group made its request during Monday night's board meeting, and the board turned it over to Spain and Supt. Virgil S. Hollis.

The board tentatively approved about a third of next year's budget Monday night. In the present budget, Spain said, this section required 7.25 cents of the total tax rate of 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. He estimated this section in the new budget would require a tax rate of 6.5 cents per $100, raising $563,643.

This section, Section E, funds seven apparently unrelated accounts, including one for 28 per cent of Hollis's salary ($6,758), one for unemployment insurance ($3,394) and one for reserve funds ($30,000).

Spain said the final hearing on Section E would take place during the first week of August, when the final budget will be up for adoption.

The board also approved the idea of a cost of living increase and a full-paid dental plan for administrative personnel, both tied to consumer price index. Specific details will be presented later, Spain said.

Board members approved an unemployment insurance program for its classified employees, limiting board liability to a maximum of $4,200 per employee per year.

The board set a public budget workshop meeting for 8 p.m. April 18 at the county schools office, 201 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera.

The Marin County Board of Education also:

DEAF — Authorized Hollis to apply for state Department of Education funds for a program to aid hearing-handicapped children aged 18 to 36 months.

FUNDS — Requested $20,000 in federal funds to purchase audio-visual aids.

TRANSFERS — Approved intercounty transfers for John Ellis, from San Francisco Unified School District to Tamalpais Union High School District, and Anthony Lawrence, from Petaluma City Schools to Novato Unified School District.

CONSULTANTS — Hired Eva Washington, at $100, as consultant for an April 20 workshop on evaluation of teachers, and hired Charlene Arbogast, at $50, as consultant for an April 26 program on venereal disease.

Vessels Taken From Church

A collection of valuable altar vessels has been taken by thieves who broke into the Church of the Nativity in Marinwood.

Douglas Abel, church warden, said the missing items included three silver chalices and a silver paten. He pleaded for return of the vessels, "no questions asked."

The burglary occurred late Monday or early Tuesday. Windows were broken to gain entry to the church, located at 333 Ellen Drive.

Innocent Plea To Hit-Run Felony Charge

Robert Brian England of San Anselmo pleaded innocent yesterday to felony charges in connection with the running down and killing of teen age girl in Sleepy Hollow last month.

Trial was set for May 30 in Marin Superior Court.

England, 19, is charged with drunken driving and manslaughter in the death of 13-year-old Alene Toneff, daughter of former San Francisco 49er Robert A. Toneff of Sleepy Hollow.

She was walking home with a friend on the shoulder of Butterfield Road March 11 when the girls were hit. The other girl received minor injuries.

England was arrested in his stalled, damaged car nearby.

He is now serving a six-month jail term for violation of probation which required that he not drive a car.

Dominican College Art Work Shown

A collection of art work from Dominican College in San Rafael will be on display through April at Marin Civic Center.

The work, by students at the college, include weavings, oil paintings and water colors. They are located on the first and third floors of the administration building.

ACTION IN VIETNAM — These two UPI Telephoto maps pinpoint action in South Vietnam today. A new defense line near Don Ha has been set up in an effort to hold back the invading North Vietnamese.

WAR

of Saigon, but it was reopened later. Eight U.S. advisers were flown out by helicopter from a South Vietnamese artillery base at Quan Loi, just to the east of threatened An Loc.

Lt. Col. Pham Quang My, the district chief of Chon Thanh, told Daniel there were only about 800 government troops in his area and that 12,000 Communists were believed involved in the battle near Loc Ninh.

Fighting also was under way at the provincial capital of An Loc a few miles closer to Saigon.

On the northern front, UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported that the government's Bastogne Combat Base outside Hue came under heavy attack during the day and a South Vietnamese armored relief cblumn ambushed two days ago still was stalled more than a mile from the embattled base.

Kellerman reported that government units today abandoned the Veghel combat base, three miles north of Bastogne and 12 miles south of Hue. He said the withdrawal was "voluntary and there was no fighting in the region" but the 370 troops manning the base could not defend it if the Communists launched a major attack.

Bastogne and Fire Base Anne, already abandoned by the South Vietnamese, were instrumental in the defense of Hue, the country's third largest city.

Trident Safecracker Sentenced To Prison

A safecracker found guilty in connection with the October 1971 amphibious robbery of the Trident restaurant today smilingly listened to a judge tell him he was a "career criminal" before sending him to state prison.

Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court was smiling, too, as he told Edward W. Devaney, 32, that "we don't often see fellows like you.

"I have no doubt that when that day comes that you get into that black limousine (upon release from prison), you'll be right back into someone's safe as soon as you can get the materials."

The judge said that most criminals he sentences are either people from poor back grounds or those who get into trouble with the law because of stupidity but that he considered Devaney different. "You go about your chosen business with a great deal of intelligence," he told the safecracker.

Despite his admiration for Devaney's skill in his field, the judge said he had no recourse but to put him out of circulation as long as possible. He gave him concurrent sentences, 10 to 40 years for safecracking and five to life for armed robbery.

About $50,000 was taken in the Oct. 25, 1971, robbery at the Sausalit restaurant, where three men garbed in scuba gear entered in the predawn hours and blew open a safe.

None of the money was recovered and no one other than Devaney has been prosecuted.

Scuba gear and oxygen tanks later were found on the boat and other incriminating articles including guns and a pair of handcuffs which matched those used on two victims were found in Devaney's $50,000 East Bay home.

Chamber In Support Of Square Sale

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce has endorsed sale of the Courthouse Square for $650,000 to a Sacramento developer and was to meet this afternoon to adopt the resolution it ordered to that effect.

The plans of McKeon Construction Co. would offer "highly desirable" economic returns to downtown San Rafael, according to the proposed draft of the chamber resolution. Jack E. Bucknum, chamber president, said the board members would consider the resolution at 3 p.m. today.

Meanwhile, a team of city and county officials has agreed to meet with McKeon spokesmen at 3 p.m. tomorrow in San Rafael City Hall to review the firm's $650,000 offer for the block — $100,000 below the county's asking price.

McKeon had set an April 3 deadline for action on its offer made March 20. The firm now has extended the deadline to April 15, according to Albert Bianchi, attorney for the firm.

— paper. "He loves peper," said Maxwell.

A crowd of photographers which gathered to see Milton off to the airport this morning found it difficult to get pictures when Milton wouldn't stay far enough away. Instead, he made the round, nibbling on overcoats, skirts and trousers.

"He gets three bottles a day," said Maxwell. Accompanying Milton and Matilda will be bales of alfalfa hay, a month's supply of goat's milk, sacks of feed and a detailed list of instructions on the care and feeding of the adolescent musk ox.

"One thing we're very excited about is that we want to establish contact with our colleagues in China," said Maxwell. He said the San Francisco zoo hopes to get information from the Chinese about how the brother and sister are doing.

The two were scheduled to leave today by Air Force jet from Travis Air Force Base. One thing is sure, according to Maxwell. "He won't understand a word they say when he gets to China."

3 Plead Guilty To Possession Of Marijuana

Three San Rafael youths and one from Santa Barbara pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a reduced charge of possessing marijuana.

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony agreed to reduce a felony charge of possessing marijuana in return for the guilty pleas to the misdemeanor charge.

Walter Jerome Haas and Charles Frederick Weck, both 21 and from San Rafael, are to be sentenced May 22, but Judge Samuel W. Gardiner sentenced the other two yesterday.

Rebecca White Burgwin, 21, of San Rafael, and Sereno Samuel Scranton III, 22, of Santa Barbara, each were fined $1,000.

Felony charges of possessing cocaine and opium against Wecks were dismissed.

The four were arrested by drug agents in November after two persons arrested in Oregon with $18,000 told police Haas had sent them to buy a boat.

Agents raided Haas's home and seized 10 pounds of suspected pot, which agents said would have sold for as much as $175 a pound.

POLLUTION

Mage, who has been studying district methods for several years, said his own checks in San Jose had found pollution levels more than triple those detected by the district's single measuring station in that city.

(The professor reported last year finding carbon monoxide levels 10 to 20 times higher than those detected by the district.)

Another key error at the district's eight monitoring stations, Mage noted, was that measurements are taken as high as 100 feet above the ground. This violates the federal requirement that measurements be of "that portion of the atmosphere, external to buildings, available to the general public."

"The air at 100 feet elevation is not available to the general public," Mage observed. (Marin's single station in San Rafael measures air near the roof top of the two and a half-story structure.)

Air samples should not be taken higher than three meters (about nine feet) above ground, Mage recommended.

He also urged two stations in each location, one near highly polluted areas to measure maximum public exposure and one far removed from any single source of pollution to measure the background levels.

Mage also noted that district employees round off pollution readings, "possibly up or down. There may be a possibility of a constant bias in the data if they are rounded off in a nonscientific manner," he suggested.

Also vital to correct readings, he said, would be calibration of measuring equipment to compensate for delays in detecting sharp increases in pollution. Without such calibration, Mage said, instruments used to enforce district regulations "are inadequate."

Another problem is that charts on instruments measuring sulfur dioxide only run at one inch an hour, making it "extremely difficult and quite inaccurate" to determine if maximum allowable levels have exceeded the maximum of three minutes. Charts should run faster so peak pollution can be detected more accurately, he said.

Mage also faulted the averaging system to compute the health effect of carbon monoxide. The system fails to account for levels known to be harmful to human health, he said.

The measurement of nitrogen oxides, Mage added, "is inaccurate and levels are being underreported" because of faulty methods of chemical analysis.

Mage stressed that his recommendations "are not new technological breakthroughs, but represent applications of well-known techniques from the engineering literature." His recommendations, he said, would provide for "more uniform enforcement of all emitters."

Sausalito City Councilman Wyman Hicks was among several directors praising Mage, saying "you make a lot of sense to me." Hicks suggested Mage's report be checked by federal experts after the district staff has a chance to comment on it.

The district's director of technical services, Milton Feldstein, assured directors that "we are fully aware of these problems and have been working on them for a long time."

NIXON

he said. "If the schools should close, many of these families would abandon the city for the suburbs. This in turn would further worsen the racial isolation of our central cities — a development we must not permit."

The nation's private schools now educate 5.2 million children, with 4.1 million of them in Catholic schools. Church-affiliated schools enroll more than nine out of every 10 nonpublic students.

Almost all of them face a financial "crisis of the first magnitude," Nixon said, adding that he was "irrevocably committed" to the proposition that "we must and will find ways" to provide help for them.

The President also touched briefly in his text on school busing, reviewing his recent proposals to Congress to declare a moratorium until the middle of next year on court busing degrees and to approve new legislation to curb excessive busing.

POLICY

that U.S. air strikes in the battle zone be limited to protecting American troops "where there is a clear and present danger".

But at the same time Nixon got vocal support from a number of Republicans in Congress for any actions he takes to check the new Communist offensive in Vietnam.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said there was no reason for "panic" and stated that no disaster was imminent for the South Vietnamese "unless we withdraw our aid and naval fire support."

County Seeking Student Designs

A trophy design competition for Marin high school students is being sponsored by the Marin County Fair, according to fair manager Marcelle McCoy.

The winning design will be used for trophies presented winners in horticulture, floriculture, arts, crafts, photography, films and other fair events.

Entries are due at the fair office at the Civic Center by May 15, Mrs. McCoy said. The fair will be held from Aug. 31 to Sept. 4.

The winning design will be announced on June 1, and the designer will receive a first edition of the plaque inscribed with his name.

Condition Good From Accident

Ruth Isabel Brown, 62, of 1325 Third Street, was struck by an auto backing out of a driveway while walking on Third Street near D Street shortly before noon Tuesday.

The car's driver, Madelyn Carol Kuczora, 33, of 77 Bolinas Avenue, Ross, according to police, said she did not see the pedestrian until she screamed after being hit by the car.

EOC

EOC staff seated in the audience.

"You will be hurting hundreds of people," warned board member Kelly Fister, who said it was apparent that some on the board didn't realize the good the agency provides.

"The board has not taken the time and energy to find out," added Collie Gaines, an employee.

"The board has evidenced all kinds of energy in tearing down this agency," said Robert M. Kent, transportation coordinator, adding it was "too bad" the board hadn't used the same energy to help the agency.

Bielser, meanwhile, continued with unanswered questions of exactly how deep in debt the agency stood, how the agency could survive on limited funding (estimated at about $43,000 for the next six months) and who the agency really was helping.

By junking EOC, he continued, the board would be eligible for a "phase out grant" from the federal government to pay off its bills.

Further, he said, a "planning grant" could be acquired to study the needs and structure of a new agency. His last point was disputed by other board members.

At one point, Bielser was interrupted by Chairman Robert P. Simmons, who said he predicted the financial picture would not be as bleak as painted once a federal audit is completed.

"Your past predictions on the future of this agency have had something to do with the position we're in," Bielser shot back.

After the vote, the board set another meeting for April 18 to continue review o its financial picture.

The board agreed to retain its 25 employees another month whie studying a reduction in force to a size it can afford.

The board also held its annual election of officers, with Barbara Eaton named chairman.

Population Up In Petaluma

Petaluma has gained 2,650 residents in the past 13 months, according to a new census estimate by the state.

The population as of April 1 was set at 29,500 by the state Department of Finance. The last census estimate was set at 26,850 on March 1, 1971.

The estimate is based on new home construction, service connections and vacancy rates.

OBITUARIES

George L. Pavlisin Dies At 48

George L. Pavlisin, an executive for the Michelin Tire Co. in Brisbane, died yesterday at Marin General Hospital after a sudden illness. He was 48.

He had collapsed at his home at 60 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley, and was taken to the hospital, but efforts to revive him failed. The death was apparently of natural causes, according to the Marin County Coroner's office.

A native of Frontier, Wyo., he had lived in Marin County for 12 years and had worked for the tire company for 21 years. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

He is survived by his wife and four daughters, Mary K., Anne, Donna, and Linda Pavlisin, all of Mill Valley, two sisters, Irene Thomas of Sacramento and Mary Peterson of Lake Tahoe, and two brothers, Max and John Pavlisin of Wyoming.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church in Mill Valley and Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tonight at Russell and Gooch Mortuary. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. in San Rafael.

VALENTINE COX

Valentine M. Cox, 63, a resident of San Rafael for many years, died yesterday in a Bakersfield hospital. She had moved to the Kern County seat only a month ago, and died after a brief illness.

Mrs. Cox worked as a clerk for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael for 20 years. Her husband, the late Leonard Cox, died in 1950.

A native of New York, Mrs. Cox had lived in California for 62 years. She is survived by two sons, Lance Cox and John Barton, both of Bakersfield; a sister, M. Suzanne Miotti of Bakersfield, and a brother, Robert Miotti of Sonora.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Hobson Mortuary Chapel, Bakersfield.

MRS. CLEMENTS

Funeral for Esther McKay Clements, long time San Rafael resident, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. She died Tuesday after a long illness. She was 97.

She was born in Wisconsin and lived in Marin County for the past 20 years. Her late husband, Abner B. Clements, a commander in the U.S. Navy, died in 1927.

Surviving are her sisters, Elizabeth M. Hilton of Greenbrae and Nell M. Locke of Medford, Ore.

Following a private inurnment, her ashes will be returned to Arlington National Cemetery.

C. FRANKLIN

Funeral for Charles Franklin of San Rafael was held yesterday in San Rafael. He died Sunday in a local convalescent home after a short illness. He was 72.

Franklin was born in Cambria, Calif., and was a Navy veteran of World War I. He worked for many years as an owner, operator and dispatcher in the trucking industry.

Survivors include a daughter, Gerda Tonnemacher of Kentfield; a son, Earl Franklin of San Rafael; sisters Blanche Mazur of Los Angeles, Pauline Ritter of Honolulu and Mildred Couch; nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Inglewood.

HAROLD H. JONES

Funeral for Harold Hill Jones of Mill Valley will be at 4 pjm. tomorrow in the Russell and Gooch Funeral Home. Jones, 84, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., he had lived in California and Marin County since 1969, residing at 215 Throckmorton Avenue.

Jones was educated in Buffalo schools and received a civil engineering degree from Cornell University in 1910, then worked as a timber cruiser in Canada until World War I. During the war he served with the New York Guard on the Mexican border and then with the 27th New York Division in France, returning as a captain of field artillery.

Jones logged in British Columbia before joining the James D. Lacey company of Seattle as a timber expert in 1924. He served as inspector of Oregon and Washington State CCC camps in 1933 and was subsequently supervisor of Washington State camps and state fire chief.

He joined the Crown Zellerbach Corporation as a timber purchaser in Portland, Ore., and was later an adivsor to the firm, a job he held until moving to California.

Jones is survived by his wife, Marion Burns Jones and three daughters, Mrs. Henry R. Ferriss of El Cajon, San Diego County; Emily Ross of Sausalito and Betsy B. Jones of New York and five grandchildren.

The family prefers contributions to the H. H. Jones Jr. Memorial Fund, C/O San Diego Trust and Savings Bank, San Diego.

CLARKE C. SMYTH

Private service has been held in San Francisco, for Clarke C. Smyth, 63, of 110 Manor Road, Fairfax, who died unexpectedly Tuesday at a local hospital.

Smyth, born and reared in San Francisco, had lived 11 years in Marin. He was employed by Fluor Utah Construction and Engineering Co., San Francisco.

An accomplished pianist and musician, he performed for several years at the Avalan Ballroom in San Francisco and arranged music for the Anson Weeks Band in the 1930s. He was a member of Musicians Union Local 6.

He is survived by his wife, Elinor G. Smyth; two stepsons, John and Michael Thomas; a son, Clarke A. Smyth, and a daughter, Laura Smyth.

Move To Fire Lawyer For Smog District Aborted

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A bitterly contested move by some Bay Area smog officials to fire their legal officer has been aborted, it was learned yesterday. (Another smog control story, page 1.)

Air Pollution Control District directors had voted 9-8 last month to fire Matthew S. Walker, falling one vote short of the 10 required to oust him. The anti-Walker faction then hoped the return of the board's 18th member — Solano County Supervisor Robert Scofield, then out of the country — would provide the 10th vote that would dump Walker.

Scofield, however, told the Independent-Journal yesterday that he would not vote to fire Walker.

Scofield said he had read the complete transcript of the March 15 hearing, and that "not enough information" had been presented against Walker to justify his firing.

The district's top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, had charged Walker had failed to cooperate with him. But Walker, when the move to fire him was launched last October, promptly charged Callaghan with shielding industrial polluters.

Walker's charges against Callaghan have been echoed by citizen groups and by director William R. Jelavich, a Mountain View City councilman. Further action against either Walker or Callaghan, however, has been shelved by the board until summer pending completion of a management survey of the district.

A $45,600 contract for the survey was approved yesterday with Cresap, McCormick and Paget Inc. They are to report their findings at the board's July 12 meeting. The contract specifically calls upon the consultants to look into the dispute over Walker and Callaghan.

The board yesterday rejected a request from Jelavich that Callaghan be given a deadline to reply to Jelavich's own charges that the administrator had been a willing tool of polluters.

Also rejected was a demand by the Citizens Against Air Pollution, a San Jose based group, that a public hearing on the charges against Callaghan be held within 30 days.

The citizns group said that after 30 days it will file a malfeasance lawsuit against Callaghan. Its spokesman, Peter B. Venuto, a business professor at San Jose State College, told the I-J that the suit will be filed by the People's Lobby, backers of the Pollution Initiative on the June ballot.

In a related matter, the board voted 6-5 to permit Western Union to release the identity of the anonymous sender of a telegram accusing Walker of a conflict of interest. The telegram, sent to the board in February, said Walker had used an attorney in his divorce who worked for a law firm that represented industry in district matters.

The board dropped the matter, satisfied that no conflict of interest was involved, but the true identity of the sender, an unlocatable "Barry Hastings" never was determined.

Elizabeth Segal, reporter for the Freedom News of Richmond, requested the board approval so she could determine who was "behind the telegram. I think it would be interesting to find out," she said.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors also:

PERMITS — Heard a protest from the Associated Homebuilders of the Greater Eastbay to the pending requirement that all construction be subject to a district permit. The builders charged that the requirement — ordered by the federal government —was "an exercise for environmentalists" and insisted that "housing is not related to air pollution."

PROPOSITION — Postponed, for the second month in a row, discussion of the controversial Pollution Initiative, Proposition 9 on the June ballot.

VACANCIES — Postponed again appointments to fill vacancies on the advisory council. One of the seats has been vacant since last August.

VIOLATIONS — Reported violation notices were issued during the past month for backyard burning against Paul Lucas and Lavonne Woodman, both of Mill Valley. In Petaluma, violation notices were issued against Atlantic Richfield Co., St. Anthony Farms and Royal Tallow and Soap Co.

PHILLIPS — Received report that Phillips Petroleum Co. had asked the district's hearing board for a rehearing on its denial of a variance for the company's terminal in Petaluma. Its storage tanks are not equipped with required floating roofs.

EQUIPMENT — Bought an integrating nephelometer from Meteorology Research Inc. of Altadena, for $5,778 and a carbon monoxide analyzer from Beckman Instruments of Walnut Creek for $3,201.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

TODAY:

3:59 a.m., Petaluma — Fire did minor damage to car at Payran Street and Petaluma Boulevard North, owned by Rod Arnold, 3503 Petaluma Boulevard North, caused by faulty wiring.

Crackdown Set On Nude Bathers

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) —Santa Barbara County authorities, complaining that naked folk by the hundreds are overrunning a local beach, have launched a crackdown.

So far, the sheriff's patrol has arrested 48 bathers in the buff. The haul last weekend included a nude priest, a naked airline vice president and an unclothed deputy district attorney from Los Angeles, officials said.

"Hundreds of people" from all over the state have been congregating at Summerland Beach, said Dislrict Attorney David Minier Wednesday.

"Santa Barbara has become somewhat the Southern California mecca for nude bathers," Minier said.

Last year "the situation got completely out of hand," and so authorities decided this year to launch the crackdown early in the spring "before we were faced with an almost impossible situation with several hundred or thousands of nude bathers on the beach," the district attorney said.

SEALY MOVES FACTORY

AND WESTERN BRINGS THE SAVINGS TO YOU

Once in a great while an unusual opportunity presents itself and we've made a great buy! Such as, Sealy Mattress Co. has moved their factory from Berkeley to Richmond. Sealy decided they might as well start out with some new models and new covers. This has given us the opportunity to bring to our customers the best quality for their dollars in mattresses and box springs. Just because the cover and the name have changed on the outside of their mattress doesn't mean the quality has changed on the inside. The fine Sealy construction is still there! The only thing that has changed is the price. You won't mind paying for any of the 4 best values you will ever get in mattress and box spring sets. Save now on all sizes - twins, doubles; save even more on modern queen and king sizes at Western Furniture. Come in and see our firmly buttoned-down sets with firm support at these exceptional savings. Or our extra-firm quilt mattress sets — that are firmer than the Sealy Posturepedic and yet priced to spare your budget. Choose from 4 groups of mattress sets. High Speed Sun Waves Discovered

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) —A California Institute of Technology graduate student has discovered giant high speed waves, thought to be vast outbursts of sound, in expanding rings from sun spots, a Caltech scientist reported Wednesday.

Dr. Harold Zirin, director of the Big Bear, Calif., solar observatory, in a report to the Solar Division of the American Astronomical Society, said:

Caltech scientists reporting the waves said they are informally called Stein waves after graduate student Alan Stein, who first observed them in movies taken of the sun from Big Bear.

SECONDS APART

"The undulations," Zirin said, "are some 1,600 miles from crest to crest, travel at 18,000 to 25,000 miles an hour and follow each other about 270 seconds apart."

(The speed of sound at sea level on earth is about 685 miles an hour. A Caltech spokesman said on the sun this would be greatly increased by pressure from heat).

The Caltech astrophysicist said, "These are the first running waves observed on the sun."

He said the possibility of magnetic waves was considered, but if Stein's waves had been of magnetic origin they could be expected to slow as they radiated outward through the sun's decreasing magnetic field. But the velocity is constant, as would be expected of sound waves, he said.

Wave fronts, which appear as expanding dark rings, originate in the umbra (dark central region) of sun spots and become visible as they expand outward through the penumbra, a partly dark region of horizontal magnetic field filaments that radiates spokelike from sun spots.

The waves are thought to be related to the flashes of light in the dark umbra discovered in 1968 by New Mexico's Sacramento Peak Observatory. The umbra flashes usually last a minute and are repeated every two minutes.

NEW PICTURE

"It is interesting that the Stein waves occur just about once every two umbral flashes. We believe the waves are sound waves carrying outward the energy generated by the umbral flashes. These waves should give us a whole new picture of the energy production in sun spots. There's a great deal of energy going into them."

Discovery of the waves also may result in alteration of current theory that activity in sunspots is "frozen" because of the magnetic field in them.

"Now we are beginning to get a whole new picture of the inside of sunspots. There appears to be a great deal of dynamic activity going on in them," Zirin said.

Zirin said the waves could not be heard by the human ear—even if it could get close enough to the sun—because they are 10,000 times lower in pitch than the ear can hear. However, if they could be recorded they could be heard by speeding up the recording.

Zirin said they probably were not discovered previously because they can only be seen under exceptionally good observing conditions.

New Teeth Restore Dog's Grin

McCRORY, Ark. — After a laboratory got the plaster cast of a jaw, a technician called the dentist who made it to ask what kind of a human was to have this particular partial denture.

"Not a human," said Dr. David Startup. "It's for a dog."

And it was. A physician, Dr. James Rowe, owns a 10-year-old boxer. Taffie, whose lower front teeth were worn down to the gumline. Let Dr. Rowe finish the story:

"I called Dr. Startup and made a deal. His dog was due for puppies any time and it appeared that a Caesarean section would be necessary. I told him I would perform the operation if he would make my dog new teeth.

"His dog had a normal delivery, but he agreed to carry through with the original agreement. We put my dog in his chair and he set to work as he would with any patient. He made a plaster cast and you can't blame the lab for its utter disbelief. Now Taffie has a bridge with two 14-karat gold caps and four shiny white front teeth. She wears this partial like she'd been born with it. No trouble at all." (Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Preliminary Hearing Set

A Santa Venetia resident, arrested last week on suspicion of attempting to kidnap a 19-year-old Corte Madera girl, has been charged in Marin Municipal Court with illegal possession of a billy club and disturbing the peace.

A preliminary hearing for Richard Charles Joseph, 31, has been set for Monday.

The young woman told police that Joseph had driven up to her as she stood on a corner waiting for a bus and told her to get into his car or he would shoot her.

The young woman told police she distracted the motorist by saying friends were coming and then ran for help. Joseph was arrested nearby.

WHERE TO BUY YOUR CAMERA

When it comes to advice on "where to buy" photographic equipment, we have to be a bit prejudiced. But there are also some very good reasons behind our convictions.

The usual choice is between a large volume or "discount" department store, and a local camera dealer. And sometimes the volume dealer will win out on the basis of price alone.

But there's a lot more to photography than simply buying a camera bearing a familiar and trustworthy name. And we happen to believe that your local dealer is the man to see for after-sale service, helpful advice on equipment (from an expert in the field), and all the related services of developing, printing, film, and the like.

Photography is our business, and we make it our business to do a little more for you. You can feel a little more confident when you buy your golf clubs from a pro ... and your photographic equipment from us!

LEGISLATION UNLIKELY

The Nudge That Keeps Auto Repair Costs Up

By ROBERT P. HEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Tired of driving cars so dainty they turn rush hour nudges into $300 repair bills? And were you hopeful that this was the year Congress would force automakers to build sturdy cars?

Forget it. The House of Representatives has towed that proposal to the legislative junkyard. Twice in the past month lobbying pressure from the multi-billion-dollar auto industry has triumphed over the wishes of the consumer, as expressed in hundreds of letters to members of Congress. Now the House has killed the bill.

Consumer advocates are making a last-ditch attempt to resuscitate it, but their chances of success are exceedingly slim.

Barring such a legislative miracle, the bill that could have saved American auto owners more than $1 billion a year in needless crash repairs is as extinct as the Stanley Steamer, at least for this year.

Rep. John Moss, a leading House consumer advocate, estimates that American auto owners spend $6 billion a year to repair crash damaged cars. The House subcommittee on commerce and finance, which he chairs, held hearings on the issue last year.

It and a corresponding Senate subcommittee heard charges that auto manufacturers purposely make cars that are easy to damage and expensive to fix. Since the companies also make the replacement parts, the charges went, they have a lucrative "captive market" that is highly profitable.

Last year Rep. Bob Eckhardt, another of the House's leading consumer advocates, called the auto repair bill that emerged from the Senate hearings one of the two "important, substantive" consumer bills with "the best prospects of passage" in 1972.

It cruised through the Senate 89-4 last November. Its principal provision would have given the federal government authority to set damage standards that would make cars sturdier — hence harder to damage — or easier and cheaper to repair. Or both.

But it was not to be. The auto industry threw up two roadblocks in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, which consumer groups charge is both uninterested in consumer issues and vulnerable to lobbying pressures.

The first roadblock surfaced not unexpectedly in Mr. Moss's commerce subcommittee, which was considering thebill. Although Mr. Eckhardt also is on the subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over many consumer bills, most of the subcommittee's members are considered by consumer groups to be openly hostile to consumer issues. Many pro-consumer bills die in this subcommittee — Mr. Moss cannot muster a majority of votes to get them out of committee.

In the case of auto repair, the subcommittee voted to throw away the standard-setting bill. In it's place it substituted one backed by Republicans, and by auto manufacturing interests. The substitute would merely have the federal government provide information to consumers on the relative damage suceptibility and repair costs of different auto makes.

Consumer interests thought this next to useless. They pointed out, among other things, that much publicity is given similar information now published annually by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety — without the auto industry being noticeably spurred by the spotlight to produce stronger cars.

For instance, last fall the institute reported that 1972 model cars it had tested averaged $263 in estimated repair costs when crashed at five miles per hour — the speed of a brisk walk — front end into barrier.

The full House Commerce Committee voted to go its subcommittee one better. It decided in effect to kill the whole bill altogether; the method it chose was to send the bill back to subcommittee, a procedure frequently used to prevent a bill from getting to the floor of the House or Senate.

This vote was very close — 20 to 18; reportedly it stemmed from auto industry pressure to defeat the very bill the industry earlier had been supporting.

So now there is no bill. Despite his best efforts it is unlikely that Mr. Moss will be able to get an auto repair measure out of his subcommittee this year.

And for the auto driver facing those annoying "fender bender" low speed accidents, it's time for the perennial rallying cry of baseball's lamented Brooklyn Dodgers: "wait until next year."

Aviation Commission Chairman Steps Down

Herbert M. Hanson Jr. of Kentfield, chairman of the Marin County Aviation Commission, has resigned, giving pressure of business matters as his reason.

Hanson, appointed in 1969, announced his resignation at Tuesday's commission meeting but said he will continue as a commissioner until a replacement is named.

Vice Chairman William W. Schwarzer was named to succeed him.

A vice president with Stone and Webster Securities Corp. in San Francisco, Hanson said his duties recently were expanded making it impossible to devote much time to the commission.

"Not much has happened in the last month on joint use of Hamilton (Air Force Base),-- he said. "Progress has to be made and I haven't had time to do it."

Hanson, who lives at 6 Coronet Way, has been associated with Marin County aviation for more than 15 years.

In 1958, he was named to an airport committee which backed an unsuccessful bond measure for construction of an airport on the San Quentin Peninsula.

Brian Donlevy, An Actor Of Three Decades, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Brian Donlevy, the jaunty, he-man movie actor of three decades, died Wednesday. He was 69.

The cause of his death was not immediately announced.

A native of Ireland, Donlevy played rough-and-tumble roles on both sides of the law in most of his scores of pictures. His voice was coarse, his manner brusque but there was always a twinkle in his eye.

His two best-known films were "Beau Geste" (for which he was nominated for an Academy Award) and "What Price Glory."

Donlevy's forte was military pictures in which he generally portrayed a brass-bound officer or a blood-and-guts sergeant.

Before and during World War II, Donlevy became a fixture in war movies. They came naturally to the actor who was a bugler in World War I for General John J. Pershing in France.

Donlevy was brought to the United States as an infant and raised in Sheyboygan Falls, Wis: He spent two years at the

BRIAN DONLEVY
A he-man actor

He quit the Academy to become an actor in New York.

In his early years his only work was as a model for magazines, posing mostly for collar and cigarette advertising.

Suitably, his first acting role was the Broadway version of "What Price Glory," playing a corporal. He spent a dozen years on Broadway playing comedy, drama, farce and musicals.

His first Hollywood movie was "The Milky Way" with Harold Lloyd in 1934. His second film, "Barbary Coast," established Donlevy as a star and set the pattern for his tough guy roles.

Donlevy was married to singer Marjorie Lane in 1936 and divorced in 1947. They were the parents of a daughter, Judy. He married for a second time in 1966 to Lillian Lugosi, ex-wife of the late Bela Lugosi.

The actor starred in one of television's first filmed series, "Dangerous Assignment," later retiring to Palm Springs to write short stories.

Bill Gives Break To Some Taxpayers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Unmarried heads of households would receive the same tax benefits as married couples under a bill approved Wednesday by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and sent to the floor.

The Franchise Tax Board estimates the measure by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Canoga Park, would cost the state $22.5 million during 1972-73.

Plumbers Accept New Pay Contract

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Plumbers in Marin and three other counties have accepted a new pay and fringe benefit contract hiking wages to $12.91 per hour.

An industry spokesman said the new rate was among the highest in the nation for plumbers and it will undoubtedly prompt some contractors to raise prices.

The 9.6 per cent increase must be approved by the national construction industry wage stabilization board.

The contract covers some 1,600 construction and plumbers in San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma and Mendocino counties. It includes an increase to $10.16 an hour in wages—which in turn includes $8.53 in direct pay, 85 cents paid into a savings account, 40 cents into a holiday fund, and 38 cents into a vacation fund.

Ex-President Luebke Dies At 77 In Bonn

BONN (UPI)—Former West German President Heinrich Luebke died today after a short illness, a government spokesman said. He was 77.

The white-haired Luebke, who served as president from 1959 to 1969, entered Bonn University Clinic last Thursday for emergency surgery to stop massive internal bleeding.

Doctors said at first he was making a successful recovery from the operation. However, he took a turn for the worse and on Sunday a medical bulletin described his condition as serious.

A Westphalian farmer who spent nearly two years in prison under the Nazis in 1933, Luebke served as Federal Minister of Food and Agriculture after World War II.

In 1959 Chancellor Konrad Adenauer selected him as the Christian Democrat nominee for president, which in West Germany is largely a ceremonial office.

He won a second term in 1964, but resigned three months short of the end of that term so the new presidential elections would not have to be held at the same time as parliamentary elections.

New Student Leader Elected

Bryan Hodes has been elected president of the Associated Student body in a recent election at San Rafael High School.

Other winners are Craig Bachrach vice president; Marilyn Nederman, secretary, and Frank Bosl, Treasurer.

Selected to head the school's committees are Krissy Adamson, elections an special activities; Diane Bessee, spirit, and Bess Christie, publicity.

Mark Showers was elected Student Action board chairman while Don Falk, Bobbi Lee Kirk, Stacy Scott and Lisa Sockolov were chosen as board representatives.

John Lechner, Melinda Leoncini and Suzie Mettner were appointed to the finance committee. Robin Bacci, Terry Coleman and Dave Kavrell were appointed to the inter-club committee.

WINE NOTES #5

Mr. Earl Thollander has painted an exceptional poster of the Napa Valley which is done in beautiful color on one side, and has a map of the Valley on the other. The Nut Tree apparently commissioned the work and they have asked us to feature the poster in our stores. The poster makes a great gift and is reasonably priced at $1.50.

Setrakian Brandy is a new wine product in our stores and we think it is about the nicest brandy we have tasted. Its evolution is a long and interesting story we hope to pass along to you someday. Meanwhile, at $4.99 the fifth, it is a special treat. Brandy, by the way, is the perfect all-around drink. We don't recommend it in martini's, but try it any other mixed drink in place of your usual potion, and expect a pleasant surprise!

Bourbon Shop managers had a noteworthy experience at their be-weekly wine tasting. After a tasting of some excellent Nepenthe Cellars and Ridge Vineyards wines, a surprise bottle was presented — a 1943 Zinfandel produced and bottled by F. Salmina and Company which bottled its wines under the Larkmead label. It was a wonderful wine and a tribute to the standards of many of the winemakers of the 1930's and 40's. Speaking of Zinfandels, please don't forget to try our Wine of the Month selection, Ridge Zinfandel.

'Lost Horizon' Actress Isabel Jewell, 62, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Isabel Jewell, who went from movie star of the 1930s—appearing in classics such as "Gone with the Wind" and "Lost Horizon"—to court dockets in her later years for drunkenness and bad checks, was found dead in her home Wednesday. She was 62.

The coroner's office gave no cause of death.

The daughter of a prominent Shoshoni, Wyo., doctor and medical researcher, Miss Jewell, her real name, was a hit in her first appearance on a Broadway stage, stepping into a role in "Up Pops the Devil" in 1930 with only three hours rehearsal.

The petite blonde's movies included "Manhattan Melodrama" with William Powell and Clark Gable, the role of the seamstress in "A Tale of Two Cities" with Ronald Colman, and with Colman as the tubercular waif in "Lost Horizon."

Her best known stage appearances were in "Of Mice and Men" and "Counsellor at Law."

At one time, when she was under contract to M-G-M, she was loaned out to other studios for nine months in a three year period, making her the most in-demand contract player for borrowing of her time. She was making $3,000 a week.

In 1959 she was arrested in Las Vegas on charges of passing a bad check for $37 to pay a cab driver, and of leaving another bad check in Wyoming.

In 1961, she was sentenced to five days in jail and placed on a year's probation for drunken driving.

Labor Woes Still Loom For GM

By ED TOWNSEND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — The United Automobile Workers (UAW) strike against the highly automated General Motors Vega assembly plant in Lordstown, Ohio, is over, but stubborn problems may linger there for a long time.

The settlement that ended a 22-day stoppage hardly cleared away the workers' strong dissatisfaction over jobs on the fastest automobile assembly line in the world. New grievances could erupt into new discord in the future.

The problem is not just a General Motors or Lordstown problem, and it is not one in the United States alone. Assembly line operations are again a hotly controversial, highly emotional issue in industrialized nations. Young and militant workers are rebelling against the monotory and drudgery; "dehumanization of work" is a growing complaint.

GM's assembly plant at Lordstown was shut down on March 4 by a strike of 7,800 UAW unionists after months of tension. The plant is a shiny new one, opened two years ago, and considered in the industry to be the most modern auto plant anywhere, geared to produce 100 cars an hour. GM built it to automate production work and reduce labor costs, to make its U.S.-built subcompact Vega competitive with the Volkswagen and other foreign cars.

There is no question of the plant's efficiency — when it is operating. But, despite GM's thought about it, there are serious questions about the nature of the highly automated work.

The Lordstown plant originally was under GM's Fisher Body and Chevrolet divisions, and there were fewer problems; both divisions are more relaxed in their employment policies. Then, last October, the General Motors Assembly Division took over, intent on production efficiency gains and lowered labor costs. And troubles began.

GM had overmanned its new plant to get the Vega into full production in a hurry. It had employed hundreds of workers more than it would need later for the smooth operation of the plant. This ignored an industrial relations fact of life: It is hard to take away from workers anything that becomes an established part of an industrial relationship; organized labor fights whatever it considers to be a regressive move by an employer.

When GM started cutting back on the Lordstown work force to levels set for normal operations, labor rebelled.

UAW's Local 1112 in Lordstown said that nearly 800 workers had been laid off since October of last year when the assembly division took over, while production rates remained unchanged. It charged a "speedup" of work. GM conceded that about 350 had been laid off but denied the speedup charge.

The local union demanded restoration of most jobs, and, during months of negotiations without appreciable progress, the dispute widened to other issues, generally with an emphasis on allegations of the speed and monotony of the Lordstown assembly line.

The average age of workers at the plant is under 25. Many wear their hair long and are in their first real job. They are as militantly anti-establishment as other young people — whatever that establishment might be. They are frustrated, impatient, and very little tolerant of the tedium and discipline of assembly line and plant work.

The settlement negotiated between GM and the local and ratified by a 70 per cent affirmative vote of a small turnout of local unionists, included an agreement by the company to reemploy about 150 workers and resolved most of some 5,000 grievances that had piled up — many involving complaints of excessive workloads.

One local union spokesman said the settlement "clears away most immediate problems," but he conceded that since only about 2,500 of the Lordstown unionists actually voted to approve the new agreement, this could mean continuing troubles — particularly if GM takes further steps to reduce the work force or to step up productivity.

For its part, GM is "hopeful" that things will settle down now. The company charged earlier that there had been sabotage in the plant in connection with the labor dispute — generally, work left undone or done improperly or damage to Vega finishes or interior fittings. After one charge of bolts left untightened, one unionist admitted that "some cars" got by workers without bolt-tightening because, he said, "nobody can keep up all the time."

The faster auto assembly lines are likely to be a bargaining issue in the industry in the next big negotiations in 1973. Ken Bannon, a UAW vice-president, recently warned the Ford Motor Company to expect that.

"The pace at which people are compelled to work (on the highly automated, fast assembly lines of the 1970's) and the monotony of many jobs have their effect both on the worker and the product," Bannon said.

Meanwhile, a Big Three auto executive has warned his company that in the 1970s "the young will be less concerned about losing a job, less willing to put up with dirty, uncomfortable working conditions, and less willing to conform to rules." He urged giving serious thought to the problem of today's changing and very different work force of younger, better educated, more militant, and less disciplined workers.

Other business advisers are saying much the same thing and are warning that millions being spent for advanced production technology could be wasted unless workers are properly motivated (absenteeism and quitting are costly, and the rate is excessively high) and are made masters of the machine — not human labor connected with the machine process.

More thought is needed on the critical element of interaction of men and machines at Lordstown and elsewhere — the human role in assembly line production. The long-haired auto unionist at Lordstown said workers want to be important beyond "the kind of importance we've had, to do what a machine can't do as cheaply as a man with a twist of his wrist."

With unions, the Lordstown strike is considered the first of many likely on similar issues. This would not be a result of organized efforts nationally, but, labor observers say, "a natural outcome: of assembly line dissatisfactions.

In the 1930s unhappiness over plant conditions spurred the unionization of auto and other workers; unrest would take different forms now. And, say some UAW officials, if the economy were in better shape, "the speeds for revolt in the plants" would be sprouting faster; they are "pretty dormant now, because of the recession," they say.

Larkspur Consultants Ripped On Priority Positi n Policy

The development policy conference constructed by planning consultants Mocine and Williams was knocked down by the Larkspur City Council last night.

Councilman William G. Fleckles launched the attack on the results of the three meetings designed to find the priorities of the town by declaring the consultants had not done their job.

He said the findings now in public hearings before the planning commission are no more than the feelings of subcommittees. Fleckles insisted the group of about 100 persons should be recalled to judge the conclusions.

He call the sessions "the poorestly structured conference I have ever had the misfortune to attend."

Planning Commissioner Robert H. Lee, a council candidate, disagreed, claiming an overall consensus had been reached, but councilmen Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Neil R. Brixon joined Fleckle's attack.

Brixon said the consultants hadn't added "one damn thing" to the conference. "As it stands right now I think we have wasted a lot of money. I'm not impressed and I'll be blunt about it because I'm not up for reelection," he said.

Fleckles, who is up for reelection, said, "I think we are going to end up with a mistake."

The San Francisco planning firm was hired for $12,000 to upgrade the city's master plan and zoning regulations over a nine-month period ending in July.

Its summation of the conference sessions will have its second public airing before the planning commission Wednesday.

Kennedy Sees McGovern As A Top Contender Now

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, repeating his intention not to run for president, says Sen. George S. McGovern became a leading candidate for the Democratic nomination with his win in Wisconsin.

"He established himself as a major contender for the Democratic nomination and proved he had a broad base of support," Kennedy said in an interview.

Public opinion polls before the current round of primaries began last month listed McGovern as a longshot to the front-running Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and the 1968 Democratic nominee, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Because of tte wide-open character of the Democratic race, some party leaders have stated that Kennedy may be the only hope for the unity the party needs to successfully challenge President Nixon in November.

And Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole said Kennedy was the "real winner" in Wisconsin.

"Senator Kennedy is enjoying all the benefits of running for office, with none of the responsibilities," Dole said.

But Kennedy restated Wednesday his intention to stay out of the presidential sweepstakes. Asked if he was under pressure from his supporters to reconsider, the Massachusetts senator said, "I think people understand my position."

Kennedy also said the second place finish of Alabama Gov. George R. Wallace in the Wisconsin primary reflected "the frustrations of many Americans with an inequitable tax structure, a lack of responsiveness in government. That frustration is shared by many others, including myself."

A Far-Ranging Session Without Any Conclusions

The Larkspur City Council roved through discussions of a redevelopment agency, public safety building and referrals to the planning commission without burning any bridges last night.

The council named itself a redevelopment agency, as a relatively painless way to finance improvements, and appointed Councilmen Neil R. Brixon and Alfred J. Malvino to study the possibility of a public safety building constructed by the redevelopment agency.

It also smoothed the ruffled feathers of the planning commission, which was unhappy that prezoning of San Quentin and a proposal for a fashionable shopping center were not referred to it.

"Are you creating the redevelopment agency concept to develop, in effect, the shopping center that has been proposed?" commissioner Robert H. Lee, a council candidate, asked.

The council and City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst assured Lee and his colleague, Leonard S. Rubin, that all the options are still open, but the agency has to be created before anything could go to the commission.

Included could be improvements for a 56-acre expansion of Bon Air shopping center proposed by Oakland developer Ted Connolly or another center in what is now the Hutchinson quarry.

It could also include a joint police and fire station, but the council decided not to drop condemnation proceedings on a building next to the present fire station until Malvino and Brixon report in May.

The council in January voted to condemn the property owned by Lena Fendler of Sutter Creek for a police station, but city staff has had second thoughts.

If the redevelopment agency is used, the assessor will freeze the assessed valuation of affected land with taxes on the increased value from development going to pay off redevelopment bonds. Bathurst said it is a more economical method than condemning the Fendler property.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

POLICE ASSOCIATION — Recognized the Larkspur Police Officers Association, a self-improvement group that will have no collective bargaining power.

FLOOD PROJECT — Instructed its two members on the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone advisory board to vote for the zone to appeal with the Town of Ross a court decision allowing Ross residents to block completion of the crucial stage of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project.

PLANNING AGENCY — Introduced an ordinance spelling out the powers of the planning commission, thus correcting an oversight in the city code, and directed staff to look into creating a board of zoning adjustments.

PARKING — Adopted an ordinance governing offstreet parking requirements for commercial and apartment developments that has been in the works more than a year, then ordered amendments to permit credit for curbside parking spaces where applicable.

PRIVATE FIRE EYE — Introduced an ordinance that would require all new residences to be equipped with sensitive combustion detectors that cost $100 per outlet, but can prevent asphyxiation by warning of smoke before it becomes choking.

SURVEY — Tabled until May 3 action on a recommendation by Bathurst to do a $3,500 study of employee job descriptions, salaries and management practices, directing him to get other estimates and check the cost of a less extensive study.

NOTICE — Adopted an ordinance which provides that mailing of hearing notices to all affected may be stopped on citywide issues.

SUMMER RECREATION — Supported the concept of a four-week summer recreation program with Corte Madera beginning June 21 instead of the eight-tweek program of past years. Recreation director Harlan Barry said the cost will be the same, $7,000, because the new program is more planned and supervised.

BICYCLES — Endorsed state legislation calling for licensing of bicycles and asked the estate of Adolph A. Tiscornia if it will withdraw right-of-way for a bicycle path between Doherty Drive and Bon Air Road if the city council should turn down a grading permit for Little King Mountain. Construction can start on the path, but the estate could revoke right-of-way on 30 days notice.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. April 18 when the council will convene in city hall, then move across the street to St. Patrick's Church meeting hall to hear the grading permit appeal.

Action Planned To Keep Hospital Open

UKIAH (UPI) —The Board of Supervisors authorized the district attorney to file a suit aimed at preventing the closing of Mendocino State Hospital.

The hospital on Sept. 1 is scheduled to be the third state mental hospital closed this year.

Ross Candidates' Theme — Flood Control

By DAVID DIETZ

As it has from the start of the campaign, flood control dominated the discussion last night as four of the five Ross Town Council candidates met the public for the first and last time in formal debate.

The issue, a subject of controversy in the quiet community for nearly two decades, so pervaded the candidates' night, in fact, that members of the audience soon were groaning over its repeated mention.

Yet most of the questions put to the candidates present — incumbents John H. Chase and Jewell Osterloh and challengers Peter B. Valentine and Tracy Van Voorhees — dealt with the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project, on which work has been stalled by legal snarls.

The fifth candidate in Tuesday's election, incumbent Alan P. Maginis, was said by sponsors of the debate — the Ross Property Owners Association and the League of Women Voters of Central Marin — to have been delayed on out-of-town business and unable to attend the confrontation at Ross School.

Among the four present, it was Chase and Mrs. Osterloh against Valentine and Van Voorhees on the flood control issue. The challengers, in fact, are running as a team as co-chairmen of the Save Our Creek Committee, a year-old group opposed to extension of the tributary's concrete ditch from the center of the community almost to the San Anselmo line.

The main source of disagreement last night was over the meaning and effect of a ruling in a suit brought against the town by Valentine, a 32-year-old investor. Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson, while committing the town to approval of some type of flood control extension, said that Valentine and his supporters were entitled to a referendum on current plans for more concrete channel.

Otherwise, the judge said, the council must rescind approval already given the new phase.

Valentine and Van Voorhees, noting that Wilson affirmed the council's "absolute control" over design of the extension, said the burden now was on the Army Corps of Engineers, builder of the project, to propose a scheme that would satisfy residents.

But Chase and Mrs. Osterloh explained that alternate methods studied in the past had proved too costly and probably more damaging to the ecology, and wondered about town liability if the money wasn't found to build an extension of different design.

Further, said Chase, the council has been advised by its attorney that the council's powers over design cover only "basic amenities" and not broad review prerogatives. In any case, the incumbents noted, the project was stalled, despite Valentine's suit, because of what the town considers to be the failure of the county flood control district to meet obligations to correct ancillary flooding woes.

Both Chase, a 37-year-old Transamerica Corp. executive, and Mrs. Osterloh, 54, a housewife, were asked by someone in the audience about reports the council intends to appeal Wilson's ruling.

Chase said he believed the Valentine suit had "proved absolutely nothing" and wondered what an appeal would solve. Mrs. Osterloh said she lacked the advice of the town attorney to state her position.

Chase, noting the creek issue has been a topic at some 70 meetings both within the town and outside it since 1946, accused Valentine and Van Voorhees, a 48-year-old manufacturer's representative, of midnight-hour opportunism.

"The council remains open to alternative suggestions," he said, "but we're running out of time. We've been at this a long time and I wonder where were Mr. Valentine and Mr. Van Voorhees?"

The challengers said a possible creek solution might be construction of an underground bypass which would carry off much of the storm water without disturbing the creek bed. But the incumbents said such a scheme already has been adjudged too expensive — as much as $2.5 million more than the ditch now proposed — and could mean widening of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to four lanes.

The added expense, Chase, said, "is just beyond our wildest dreams," adding that the federal government, prime financer of the project, would never approve. Valentine, however, said Wilson's ruling gave citizens the lever to "force the county and the corps to do whatever we want."

"We can demand a design that meets with our approval," Van Voorhees said.

Aside from flood control, the debate focused on the council's practice of going behind closed doors to name successors to departing colleagues, without opportunity for the public to question candidates, and on how to tackle persistent appeals for a town recreation program.

Of the closed-door practice, Chase — like Mrs. Osterloh, an appointee seeking election for the first time — said: "This is not an unusual procedure ... It's actually requested by the applicants themselves. It's for the convenience of the applicants that this has been done."

To hold public interviews, Mrs. Osterloh said, would mean to "cut down on applicants if they feel they will be put through the public wringer."

"I'm not too concerned about the applicant's feelings ... I am more concerned about what the townspeople's feelings are," snapped Valentine. Van Voorhees said he, too, supported an open appointment procedure.

Van Voorhees was first to express support of appointment of a town recreation commission, although Chase and Mrs. Osterloh later said a resolution aimed at the group's creation would be considered at the next council session. Valentine was noncommittal on the issue.

Van Voorhees also initially raised the idea of informal community meetings on pressing town matters, insisting that citizens sometimes felt intimidated at regular council sessions. The proposal later won general endorsement from the incumbents. Valentine said he believed a lack of communication between citizens and town officials was a major cause of the battle over flood control.

In the absence of Maginis, a 48-year-old real estate executive also seeking his first full council term, debate sponsors read a prepared position paper from the candidate which upheld the council's recent vote to stop the creek project until commitments on solving local flooding problems are honored.

Maginis also said in the statement, "Ross must maintain its own identity. I am against countywide services such as fire and police, as we would lose control of these vital services. The exchange of information between neighboring communities is important and should be encouraged."

Widening Ban On Fireworks Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration has proposed a widening of its two-year-old ban on the general sale of cherry bombs, aerial bombs and other fireworks with more than two grains of powder by extending the ban to agriculture explosives.

Such explosives have been used by farmers to scare away birds from crops but the FDA said some fireworks manufacturers have been selling them to the general public. The new ban would take effect in 60 days.

Water Panel Ordered To Give Names

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The state Court of Appeals today ordered the North Marin County Water District to release to the Independent-Journal a list of the names of all district employees, their job classifications and salaries.

The order upheld one made 18 months ago by Marin Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating. The I-J brought court action against the district after it refused to furnish the information. The district appealed Keating's order.

The newspaper published such information for every other city and public agency in the county.

The district claimed that the disclosure would be "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," but the Court of Appeal held that state law provided no such secrecy for public records.

(Eugene S. Churchill, manager of the district, told the I-J that the records would be made available immediately.)

The Court of Appeal ruled that state law only limited disclosure of records such as previous employment, medical history, beneficiaries of insurance policies, type of insurance coverage, names of dependents and similar information.

Papers Banned By Pakistan

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI)—The Pakistan government Wednesday banned three publications and arrested their editors.

An annoucement said the government banned the Punch, Zindagi and Urdu Digest, for defying rules of the new press commission.

The arrested editors were Husain Naqi of Punch, Altaf Qureshi of Zindagi and Aijaz Husain Qureshi of Urdu Digest.

2 Highway Crashes Injure 8, Tie Traffic

Three persons were hospitalized — one in critical condition — and five others injured in twin accidents involving seven cars yesterday on rainslick Highway 101 near the Marin County Civic Center off-ramp.

Russell L. DeMel, 53, of Orange, Orange County, was reported in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital with fractured ribs, according to hospital authorities. Mary Ellen Grant, 83, of Buhl, Minn., was reported in fair condition at the hospital with a fractured right hip.

Francis Tong Eng, 44, of San Francisco, was reported in good condition at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael with possible broken jaw and facial cuts.

Alice Margaret Berglund, 50, of 31 Joan Avenue, Novato, went to see her own doctor for cuts on her forehead, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Howard Lee Dachslager, 39, of Berkeley, was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for cuts on his head, hospital authorities reported.

Grace E. Hilton, 26, of 199 Posada Del Sol, Novato, was treated at San Francisco's Letterman General Hospital for scalp cuts, according to hospital spokesmen. Her daughter, Jennifer, 2, was examined at the hospital for minor bruises.

Donna Anne Taylor, 19, of 251 Crescent Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base, was taken to the base hospital by her father with an injured left knee and neck highway patrolmen reported. The hospital had no record of her being treated there.

According to highway patrol reports, the first of the twin accidents happened at 11 a.m. in the northbound lanes of Highway 101 at the San Pedro Road undercrossing when a car driven in heavy rain by Mrs. Hilton slowed on the slick pavement. It was hit by a car driven by Eng and both were hit by a car driven by Lee Edwin Pickney, 24, of San Francisco.

This closed all three northbound lanes of the highway and cars were stopped behind the wreck when the second accident happened, according to highway patrolmen.

Cars driven by Mrs. Serglund, Dachslager, Miss Taylor and Jacob John Czerwienice, 38, of Loleta, Humboldt County, all collided moments after the first accident, patrolmen said.

The northbound lanes of the highway were closed until 11:50 a.m., patrolmen said.

Librarian Seeks Record Designs

Traditionally, libraries use file cards Kilbourne said, but several years ago a local artist made about 100 posters with apple tree designs. After the child read a book, he put a red paper apple on the front of the poster, and wrote the name of the book on the back.

Kilbourne is seeking other designs for use this summer. He said entries would be judged by a panel of three, with prizes of $15, $10 and $5 for the top three entries.

Further information, he said, may be had at the Larkspur Public Library, 400 Magnolia Avenue.

Tax Deadline Nears; More Blood Needed

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI)—With the April 15 income tax deadline drawing near, regional blood center director William Pugh has issued a call for blood donors.

He said the blood is needed for the rash of ulcer operations that occur every year at this time.

New Snow For Skiing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A heavy layer of new snow has improved the ski outlook for Northern California and Nevada resorts still remaining open.

Boreal Ridge: Open for the weekend.

Squaw Valley—Twelve inches of new snow on a two to two and one-half foot base. Conditions unspecified.

Alpine Meadows: Six to eight inches of new snow on five to six foot base. Fair to good skiing on wet pack.

Heavenly Valley: Open at last report which was on April 4th.

Bear Valley: Twelve inches of new snow on four foot base. Reporting good to very good conditions. Powder.

Mount Shasta: Will be open this weekend.

Senate Hears New Link In ITT Fund, Convention

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate ITT investigation was provided with material today alleging the company's lobbyist, Mrs. Dita D. Beard, told a Republican leader she wrote a memo suggesting an ITT donation to the GOP national convention was linked to a controversial antitrust settlement.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., made available the text of a tape recorded newspaper interview in which Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., said Mrs. Beard and her immediate supervisor both discussed the memo with him when it first came to public light.

The Wilson interview was first revealed by the Baltimore Sun.

It was obtained by Robert E. Cox of the San Diego Union on March 3 but was not made public in full until today.

At one point, Wilson was quoted in the transcript as saying columnist Jack Anderson, who first published the purported Beard memo," had the original, not just a copy, but the original memo."

Wilson also was quoted at one point as saying he was "sure as can be" that Mrs. Beard was "mousetrapped" into writing the memo by high ranking ITT officials.

The controversial memo was carried in an Anderson column in February, touching off the Senate inquiry. Mrs. Beard has denied under oath that she wrote the memo contained in Anderson's column.

Mexico Zeroes In On Art Thieves

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Mexican government appears to be making progress in a campaign to prevent the looting of pre-Columbian ruins and to stop the smuggling to the United States and Europe of centuries-old works of art.

A new government department has been set up to fight this multimillion-dollar operation and already thousands of stolen artifacts have been recovered and dozens of art smugglers been arrested.

To aid its own campaign, Mexico is also pressing the United States and European governments to cooperate by forbidding the sale of stolen works of art and by discouraging state-owned museums from buying contraband artifacts. A treaty concluded with Washington last year now allows Mexico to sue for the return of objects smuggled into the United States.

But as with drug-smuggling and gun-running, it may be several years before the network operating the lucrative pre-Columbian art field can be broken. There is too much money involved for the smugglers to give up easily.

The government is not worried about the tourists who may slip out of the country with a few bits of pottery or jade tucked into the bottom of their suitcases. They usually take away worthless pieces or even objects cleverly falsified by the innocent-looking peasants who are to be found hanging around most ruins.

The big smugglers, on the other hand, are real professionals. They employ archeologists to verify the authenticity and value of objects; they know which customs officer or police chief to pay off; they use trucks, boats and even planes to smuggle the pieces out of the country.

After that, there is a whole network of dealers, galleries and museums in the United States and Europe to make sure a good price is obtained. And by the time funny little clay statues and pots (which the Mexican government regards as criminal loot) have been mounted behind glass with subtle lighting in a private collection or a National Museum, they have gained respectability.

To fight the art smugglers, the government is depending largely on paid informants to tip them off about direct looting of ruins and about consignments of artifacts leaving the country. Once the Attorney General's office has a lead, a group of special agents moves into the area for the catch and the interrogation. Since the smugglers do not always surrender without a fight, the agents are armed, ready for any eventuality.

One of the greatest difficulties faced by the agents is that the smugglers are almost invariably well protected by the local authorities or police who may also have a piece of the cake. In some cases, the head of the smuggling ring has been found to be the local police chief or even a government archeologist.

At present, most of the looting of pre-Columbian ruins is taking place in the south and south-east of Mexico where the Olmec, Mayan and Toltec cultures flourished 1,000 years ago or more. Since the Mayan civilization overflowed into what is today Guatemala, British Honduras and Honduras proper, the smugglers are also active there.

The thieves do not feel restricted by region or even archeological period. The damage they do can be seen in colonial churches as well as pre-Columbian ruins throughout the country. In fact what most often upsets archeologists is the way the smugglers indiscriminately vandalize ruins in order to take the best pieces. If a supporting column of a building has to be knocked down in order to steal a particularly beautiful and valuable stone head, this is no obstacle.

The smugglers also have an enormous area in which to work. There are probably at least 1,100 pre-Columbian ruins in Mexico alone, only about one-sixth of which have been officially excavated.

To protect all these ruins is impossible without resorting to a major military operation and it may be difficult even then to stop the vandalizing and stealing completely. The hope of authorities is that if they can break up the major smuggling rings, other racketeers will be discouraged.

Many of the people arrested in recent months have been well-known respected citizens, something that has helped bring publicity to the campaign. With these arrests the government hopes to dramatize its view that art smuggling is as criminal activity as any other. A new "cultural heritage" law allows for fines of $500 and prison sentences of three to seven years for stealing or smuggling.

"We're not particularly interested in having lots of smugglers in jail," one government official said. "We want to stop the racket and then perhaps begin to recover some of the objects that have already been stolen. We hope the arrests will have a deterrent effect on the smugglers, that they will realize we mean business."

ANATOMICAL ANOMALIES

Technology And Children's Dolls

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Virtually every American adult must have had a "Fido" in his or her life —a soft stuffed rag of an animal or doll bruised and worn by the slings and arrows of outrageous childhood.

There were few "Kidos" to be found at the 69th annual toy fair, at which some 800 U.S. toy manufacturers who belong to the trade association, Toy Manuafacturers of America (TMA), displayed their wares. Instead, there were scores of mechanical dolls, which most closely resemble obots.

These "hard" dolls come with such anatomical anomalies as strings dangling out of their hips, which when pulled activate the doll's voice, slits in their sides in which records can be inserted, and a series of perforations across their midriffs to emit sound. The tape recorders inside are easily accessible by dismembering the doll.

The industry recorded last year more than $2 billion worth of sales, much of it reaped from the production of sophisticated rather than simple toys.

THIS INTRUSION of technology into the private life of the child is not without its advantages. One of the big items this year is ecology kits. Parker Brothers' Johnny Horizon Environmental Test Kit is one of several tqt enables the child to record a pollution index. Skil-Craft puts out a Weather Forecaster, and Ideal Toy Corp. features Nature's Window, that provides seeds and "soil" made of a transparent gel so the child can observe the germination and growth process.

Such toys combine aspects of fun and learning, and can be regarded as substitutes for strictly educational toys, which the industry has reduced because of their lack of commercial success.

Another major development may challenge the supremacy of the bicycle. "Choppers" and "trikes" are designed for children to ride in. Walter Ross, president of the TMA, explained, "A chopper is a vehicle with a sort of prehensile front wheel. A trike is a motorized three-wheel vehicle particularly adapted to off the road travel."

Some are battery operated and others are pedal driven, and if that seems too tame, consider the "first gasoline powered cars" for children with speeds from 3 to 12 miles per hour.

THE THOUGHT of a child driving such a "motorized" vehicle raises the all-important issue of toy safety. Consumer advocates have long pursued toy anufacturers like a band of furies, pointing their fingers at dangeorus toys and demanding legislation to protect children from them. There have been at least a few signs of response from the industry.

A comparatively new contingent of critics was on hand this year, however. A group from the National Organization for Women (NOW) demonstrated against "the practice of assigning male and female labels to toys, which leads to sex role stereotyping."

NOW objected that toys advertised and packaged for little girls are predominantly dolls or household items that reinforce the child's image of women as "either homemakers or sex objects" while toys for little boys are oriented toward action and achievement.

The feminists say that little girls as well as boys should be encouraged to play with erector sets, airplanes, etc. But they reserve their greatest wrath for the various "fashion dolls," of which Mattel's widely popular Barbie is the prototype. According to the protestors, Barbie encourages vanity — tantalizing the little girl with her wardrobe of clothes, cortege of friends, and convoy of luggage. Barbie's newest outfits equip her for the patio, the beach, or for lounging in front of the mirror.

Mattel, some time ago, introduced a male doll, euphemistically known as an "action figure," modeled after Hasbro's highly successful GI Joe who leaps from helicopters and drives jeeps. Now Mattel is producing Big Jim, the epitome of the all-around athlete, and his black friend Big Jack, with a caravan of sports outfits, equipment, and vehicles.

ROSS, IN his speech to the TMA, stressed the manufacturers' awareness of women's liberation and noted that some toys this year were pitched to both girls and boys.

He then disclosed the profound uncertainty within the industry about how to deal with "the movement," saying, "So the toy industry has spoken: If you are zealous about women's lib — so are we; if you think it's foolish — we sympathize with that view; if you couldn't care less —we won't insist."

A less publicized issue is that of ethnic stereotyping. Blond-haired, blue-eyed dolls are still in the overwhelming majority, but an increasing though still small number now are available in black as well as white. Mattel has Dottie, who even in her white version has brown eyes, and a dark Spanish-speaking doll called Drowsy.

The question is not only of color but of ethnically realistic dolls. The black-owned Shindana (meaning "competitiveness" in Swahili) Toys in Los Angeles produces the most authentic and perhaps the most appealing black dolls.

Though the issue of toy safety has been hammered into the consciousness of the manufacturers, it is still attended by ambiguity because everything is a potential source of danger to a child. Children will, after all, swallow an object from the "real world" with the same alacrity as a toy lipstick, fork, or car wheel.

STILL, AS Boston attorney Edward Swartz writes in his heavily documented polemic against the toy industry, "Toys That Don't Care," manufacturers should shoulder a large share of responsibility for the safety of their particularly vulnerable consumers.

. Some of the abuses which Swartz enumerates in his book have since been corrected but others were in evidence at ty fair.

Among the most dangerous toys are those involving heat or electricity, with play ovens and casting sets among the prime offenders.

A related danger is that of fire. There is legislation covering flammable fabrics and many now are treated with "flame retardants." But parents would be well advised to check the flammability of toys.

Ideal has eliminated altogether the thermal threat in its play ovens by developing an In-a-Minute Cake Maker that requires no heat and produces an "edible" cake and frosting through the compression of dried batter. The company, however, also manufacturers battery powered power tools, such as saws and drills, for children. Rapco, Inc., offers a bottle cutter and decorating kit for children to "recycle" glass.

ONE SURE way a parent can both look out for his children's well-being and give them a crack at grownup skills, however, requires no toys. Mothers and fathers can take their child into the tool room or kitchen and work together on make-it and bake-it projects.

On the bright side, General Mills announced this month the development of a nontoxic plastic model cement as a substitute for glue.

Noticeable effort has been made to rid toys of sharp parts and edges. Wires, pins, and points are still to be found —but not to the same degree. There are positive signs such as Mattel's new line of preschool blocks,Tuff Stuff, which have no sharp corners, no paint, a five-year guarantee for durability, and an education angle. Their soft Baby Bean dolls are said to be tightly sewn so that the baby cannot gain access to the tiny beans inside.

"Action toys" (cars and planes) still have some sharp protrusions, and very real danger exists from cars that fly off the track or self-destruct. Mattel has developed airplane propellers that stop on finger contact for a line of technically advanced lightweight planes operated by either remote control or on a tether.

POSSIBLY HARMFUL "projectiles" (guns and bows and arrows) remain on the market, though in fewer numbers. Mattel restricts its manufacture to cowboy guns, some of which fire pellets.

According to Swartz, toy safety is a continuing problem in this country because of inadequate legislation to regulate the industry. Toy manufacturers have tried to regulate themselves, and an inevitable conflict between profit and conscience ensued.

A recent example of the syndrome, which Swartz calls in his book "The Fox Attempts to Guard the Henhouse," is the appointment of Ruth Handler, the president of Mattel as chairman of the Product Safety Subcouncil of President Nixon's recently established National Business Council for Consumer Affairs.

To the credit of the TMA, about 10 of the largest companies last year contributed to a professional study of toy safety standards by the consulting firm of Arthur D. Little in Cambridge, Mass. The results of the study are to be submitted to the National Bureau of Slandards in May, and manufacturers will be urged to apply the findings to their 1973 line of toys as a voluntary product standard.

This is little consolation to Swartz, who finds even the laws affecting child safety —such as the Flammable Fabrics Act, the Hazardous Substances Act, and the Child Protection and Safety Act of 1969 — hamstrung by difficulties of enforcement.

He advocates a bill that is pending in the House of Representatives which is called the Consumer Product Safety Act. If passed, it would place premarket testing and control of toys in the hands of a single organization (responsibility is now scattered throughout government agencies) and prevent dangerous toys from getting on the market in the first place.

In the meantime, parents might do well to cast an analytical eye at television commercials, which are the mainstays of the toy industry, advertisements, and all the printed matter on or inside the packages.

Cooking Faster In Covered Pan

To conserve natural gas, the American Gas Association recommends covering saucepans on the burner so food will cook faster thereby saving gas.

Don't take forever to pre-heat the oven; the average oven takes only 10 minutes, and roasts and casserole dishes do not need to go into pre-heated ovens. Opening the oven door to check the food wastes gas. Aids to save gas are basting bags, self-basting foods, meat thermometer, time and temperature charts and see-through glass doors

Correct Places For A Mirror

The mirror might be decorative, but it's also a potential hazard because it can detract from the business of walking down stairs.

Many persons are tempted to watch their reflection instead of where they should be putting their feet.

Color Not Enough

Considering color alone is not enough when buying a new carpet. Factors such as texture and fiber affect wearability and ease of care. Backing and padding are important if the carpet is to last. The amount of sunlight in the room and the traffic on the carpet also should affect the quality and color you choose.

Engagement Announced

Sept. 2 nuptials are being planned by Claudia B. Carmozzi of Hayward and Norman Charles Collins of Petaluma.

Claudia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Carmozzi of Hayward, and Norman's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins of Petaluma.

Now a medical receptionist at an office in Castro Valley, the bride-elect is a graduate of Sunset High School in Hayward and attended Contra Costa Junior College and Kaiser School of Nursing.

Norman is a graduate of St. Vincent's High School in Petaluma and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. He served in the navy and is now employed by John's Welding Co. in Novato.

He is the brother of Robert Collins Jr., Mrs. Joan Luiz and Mrs. Anita Baccala of Petaluma.

Soft Is Word For New Fashion Look

Soft is the word to sum up the look to new fashions. Every top designer is stressing softness with closer-to-body shaping.

White Shoes 'In'

White shoes are "in" with everything. Yves St. Laurent used white patent wing-toed pumps with three inch built-up leather heels. Ankle strapped sandals are all over the lot.

A TRUE STORY

Vacation's More Fun With Travel Ready Children

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—This is a true story. I know a father who once wheeled his firstborn around to a neighborhood market, parked her in her carriage outside the entrance while he went in to make some purchases.

Back at home an hour or so later, his wife said, "Where's Carol?" (the baby) "Oh my Lord," he said as he dashed for the door. "I left her outside the supermarket." Fortunately the forgotten Carol still was there in her carriage happily cooing at passersby.

What brings this story to mind is a talk with Leila Hadley, who through the years has taken her four children— one or two, three, four at a time— through Europe, the Middle and Far East, Central America and Africa—and hasn't misplaced a child yet.

"I ALWAYS wear a bright red or yellow coat so I'm easy to spot," said Mrs. Hadley in an interview. "But I also prepare the children. I've taught them all to look for a policeman, a guard, someone in authority who can take care of them if we do get separated."

Mrs. Hadley must be a woman of superb courage, compared to most parents for whom the thought of a day's outing is enough of a trauma. For she insists that now is the time to travel with your children, not to wait until they're older.

Mrs. Hadley, of an affluent New York family, recalls that her parents took her to Europe for the first time when she was a baby. In turn, her eldest, Kip, was only six months old when he went to Europe with Mamma.

WHAT SHE'S learned in traveling with her own, plus research, all is spelled out in a new book. "Fielding's Guide to Travelling with Children in Europe" (William Morrow & Co.). In detail, she covers 19 Western Europe countries and the things they offer to children, plus the practical details of what parents need to know — baby food, diapers, emergencies, airlines and the like.

She lists several reasons for taking the small ones along— "Europe is beautifully organized for taking care of them if you don't want to cope ...baby sitters immediately available, companions, places to leave your child for a few hours, days or weeks, children's hotels, camps and schools."

Mrs. Hadley feels the "emotional expense of not having them along is greater than leaving them at home."

There's the plus factor of expanding the child's knowledge —" Geography comes alive," she said. "Children have no cultural blocks. They don't say, 'Well, this is the way we do things back home.' They're so quick at picking up the language...so unselfconscious it's amazing how fast a child makes himself understood to everyone from waiters to children of the country he's visiting."

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

String Along With Undecided If You're Sure He's Worth It

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I've liked this guy since fourth grade, but only started going with him after his girl friend dumped him five months ago. It lasted three weeks, and then he went back to her.

Well, that went on less than a month and she treated him like dirt, so he wised up and back he came to me.

Another month, and he was with her, but now he's at my house again. He says he's over her, but I hear she still wants him.

People tell me to 1. Hang on; 2. Slam the door; or 3. Lead him on and then dump him bad just to get even. Which ? I couldn't bear treating him as dirty as she does. — THE CRUTCH

DEAR CRUTCH:

I vote for No. 2: a softie like you could never lead a guy on just to get even, and "hanging on" will just give this guy a big head: With two girls fighting over him, he knows someone will always be available. Try getting friendly with his other-girl. When you compare notes, you may both decide to dump him! — SUE

DEAR CRUTCH:

I vote for No. 1 — with reservations. Keep the door open, but let this boy know he's got competition. Drop a hint that he's your second choice too!

And don't ding a guy for indecision. Better you should help make up his mind by being casual, undemanding, understanding — and not always home when he calls! — HALEN

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

John and I have been going around together for two years. We break up up and make up. We've discussed getting married, but I can't forget our constant quarrels. We claim we love each other dearly, but I wonder . . .

Now John is visiting his sister in Europe, and I can't deny — it's kind of a relief.

The other day his younger brother Tom called to ask if he could return some of my records. He's been away at college, so I'd hardly even met him, except to rap over the phone. He's my age: 22.

When Tom arrived, I was shocked to find "the John of my dreams." We talked almost the whole night and I saw in him the things that made me love John — but he's opposite from John in the things that make us fight.

We've been seeing each other ever since. I'm truly in love this time, but I can't bear to face John, though I now realize we'd never have made it together. He'll be home in a month. How can I tell him — or shall I just drop out of both their lives? — WISH I'D MET TOM FIRST

DEAR WISH:

You can't live your life for somebody else.

If you're sure Tom is Mr. Perfect, then try to cool things down with John so that he won't get hurt. Don't hit him with "I'm in love with your brother." (After all, you may not be, even though you THINK you're sure.) Just ask a lot of questions in your letters, and get him thinking, too. — SUE

DEAR WIMTF:

. . . Could be John is already thinking, and the break-off may not be as rough as you imagine. Would a man who is desperately in love leave for Europe alone (when he could have made the trip a honeymoon)?

. . . And who asked Tom to return the records?

Perhaps he's waiting for that "Dear John" letter. Get on with it! — HELEN

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

From Biblical Times

Metallic yarns have been used since Biblical times for the apparel of the wealthy, the noble and the clergy. Gold and silver were hammered into very thin sheets and cut into narrow stripes to be woven into the garments. Since World War II aluminum has become the base for most metallic yarns used today.

MRS. MICHAEL E. CARTER
Vows in Pennsylanvia

Couple To Reside In Virginia

Johanna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Iobst of Center Valley, formerly of Burlingame, and Michael is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Albert B. Carter of San Anselmo.

The bride's sister, Elizabeth Iobst of Center Valley was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Noela Abruzzo of Great Neck, N.Y., and Barbara Iobst of Center Valley, another sister of the bride.

Craig W. Carter of Mill Valley performed best man duties for his brother, and the ushers were the bride's brother, Steven F. Iobst of Center Valley, Eugene Trahan Jr. of Washington, D.C. and John Walck of Frankfurt, Germany.

After a wedding trip to San Francisco and the Barbados, the newlyweds will live in Alexandria, Va.

Now a flight attendant with Pan American Airways in Washington, D.C., Johanna was graduated from Mills High School in Millbrae and West Chester State College.

Michael is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and San Francisco State College. He is a diplomatic courier with the U.S. Department of State.

Mrs. Mary C. Peters of Santa Rosa is his grandmother.

Drudgery Is Taken Out Of Washday

When Grandma called washday drudgery day, she was right. Just 20 years ago, one study reports, it took 57½ minutes and 625 steps just to hang, remove and fold eight pounds of clothes —after they were washed.

Today, an automatic dryer cuts the time to 10 minutes and three steps.

MARRIAGE TIPS

Use A Tape Recorder The Next Sparring Round

NEW YORK (UPI)—Though it's hard to believe, those newlywed love birds ought to prepare for discord in marriage.

Togetherness, if it means continual invasions of privacy—physical, spiritual, intellectual— can rip a marriage apart if it isn't managed properly, you see.

Dr. George O'Neill and his wife of 26 years, Nena O'Neill, are the two eggheads who say so in "Open Marriage" (M. Evans and Co.), a book that contains a blueprint for saving the institution of marriage in the United States.

Said institution is floundering like a boat on a stormy sea. One out of three marriages end in divorce. Some authorities estimate 75 per cent of all marriages are ailing.

They also give some great tips for the civilized way to stage a marital spat—via tape recorders.

No. You don't throw the recorder instead of flinging dishes or skillets. What you do, when you're angry and want to make a point: take a tape recorder into a room. Alone. Pour your your thoughts, giving your side of the argument.

Then leave it for your mate to listen to same. Mate, as step two in this civilized process, speaks a rebuttal into the recorder microphone — alone. And leaves the reply. This can go on—with each side adding the stuff of which arguments are made, but with a difference. The atmosphere is calm or somewhat cool.

Another tip for keeping marriages from stunting the growth of individual partners: aloneness, though together under the same roof.

When O'Neill, for example, has the need of a lot of quiet time, he puts on a dingy golf hat. When his wife sees that, she knows she must not speak to him or distract him in any way.

And Mrs. O'Neill? She wears a particular bandana on her head. When hubby sees that, he knows to keep quiet and also distant.

Mark Boitano Marries Patricia Anne McCarthy

The Chapel at San Domenico School for Girls in San Anselmo was the setting for the wedding of Patricia Anne McCarthy to Mark Edward Boitano of Santa Clara on Sunday morning.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer C. McCarthy of San Rafael, Patricia was attended by her sisters, Christine McCarthy as maid of honor, and Michele McCarthy as bridesmaid. Julie Boitano, the bridegroom's sister, was also a bridesmaid.

Frank Boitano of San Jose served as best man for his brother. The ushers were Mark McCarthy of San Rafael, the bride's brother, and Steven Boitano of Santa Clara, the bridegroom's brother.

A luncheon followed at San Domenico Alumnae Hall.

After a skiing trip to Vail and Aspen, Colo., the newlyweds will live in Washington, D.C., where the bridegroom is stationed with the Army.

Patricia is a grduate of San Domenico School and University of Santa Clara.

She is also the sister of Terrance McCarthy of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mrs. Cornelius McCarthy of San Rafael.

Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Boitano of Santa Clara and the grandson of Mrs. Frank Boitano and Louis Baldas sar, both of San Jose.

He was graduated from Bellarmine College Preparatory School and the University of Santa Clara. He has been a ski instructor at Sugar Bowl, Norden.

Ways To Aid Environment

In every community there are things you can do to help the environment, according to the American Gas Association.

Start at home in little ways by returning wire hangers to the dry cleaners and laundry. Save on unnecessary paper bag disposal by using grocery bags until they are worn out or, as the Europeans do, take along a reusable bag of your own to the supermarket or store.

Keep a litter bag in your car. There are some people who even keep small plastic bags in their purses for cigarettes, candy wrappers, gum and thing like that.

Get to know your community recycling centers, find out what materials they want and do what you can to support them, the association recommends.

Bare-Backed Look

What's for the hostess with the mostest who entertains at home or terrace or patio? Answer: The bare-backed, plunging neckline on pajamas in fabulous floral prints.

ALUMNAE

'Rest' Wool Clothes

Woolen clothes must be pressed with steam to retain the appearance of the fabric. Woolen garments should be allowed to "rest" for about 24 hours between wearings for them to return to shape, advises the American Home Economics Association.

Wedding Held In San Rafael

Irene Laufer became the bride of John Cardoza in a ceremony March 25 at Mission San Rafael Arcangel in San Rafael. A reception at Dominic's restaurant followed the ceremony.

Maid of honor for her sister was Marcia Laufer of San Rafael, and the bridegroom's brother, Joey Cardoza, also of San Rafael, was best man. The bride's brothers, Michael and Andrew Laufer, ushered.

Following a wedding trip to Southern California the newlyweds will live in San Rafael.

The bride is the daughter of Robert Laufer of Santa Venetia and Dolores Laufer of San Rafael. A graduate of San Rafael High School, she is employed at Marin General Hospital. Susan Derr of Chico and Deborah Penaluna of Reno, Nev., are also her sisters. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Cooper and Mrs. Catherine Laufer, all of San Rafael.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cardoza of San Rafael. A San Rafael High School graduate, he attends College of Marin and is employed at Denny's restaurant. Susan Cardoza is his sister.

Woman Ranger Just "Thrilled"

SANTA CRUZ — (UPI) — Paula Peterson, 23, first woman to enter fulltime ranger service with the California Department of Parks and Recreation, says she's "thrilled with the whole thing."

Paula took the state exam and qualified for the training program on the basis of her combined written and oral score. She has been assigned to training duties at Big Basin Redwoods State Park out of Boulder Creek.

"It's been almost scary, but I'm thrilled with the whole thing," said Miss Peterson.

She does "get hit with this women's lib thing and people look at me and I know that some think I went out for the job because there are no other women in it. But that isn't true.

"I wanted a job outdoors, dealing with the public," she said.

KITCHEN HINTS

Familiarity Can Breed Contempt In Knife Use

(I-J Special Report)

CHICAGO — Nicks, punctures and gashes — 200,000 each year — are the unhappy result of misusing kitchen knives.

Familiarity breeds contempt — that's the big reason for kitchen cuts, according to the National Safety Council.

WRONG USE of a knife — using it to pull out carton staples, open a can, or pry up a lid — causes many injuries. So does use of the wrong knife for a task.

Basic kitchen cutlery — each piece designed for a specific use — should include a paring knife for peeling, scraping and small tasks; a utility or trimmer knife for slicing, dicing and coring vegetables and fruits and for trimming and scoring some meats; a hefty butcher knife capable of dealing with stubborn joints; a carving knife for cutting hot meats and poultry; and a ham slicer.

Slips are another common cause of knife injuries. To avoid them, grip the knife handle firmly, always cut away from your thumb or hand — and concentrate. Many slips are caused by inattention. The sharper the knife, the less likely it is to slip. A dull knife calls for extra pressure, and when the force finally overcomes the resistance, the blade moves suddenly and unexpectedly.

Incorrect washing and storage of knives can be unsafe too. Many homemakers have been cut while groping for a knife in the dishwater or a jumbled drawer. A few simple precautions would prevent such injuries. For example, wash sharp knives separately from tableware and place them point down in the silverware cup of the drainer or alongside the drainboard. Knives should be dried separately, too — not gathered up in a handful of tableware.

Ways To Start Conservation

Conserving water is one way the housewife can contribute to the conservation of natural resources, according to the American Gas Association.

Keep a bottle of drinking water in the refrigerator instead of letting the tap run until the water gets cold. Fix leaking faucets, and use the dishwasher for storage until there is enough for a full load.

If you wash dishes by hand, the association recommends using a dish pan or stopper over the drain. Don't wash every single plate or knife and fork under constantly running water.

Engagement Of Couple Is Announced

Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Keys of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter Janice M. Keys to Vernon L. Mandler Jr. of San Anselmo.

The couple plan to be married June 17 at St. Anselm's Church in San Anselmo.

Janice is the sister of Robert T. Keys of Rohnert Park, Cynthia and David Keys of San Rafael, and Richard Keys, who is serving with the Navy in Rhode Island.

She is the granddaughter of John J. Keys of Berkeley and Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Lymburner of Petaluma.

Janice is a San Rafael High School graduate and is employed with Pacific Telephone Co. in San Rafael.

The future bridegroom is the son of Vernon Mandler of San Anselmo and the brother of Mrs. William Meagor and Mrs. Everett Cirio, both of San Anselmo, and John Mandler of Novato and Rick Mandler of San Anselmo.

Vernon is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and is employed with Trailorboat in San Rafael.

College Wants Creek Flood Work Resumed

Visions of having to navigate College of Marin parking lots by rowboat spurred Marin Community College District trustees last night to urge resumption of work on the stalled Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

"If no additional work is completed, the capacity of the stream bed (through the college area) is historically exceeded on an average of once every three years," Grasham explained. Water spilling over the creek banks upstream would reach the campus from Kent Avenue, he explained.

The result could be inundation of the parking lot beneath the new science center and lots adjoining the temporary buildings housing the computer center, and near the physical education buildings.

Not only would lack of flood control endanger the district's more than $3.5 million investment in the science center, but plans for other buildings to serve the campus's goal of 5,000 students would face problems, Grasham warned.

The legal entanglements involving the Town of Ross, Marin Flood Control District,. Army Corps of Engineers and other agencies pose a threat that the Army "could conceivably" abandon the Corte Madera Creek project, Dale A. Fleming, college planning director, warned.

Fleming and Grasham reviewed developments since mid-March, when the Ross Town Council effectively blocked further work on the Army's channel work and Charles P. Murphy, county flood control engineer told the Independent-Journal that completion of portions of the work through Ross had been delayed at least a year.

The college has requested copies of court rulings in the suits involving the project, Grasham added.

The district trustees last night ordered the staff to prepare a resolution urging the town, the county and the federal agency to resolve the delay as soon as possible.

The Marin Community College District board also:

GRADUATION — Approved changing graduation dates from Friday, June 16, to Wednesday, June 14, for 1972, and from June 15, 1973, to June 13.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations of and voted appreciation to Martha Valliant, instructor in the registered nursing program since 1965, and Cathryn Burgess, instructor in vocational nursing since 1970.

INDIAN VALLEY — Approved spending up to $12,000 for additional site surveys at the Indian Valley campus, and $19,700 for soil tests, and confirmed the contract with Neptune and Thomas, architects for the campus.

GOALS — Approved participation by college trustees and officials in a workshop of the Joint Committee on the Master Plan for Higher Education, Monday in Berkeley.

EMERGENCY — Voted to join in the unified Marin County Operational Area Emergency Services Organization for civil defense, disaster and other emergency preparations.

OVER 18 — Heard Grasham report that a conference Tuesday in Sacramento indicated the budget impact of recent legislation defining 18-year-olds as adults would be delayed at the community college level for at least a year, while corrective legislation is being prepared.

MEETINGS — In addition to the regular meeting April 19, scheduled a workshop session for 8 p.m. April 12 on faculty salaries and board policies.

Driver's Head Cut In Petaluma Crash

Bessie H. Blakeway, 68, of 1821 Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts suffered in a two-car accident at 1 p.m. yesterday at East Washington and Payran streets, Petaluma.

Fuschia Society Meets Saturday

Albert Wilson of the television show "Dig It With Albert" will talk about gardening in the Bay Area at the annual meeting of the American Fuchsia Society at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Novato Community House.

Branches from Northern California are expected to attend the meeting hosted by the Novato branch of the society. Awards will be presented for photographs of fuchsias.

Hostesses will be Josephine Barlow, Betty Barnes, Rose Elverfeld, Harriet Hood and Mide Simonds.

ART REVIEW

Bay Area Sculptors Combine Talents For Major Exhibition

By ADA GARFINKEL

Fourteen Bay Area sculptors have combined their sizable skills, wit, and imaginative perception to create a major exhibit in the Fine Arts Gallery, College of Marin, through April 28.

There is no monumental sculpture. These artists have oriented their work to concern with processes, sociological content (political and environmental), to inner space, and to fun. Process and subject matter are so skillfully blended that they are inseparable. They do not, however, overwhelm the viewer — they gently nudge him.

By far the most unusual works are the two huge wall sculptures by Hugh Wiley. Both feature bull's horns and matador capes and are constructed of cement over chicken wire. The capes are filled with folds and puffs suggestive of energy and motion.

In "Wovoka Messiah", the cape is light tan. Bands of copper and brass and a "sun" surmount the horns, and a variety of cattle brands and cowboy symbols are painted beneath the cape. In "Untitled" the cape is black and more contained. The graffiti is more prominent, more varied, and more pointed. Chinese calligraphy and other Far-Eastern languages are painted in profusion along with a variety of symbols — the whole adding up to Willey's largest lettered clue: "Interface".

"Shboom", "Prone", and "Mr. Fidd" are three works by C.G. Simonds combining unusual materials: bronze, wood, aluminum, and wax, in masses of coils and thrusts.

An adjustable mirror of billboard proportions by Richard Berger, focuses on views of the environment, and two photographs show the expanded sculpture on a sandy beach, submerged in ocean water, and an overhead view reflecting mountain terrain.

Other environmental sculptures are Stephen Dubov's set of six steel floor pieces which show only the cast shadows of buildings, and Joseph Girard's black steel cubes, which are first molded and then collapsed by pressure, so that they look like lava spewed from some volcano.

Inner space is explored by Bella Tabak Feldman biologically in "Extrusion", and psychological duality in "Space Egg". The latter is of cast aluminum molded in two sections, both resting on a laminated wooden carrying case with handles. An inscription in French invites the viewer to open the egg. The right-hand outside portion of the "egg" reveals a bright, smiling face; the left-hand interior section is bathed in a murky blue in which the facial features are barely visible.

Violance is preconditioned in the tiny wooden "thingies" of wood and string created by Stan Askew, who titles them "Anti Toy 1, 2, and 3".

And if one doesn't know what to do with old inner tubes, Jerry Bol shows the way in his inflated "Raspberry #2", complete with sound effects.

Most of the sculptors in this exhibit are art instructors, and several of them have exhibited extensively. Bella Feldman, Sidney Gordin, Theodore Odza, and Vaea are among those who have filled numerous commissions. An exhibit of this calibre should prove inspirational to aspiring young artists.

Gallery hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 10 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Woman Picks Jail To Give Dog Freedom

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI)— Georgia Pelle spent Tuesday night in the city jail rather than pay a $5 fine for allowing her dog to run loose.

Mrs. Pelle's dog, Sam, was spotted running free in December by suburban Crestview patrolman Ed Martin, and he issued her a summons.

She argued in court that the dog had broken his leash while tied to a post in the back yard.

The judge found Mrs. Pelle guilty and fined her $5. She refused to pay on principle.

Patrolman Martin was ordered to take her to jail. She stayed in the lockup about three hours and at 12:01 a.m. authorities said it was a new day and released her.

Martin told Mrs. Pelle he was turning in his badge as a result of the episode, explaining that "for $300 a month it's not worth it."

Sam ran away again in January and hasn't been seen since.

Films Set For Senior Citizens

A series of films for senior citizens will be presented at the Novato branch library at 3 p.m. Tuesdays throughout April, the library reported today.

The series will open Tuesday with "J.D. Goes Hunting," "Let's Go Fishing in the Northlands," and "Western Newfoundland."

"Teton Trails," "To Walk the Divide", "The Wonderful World of Wine" and "Colors of Italy" will be shown April 18.

"New Voice in the Tundra," "Europe from Dusk to Dawn" and "Highways to Splendor," on April 25.

Plans For Motel Given Approval

Plans for a motel have been approved by the Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments.

The board granted the request of James Oberg for a motel with a rustic exterior to blend with the adjacent Cattlemen's restaurant, Trading Post Store and Plant Nursery on Petaluma Boulevard North.

The board on Tuesday also approved the request of Earl Anderson to build a tri-plex at 327 Bassett Street.

Keys Taken

Thieves apparently using master keys took $60 from desks at the Marin Terrace School in Almonte between 1 p.m. Saturday and 5:40 a.m. Monday, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Donna Petersen To Give Next Dominican Concert

Donna Petersen will be presented by the Dominican College Music Associates in a concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Caleruega Hall, San Rafael.

DONNA PETERSEN
Mezzo soprano to sing

The mezzo soprano will be accompanied by pianist Loyd Carroll in a program that will include three Elizabethan songs by Arnold Freed, "Songs of a Wayfarer" by Mahler, the finale from "Cinderella" by Rossini, five French songs by Debussy and Faure and five songs by George Cory.

The singer has been a guest soloist with more than 15 symphony orchestras, has participated in seven nationwide tours and sings regularly with the San Francisco Opera Company. She has also sung with the San Francisco Spring Opera, Guild Opera of Los Angeles, San Diego Opera Theater and Western Opera Theater.

She has been a soloist in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City and a frequent guest at the Cabrillo Music Festival and the Carmel Bach Festival.

She will be a guest soloist in the Rogers and Hammerstein program to be presented by the San Francisco Symphony's pop concert this summer conducted by Arthur Fiedler.

CLASS PROJECT — More than 20 students in Richard Lumaghi's philosophy class at Dominican College have pitched in and applied their "book learning" to the real world. They constructed this geodesic dome on the college campus in San Rafael. Considered by some to be the architecture of the future, geodesic domes are assembled quickly and cheaply. This one costs less than $200.

EXPLANATION — Prior to construction, students listen to instructor Richard Lumaghi explain the principles of the dome with the aid of a miniature model. Developed by architect, poet, engineer and philosopher Buckminster Fuller, the geodesic dome is constructed of triangular-shaped sections designed to distribute stress within the structure itself.

Students Build Dome From 'Book Learning'

FINISHING TOUCHES — Robin Dice surveys the final stages of construction, with only a few more triangles to go. Geodesic domes, she learned, are the only large domes that can be set directly on the ground as complete structures.

Red China Talk Set In Mill Valley

Robert Gomperts, San Francisco businessman and vice president of Committee for a New China Policy, will speak and show slides taken during a recent trip to mainland China at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley Wednesday at 8:15 p.m.

The presentation by Gomperts, president of an import-export firm in San Francisco, will be sponsored by the Marin chapter of the World Affairs Council of Northern California.

During the China visit, he and five others had a two-hour talk with prime minister Chou En-lai and dinner with Ch'iao Kuan-hua, who led the Chinese delegation to the United Nations last fall.

Gomperts will respond to questions from the audience. Reservations must be made with the World Affairs Council for the presentation, which is to be preceded by a cheese and wine buffet at 7:30 p.m.

Voter Registration Set-Up On Saturday

The League of Women Voters of Central Marin will conduct voter registration centers in San Rafael from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, according to Susan Stompe, voter service chairman.

Registration will be at the old county courthouse site in downtown San Rafael and at Northgate Shopping Center, she said.

Registration for the June 6 primary election closes next Thursday and the league is attempting to help reduce the number of unregistered eligible voters, Mrs. Stompe said.

Anyone at least 18 years of age by June 6, and a resident of the state and county for 90 days and of the precinct 54 days is eligible to register, she said.

Those who have moved, changed their name or occupation or wish to change their party affiliation also must register by next Thursday, she said.

Ranch To Open For Mustangs

NEWCASTLE, Utah (UPI)— The National Mustang Association has announced plans for a 44,000-acre ranch in southern Nevada devoted to the preservation of one of the nation's last herd of wild horses.

The only livestock will be free-running mustangs that range in the area, said C. Tom Holland, president of the association. He said the ranch will open April 15 in nearby Lincoln County, Nev.

Mustangs numbering in the millions once ranged the West, Holland said, but recent Bureau of Land Management statistics indicate fewer than 10,000 of the animals survive.

Two Plead Innocent To Kidnap

Two men charged with robbing, kidnapping and raping a Mill Valley woman pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court. A preliminary hearing for each was set for April 14.

Charles Moultry, 23, and Charles Lee, 22, both of San Francisco, were arrested March 29 after a chase across the Golden Gate Bridge.

The 28-year-old victim told police that two men, one armed, held her up in her driveway, then forced her to go with them on a drive through Southern Marin during which they took turns raping her.

Released two blocks from home, she called for help and sheriff's deputies stopped the car after chasing it from near Marin City.

SLEEPY SAN RAFAEL

Viewed from atop Wolfe Grade in a generally northern direction, the San Rafael of 100 years ago gave no hint of someday blossoming into a community of 40,000. The photograph, showing the D Street curve that remains today, is part of a display of memorabilia removed last month from the old county courthouse cornerstone. The display was set up yesterday at the Civic Center library and includes old newspapers, documents and valuable coins. The display, delayed a month when a specially built case was lost in shipping, will run at least through May.

Sixty-Day Extension Is Recommended

The Sausalito Planning Commission last night recommended that the Golden Gate Bridge District be given a 60-day extension of its conditional use permit to operate ferry service in the city.

Chairman Robert L. Nissen said the district was seeking the extension — until June 15 — to allow more time to complete plans for two ferry terminals for Sausalito. The original use permit was granted in August of 1970 and the district has received three extensions since that time, he said.

The commissions recommendation will be forwarded to the city council.

Nissen said the commission also granted a variance to Donald G. Davis to convert an industrial structure at 3000 Bridgeway into an office building.

A variance application by Heath Ceramics to reduce the size of a designated road in the Marin ship area to expand its present building over the area was also approved.

Hub Council Campaigners Trade Barbs

A challenger in Tuesday's San Anselmo City Council election has charged the two incumbents with keeping secret plans to widen Center Boulevard to Fairfax at a cost of $9 million.

The accusation by Richard Alan Raznikov, a 26-year-old law student, was termed an "outrageous lie" today by Councilman James F. Reed, one of the incumbents.

Raznikov said preliminary steps to the widening were under way, but Reed said today the city council plans no further widening projects in town. Raznikov's charge, he said, is "absolutely untrue."

The issue of traffic and the environment has been a major one in the campaign.

Accreditation For Dominican

Dominican College of San Rafael has announced its accreditation by the Western Association of Schools following inspection by a team of six representatives of public and independent colleges and universities.

The accreditation team, according to the Dominican announcement, noted the candor of the college's report, the vigorous and effective program in student personnel services and the high quality of instruction.

The accreditation will remain in effect until such time as new programs or new directions indicate a need for reevaluation by the association.

Thomas Recalls Events Of Civic Center Shooting

By MARY LEYDECKER

SAN JOSE — Gary W. Thomas, the young assistant district attorney permanently crippled from the August 1970 shoot-out, yesterday calmly and slowly recounted how he grabbed a gun and shot four kidnappers during the bloody battle.

The shot that left him paralyzed from the the waist down came, however, from outside the van in which he was held hostage, he said.

Speaking from his wheelchair in the center of the courtroom, Thomas told the jury in the Angela Davis case what he remembered of the horror-filled 45 minutes on the morning of Aug. 7.

After a great deal of confusion in the Marin Hall of Justice, Thomas, Judge Harold J. Haley and three women jurors were taken by their captors to a yellow van in the parking lot.

When they first got into the van, Thomas testified, Judge Haley asked McClain, "Where are we going?"

"We're going to the airport and take a plane," Thomas said McClain replied.

Thomas also told how he asked that the women jurors be released, but McClain told him, "No, you're all going."

After the van, crammed with three escaping San Quentin convicts, their young accomplice and the hostages, started up in the Marin Civic Center parking lot, it went only a short distance before coming to an abrupt halt, Thomas said.

"Then I saw Jonathan Jackson (the young accomplice) put his hand out of the driver's side window," Thomas said. Jackson, who was driving because convict James McClain had been unable to start the van, had a gun in his hand, according to Thomas.

"Then I heard one or maybe two shots," Thomas continued. They did not come from inside the van, he said.

"Jackson pulled his hand back inside the window and looked at it. There was blood on his hand," Thomas said.

"When I saw that, I immediately turned and looked at Judge Haley," he said.

"What did you see?" prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. asked Thomas.

"He was alive. An instant later, I saw the right side of his face slowly pulling away . . . it was as if it was in slow motion . . . all the outward appearance of his face was slowly moving away from the right side of his head," Thomas said.

Then Thomas said, he turned to his right, took the gun out of Jackson's wounded hand and fired a shot "in Jackson's direction."

He saw McClain moving toward the driver's seat and "I got him in the back," Thomas testified.

Then, "I turned and fired a shot in the area of Christmas (William Christmas, another convict), and then I shot Ruchell Magee in the chest," he continued.

He said he saw Magee still moving and he started to fire again but the gun clicked. (Christmas, McClain and Jackson all died in the battle.)

"I yelled out, 'stop firing — please stop firing,'" Thomas said.

"Just about the same time I felt sharp pains in my back and my legs gave out and I crumpled down," he concluded.

In answer to Harris's question, Thomas said "somewhat over an inch of my spinal cord was shot away and I am paralyzed permanently from the waist down."

Thomas sat quietly in his wheelchair when he finished his story as the gun he had used was brought out of an evidence cupboard and shown to Miss Davis and her lawyers. He gave her a long, impenetrable look as she examined the gun.

Then Thomas was subjected to merciless cross-examination by one of Miss Davis's attorneys, Leo A. Branton, who tried in various ways to discredit his testimony.

"You know don't you, that the shot that hit you didn't come from inside the van?" Branton asked.

"Yes," Thomas replied.

He said, however, he didn't know whether it was fired by San Quentin guards or not.

However, Thomas repeatedly gave a firm "no" to Branton's suggestions that the shooting might have taken place in a number of other ways than Thomas described.

Among Branton's suggestions was one that Thomas had hit the judge with a bullet aimed at Magee or another that his first shot had hit Magee, triggering the shotgun blast which killed the judge.

Branton also made much of confusing testimony given earlier by Thomas to law officers about the whereabouts of Christmas during the escape.

"Because of emotional involvement . . . you have given many different statements," Branton suggested, referring to the fact that Thomas's wife is a niece of the late judge.

Thomas replied that he was not particularly close to the judge but that he feared for the jurist's safety because he had a shotgun at his head.

Throughout the minutes of terror, Thomas said, "occasionally thoughts would come to me about how to get out of this predicament . . . Then I would think, 'don't do anything that would cause them to shoot the judge.'"

This was the reason, he said, that he did not grab a shotgun left lying on the floor of the van at one point.

Thomas also testified to Branton's pleasure that he had never heard the phrase "Soledad Brothers" during the morning.

Five other witnesses have said they heard demands that the Soledad Brothers be freed. The prosecution contends that the alleged conspiracy in which they say Miss Davis participated was aiming at freeing the Soledad Brothers, particulary George Jackson, with whom they say she was in love.

Today, several Marin lawmen were due to testify about how they were disarmed and helplessly watched the shoot-out, like many other officers.

Meanwhile, the Independent-Journal has been told that an important witness whom the prosecution couldn't locate, Judge Haley's bailiff, has been found in Suthern California.

James Layne, who left the sheriff's department last year, is now living in Ridgecrest, Kern County, and working there for a water district. He has been served with a subpoena and is expected to testify soon, an investigator for the attorney general's office said.

Gunmen Rob Petaluma Store

Two armed gunmen held up the Petaluma 7-11 store at 1:45 a.m. today getting $89 in food stamps and an undetermined amount of cash.

Clerk Terry L. Dillbeck, on the job only five days, told police the two young men entered the store witnh guns drawn and ordered the cash register to be opened. He said only cash and food stamps were taken and that both appeared nervous that a customer might walk in the door.

The robbers were described as between 19 and 22 years old, five feet, 10 inches tall, with shoulder length hair and dark clothing. The guns were believed to be .22-caliber pistols.

Assault Case Suspect Sought

Marin Sheriff's deputies are looking for a man described as a Mexican, about 23 years old who allegedly raped an 18-year-old hitchhiker near China Camp Monday.

Deputies said the man driving a late model Volkswagen picked up the girl in Cotati and promised to drive her to her home in Palo Alto, but took her to a secluded area near China Camp instead.

Afterwards, according to deputies, he drove the girl to Sausalito and released her about 5 p.m.

Cross Atop Church Will Shine Only Twice Yearly

The Novato Plan Review Committee last night approved the illuminated cross for the new church building at 1929 Novato Boulevard, but limited illumination to the religious holiday seasons.

The planning staff had recommended that the church retain its original plan for a wooden cross.

The committee also approved plans by Major Investment Co. for a five-unit apartment building on .36 of an acre on the north side of San Marin Drive west of San Mateo Way and plans by Ross Tankersley and Wayne Womack for two four-unit apartment buildings on two lots on the west side of Third Street

Buffet, Dance For Schoonover

A buffet dinner-dance for John C. Schoonover, candidate for the Novato City Council in Tuesday's municipal election, will be held at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Church in Ignacio.

During the evening there will be a community sing-a-long with musical film shorts. The social hour will begin at 7 p.m.

Painting Exhibit

A showing of contemporary paintings by Ralph Holmstad of Sausalito will be in the San Anselmo headquarters office of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Association through April. Paintings include abstracts, figures and still-life.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Try this quiz on the April 6 birthday of Raphael (1483-1520), the Renaissance painter:

T F 1. Rafaello Santi (his full Italian name) was a lazy boy who refused to learn how to paint until his angry father Giovanni spanked him.

T F 2. In 1499, studying in Umbria under the great master Il Perugino, young Raphael was so skillful in imitating the works of his teacher that today experts still argue over which is which.

T. F 3. At Florence, in an argument over painting styles with Michelangelo, Raphael lost his temper, took a hammer, and broke the nose off the uncompleted statue of David.

T F 4. His genius came to the attention of the Pope, who made him chief architect of St. Peter's Church in 1514 and director of excavations.

T F 5. Inspired to do many paintings of Mary, mother of Jesus, Raphael is perhaps best known for having done the world-famous "Sistine Madonna."

ANSWERS

1. FALSE — Raphael was eager to learn from his artist father, and was not lazy.
2. TRUE — There is no question, indeed, about Raphael having done many masterpieces.
3. FALSE — Works of art were destroyed by vandals, not sculptors and painters.
4. TRUE — Michelangelo did not work as an architect at St. Peter's until 1547.
5. TRUE — The museum at Dresden has this oil, painted by Raphael in 1518.

Speculation Is Fun, But The Sure Thing Scores The Points

Are you a speculative bridge player, or do you keep an eye out for sure things? There's more excitement in speculation, more security in the sure thing. You pays your money and you takes your choice.

SPECULATOR

South was a born speculator so he won the first heart trick and tried the diamond finesse. The finesse lost, and thingswent from bad ro worse.

East returned the queen of spades, and South was in trouble. It was too late to switch to clubs, for East would get two clubs, two spades and one diamond. Instead, South continued with the diamonds.

East took his second diamond trick and led the jack of spades to knock out declarer's last stopper in that suit. Now South could cash his eight tricks, but East took the rest.

CLUBS ARE SAFE

South should win the first heart and lead clubs instead of diamonds. East can take the king of clubs and force out the king of spades. Declarer now knocks out the ace of clubs while still controlling each suit. He can surely win two spades, three hearts, two diamonds and three clubs.

If you like sure things, your best course is to count tricks at the beginning of the play and tackle the suit that guarantees the contract. Be sure to estimate the damage the opponents can do each time you give them the lead.

If you prefer excitement, don't bother to count your tricks. You'll have the excitement, and your opponents will have the tricks!

Seven Lawmen Killed In March

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Seven law enforcement officers were killed in the line of duty in the nation last month, the FBI said Tuesday.

The deaths brought to 27 the number of local, county and state policemen killed during 1972, the agency said.

Thirty-four were slain during the first three months of 1971.

The FBI said 13 officers have been slain in southern states, eight in the northeast, and three each in western and north central states this year.

Acquittal In Harrisburg 7 Case

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—A defense attorney said today the jury's 10 to 2 vote for acquittal made it unlikely the government would seek to retry the Harrisburg Seven on conspiracy charges.

Thomas Menaker also said there was a good chance the defense could prove that the government discriminated against the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister, who were convicted Wednesday for smuggling letters in and out of prison.

"It is not likely they are going to retry the case when the jury vote was 10 to 2 for acquittal," Menaker said.

The jury was dismissed because it had failed to reach a unanimous verdict on the charge that the seven antiwar activists had plotted to disrupt the government by conspiring in 1970 to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, blow up Washington heating tunnels and vandalize draft boards. The trial lasted 11 weeks.

Six of the seven defendants, including Sister Elizabeth, are free on bond ranging from $5,000 to $10,000. The bonds will remain in effect until the government decides whether it intends to retry the seven or dismiss the charges against them.

The activists, except Berrigan who was returned to jail, plan an afternoon antiwar protest demonstration today at a defense plant 25 miles south of here, where Harrisburg Seven supporters recently damaged bomb casings which had been loaded on a freight car.

WELL-WISHERS — Sister Elizabeth McAlister is greeted by well-wishers as she leaves the Federal Building in Harrisburg, Pa., after the trial of the Harrisburg Seven. A jury returned an acquittal verdict yesterday on conspiracy charges. (UPI Telephoto)

The defense has asked for a post trial hearing in the case and trial Judge R. Dixon Herman set May 2 for the hearing at which the defense will argue that the letter smuggling conviction should be thrown out because no one has ever been prosecute for smuggling a letter in an and out of a prison.

Defense attorney Paul F. O'Dwyer said if Judge Herman did not dismiss the convictions on May 2, an appeal would be filed with the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

"If reason doesn't prevail on this level, certainly it will prevail on that level," O'Dwyer said.

Lawrence Evans of Dillsburg, Pa., a supermarket owner who was juror No. 6, said only he and another juror, a woman, held out to the end for conviction.

Petaluma Sets Special Session To Enact Development Policies

The Petaluma City Council yesterday sifted through details of ordinances establishing planned unit development and set a special meeting for Monday at 7:30 p.m. to enact them.

One ordinance creates a planned unit development district which will permit a variety of land uses in one development. The other ordinance establishes a planned community district to handle developments of 40 acres or more.

Included in the ordinances are provisions requiring that facilities such as schools, parks, fire and police protection, sewer and water systems are shown to be adequate to serve the proposed development. The council softened the wording somewhat to allow developers to show that services will be available within a reasonable time period.

The ordinances also require that school districts and other agencies with influence in the area to be developed will have the opportunity to submit reports and recommendations on the development and its effects.

In the past, residents have complained that uncontrolled growth has swamped local schools with students and urged that school boards be given a chance to comment and make recommendations.

After introducing the ordinances at the special meeting Monday, the council will discuss possible methods of enforcing the growth limit of 500 new living units per year.

The council has considered establishing a seven-member committee to sift through building applications and to recommend which can be built under the limit.

IMPALA
15,000 MILES

If you've ever seen a like-new car this is it. Local lady school teacher (no kidding) just traded this clean-as-a-whistle little Chev Impala Custom 2-dr. sport coupe that she purchased new from local Chev dealer.

This silver Chev with black custom vinyl top and black vinyl interior has all the Impala extras like V-8, automatic, radio, heater, power steering, w/w tires and loads of other Chev extras.

With just over 15,000 miles on this car — the purchaser will pick up over 35,000 miles of GM warranty. ZFM 337.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Mental Health In High Rises Versus Single-Family Homes

A Canadian psychiatrist believes that living in a high rise is more detrimental to mental health than living in a single-family dwelling. Most of the researcher's objections to apartment complexes are theoretical, but are based on his experiences as mental health director of a Toronto child guidance clinic. Dr. Daniel Cappon admits that mental health is difficult to define, but he used various psychiatric, social and medical disturbances as an index of social apathy. It was obvious he did not like high-rise living.

He saw numerous children who were deprived of running about for fear that they would make noise and arouse the wrath of neighbors and the landlord. As a result, they remained in bed or became lethargic, restless and introverted.

THEY WERE forced to live too close to adults. As a result, the adults became tense and irritable. Adolescents also suffered from "nothing to do" in contrast to those living in single-family dwellings. Most of their friends were indoor rather than outdoor types. Furthermore, in public housing, vandalism rates were high (accounting for 30 per cent of maintenance costs).

The struggle for identity in the high rise was much greater than among those living in single unit homes. A feeling of insecurity was not good for the ego, especially among children. Obviously, those living in high rises spent more time watching television.

ADULT MALES in high rises suffer from deprivation of masculine outlets and many are forced to share what society considers feminine household chores. Mothers develop anxieties because they cannot keep an eye on their children playing in the streets.

Dr. Cappon also mentioned the poverty-stricken squatters in Caracas, Venezuela. These people were happy until placed by government edict into high-rise public housing. They broke down emotionally and became politically menacing. He inferred that many high rises were like prisons and that people who lived in them tended to be inadequate and indifferent. They neglected to vote and leaned heavily on the welfare (mother) state.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

POOR NEIGHBOR

B. R. writes: A 15-year-old boy who lives in the apartment above plays handball on the uncarpeted floor. The racket is driving me nuts. I've asked him to stop, but he refuses. Is there any way I can steel my nerves to live with this poor excuse for a neighbor?

REPLY

Be thankful he doesn't bowl. The best approach is to soften the young man's "nerve" through kindness and courtesy. He will stop the ball playing when he realizes that his friend (you) is disturbed by the noise.

CAT FAMILY

Mrs. A. D. writes: Would visiting a person who owns 15 cats have any effect on my 10-month-old son?

REPLY

No, except that it might be a bit crowded. Keep the cats away from your son and do not let him crawl on the floor if the cats have run of the house.

CONCEPTION WHILE REDUCING

T. A. writes: Can a woman become pregnant while reducing?

Yes, provided the other criteria are met.

Security At Centers Off One Visitor

A sheriff's deputy tried to search him for metal objects, but Vincent rebelled. "No one is going to touch me. I've never been so humiliated in my life," he said according to the sheriff's office.

As a crowd of about 30 persons gathered, Vincent refused to be searched, but took off his coat and threw it, his wallet and some change on the floor. He then threatened to strip off his pants too.

But the stalemate ended when Vincent made a second, more successful trip through the metal detector and was allowed to go on his way at 2:30 p.m.

Deputies said a flashlight in Vincent's coat probably set off the device which is part of the elaborate security measures in effect since shortly after the shoot-out and bombing at the Hall of Justice in 1970.

Johnson Coffee

A coffee for Larkspur City Council candidate Elizabeth Johnson will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Crandon G. Losee, 69 Hatzic Court, in Madrone Woodlands.

Felony Dope Charge Draws Innocent Plea

David Griffin Taft, 24, of Larkspur, pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court Tuesday to felony charges of possessing marijuana and cocaine. Trial was set for May 30.

Taft was arrested in November after police stopped his damaged car. Police said they found drugs while searching Taft and the vehicle.

The Wall Is Up Again In Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—The wall locked in East Berliners and shut out West Berliners again when its gates closed midnight Wednesday, ending an eight-day holiday grace period for families divided by brick and concrete.

The barriers were scheduled to open again during the May 17 to 24 Pentecost holiday, and East Germany and the Soviet Union said it may be for the final time unless West Germany's parliament ratifies the nonaggression pacts with Moscow and Warsaw.

Backers of the accords, instigated by a policy of rapprochement with the East begun by West German Chancellor Willy Brandt more than a year ago, said the family reunions enjoyed by an estimated 500,000 West Berliners would aid the campaign to get parliament to ratify the pacts.

The "goodwill gesture" by East Germany marked the first time West Berliners were permitted into the eastern half of the city in six years and the first time they were permitted to visit other cities in East Germany in 20 years. The wall was erected in 1961.

The Big Four ambassadors' agreement in September to lessen tension in Berlin gives West Berliners the right to visit the east for 30 days a year. But the Soviet Union has said it will not sign the agreement if the nonaggression pacts are not ratified.

The West German parliament votes on the pacts May 4, and the ratification bill faces stiff opposition. The fate of Brandt's ruling coalition could depend on the outcome.

Some of the opposition is aimed at West German recognition in the pact of Poland's territorial rights up to the Oder-Neisse line, which once was German territory.

"It was wonderful to see my sister again," an East Berliner said. "Now I am looking forward to the Pentecost holiday. But I hope the pacts will be ratified so we can meet on a permanent basis."

Superior Court Appearance Ordered

Hollenbeck, 24, of 701 McClary Road, was ordered Tuesday to appear in superior Court April 10 to face a charge of attempting to take a television set from a Mill Valley home last month.

TIBURON VOTERS . . . ONE MINUTE PLEASE

SOME SERIOUS MISCONCEPTIONS HAVE EMERGED FROM THE COUNCIL CAMPAIGN. YOU SHOULD KNOW THE FACTS.

MISCONCEPTION

- "There are proposals to change the zoning of certain single family residential areas in Tiburon to apartment zoning. (Political advertising claim)
- The present City Council is responsible for "allowing" overbuilding of multiple developments.
- The present City Council approved the defacement of Mt. Tiburon.
- The new Hilarita will produce . . . depending on how you hear it . . . "500 units" or "500 people" in "low cost, low income" housing which somehow "sneaked in".

FACT

- Not one square inch is being so considered. Just the opposite is true.
- Not so. The City Council has no control over multiple developments except on appeal or if in Planned Development Zone. Nor does the Planning Commission. This is the responsibility of Bd. of Design Review (three Planning Commissioners). Both the Zoning Ordinance and the multiple zoning areas were adopted by the 1967 Council.
- Not so. The City Council of 1966 and 1967 approved what has happended there.
- Totally inaccurate. a) units approved = 112 b) total bedrooms in these units = 255. Therefore, the impossible can happen only if sexes and ages are right, there are two persons in every bedroom, with never a vacant apt. c) the new Hilarity will be a private (not public) moderate (not low) income development; d) The Record — after 16 public hearings Re-Zoning approved — Planning Commission (5-0..2 absent) and City Council (3-0..2 absent); Master Plan — Commission (5-1..1 absent); Council (3-1..1 absent); Precise Plan — Commission (6-0..1 absent); Council (4-1)

COUNCILMAN ANNE ELLINWOOD'S RECORD

- As a citizen . . . even before incorporation . . . she fought creeping mulitple zoning; as a councilman she urged design controls and has a voting record against the "uglies" whenever any came before Council.
- As a citizen she urged that the Council not approve weaknesses in the Zoning Ordinance; as a Councilman she has consistently urged change and on April 3rd the Council initiated "radical surgery" on that part of the ordinance affecting multiple developments.
- As a citizen . . . in 1967 . . . hers was the only voice speaking out against the Mt. Tiburon "uglification"; as Councilman she has participated in the planning which will help to heal the scars.
- As a citizen and Councilman she has supported redevelopment of the old Hilarita site by our community's own non-profit corporation . . . local people working together for local people . . . to build an AIA designed complex . . . and a better community.

Youth Movement At Peacock Gap

By RALPH CHATOIAN

A youth movement has sprung up at the Peacock Gap Country Club pro shop in the person of Rob McQuade, who at 24 must be the youngest head golf pro in the Bay Area.

McQuade, a West Virginia native and one of 15 children, officially took over the head pro duties on Easter Sunday. He's replacing veteran Harry Lawrence, 69, who has retired. McQuade is the "old man" of the pro shop since his three helpers — Ed Armbruster, Larry Santiago and Kevin Hood — are all younger. They are part-time workers who are attending College of Marin.

Rob's enthusiasm really shows. "The potential here at Peacock Gap is great," he said. "We want to have more tournaments here and we're starting an industrial league later this month. And I want to get a solid junior program started."

And like his age, don't let his size fool you. He has to stretch to reach 5-foot-7 and weighs 135 pounds wringing wet. But when he puts his tee shot 240 to 260 yards down the middle of the fairway he looks six feet tall. He has already toured the par 72 Peacock Gap course with rounds of five and six under par.

AS EXPECTED, it's McQuade's first golf pro job, although he was tutored by a man who many consider the best teacher in the game, Claude Harmon of Wingfoot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N.Y. He attended high school in New York and the Lehigh University for one year.

He quit college and joined the Marines and within six months in the Marine Corps, after officer candidate school, was awarded his commission as a second lieutenant, an officer at 20. But 14 months later he resigned his commission.

"I was given a guarantee of flying a phantom jet when I received my commission but later they switched and wanted me to fly a helicopter," he explained. "I didn't want any helicopter flying so I just got out ... resigned my commission."

SO AT 21 Rob came to California, started selling insurance and working on his golf game. While living in San Francisco he met Gail Nielson and his bachelorhood ended. He and his bride bought a home in Pacifica from where he commutes, "but I'm hoping to build a house in Mill Valley."

There are no children, but there are five huge Afghan dogs. Rob's wife breeds them as a hobby.

No. 1 on his list of priorities is the industrial handicap league, for men and women, to be played on weekday evenings.

"WE'VE ALREADY filled three of the five nights," he said, explaining the summer program will start April 24 and run through October. He's scheduled an organizational meeting for 7:30 p.m. next Monday to explain the rules to all interested golfers.

The enthusiasm shows.

No Break In Strike

Gloomy Outlook Foreseen

NEW YORK (UPI) —The pressure on the major league players and their executive director mounted today as hard-line clubowners seemed willing to let baseball's first general strike continue indefinitely.

All eight opening-day games originally scheduled for today as well as Wednesday's opener at Cincinnati were postponed and it was obvious that no games would be played Friday. It also is unlikely that any games will be played Saturday or Sunday and some clubs are talking about cancelling games well into next week.

The St. Louis Cardinals, whose president, August Busch, Jr., sounded the hard line a week ago, took the lead by announcing the Cards are cancelling all games "until further notice." Some owners were reported to be willing to compromise during their meeting in Chicago Tuesday night but more and more seem to be taking the Busch-line.

At issue is a demand by the Major League Players Association and executive director Marvin Miller that the clubowners make up a 17 per cent costof-living increase in the players' pension fund. The players offered to accept the owners' last money offer if they could also use what they claim is "surplus" money in the pension fund but the owners turned down the plan, terming it "imprudent."

The strike was called by the team player representatives by a vote of 47-0-1 last Friday after they received a strike vote of 663-10.

Ewing Kauffman, owner of the Kansas City Royals, and Jim Campbell, general manager of the Detroit Tigers, were among the most vocal of the hard-liners Wednesday as the strike went into its fifth day.

"If the strike is not settled within seven days, the players will have to go through spring training again," said Kauffman. "And they'll go through it with no salary.

"I told the players they were damned fools to go on strike," he said. "I told 'em wait until next year because the reserve clause is coming up. I think because they struck now, they'll lose next year.

"It's time the players learned the facts of life," added Kauffman. "In the American League last year, there were only three teams that showed a profit — Boston, Detroit and Baltimore."

"It could be over tomorrow or it could last another month," said Campbell when asked about the duration of the strike. "I don't think there should have been a strike. They should have kept negotiating, getting the facts and various things on the pension program."

Campbell added that he thinks the clubs will need a week to become operational after the strike is ended.

"Like ticket sales in Detroit," he said. "We're still doing business as usual but ... then there's hotel accommodations, transportation and things like that."

Manager Earl Weaver of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles said that many of the Orioles "didn't want the strike" and in Chicago, the White Sox permitted players to work out at White Sox park. Seventeen players showed up.

No new date has been set for any further meetings between Miller and John Gaherin, the chief negotiator for the club owners.

NICKLAUS COOLS HOT PUTTER

Masters Tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus appeared to be cooling off a hot putter yesterday in Augusta, Ga. but was actually puckering up to blow off some dirt during a practice round. A field of 86 golfers was scheduled to tee off today in the opening round.

Warriors, Bucks Tonight

MILWAUUEE (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors face the end of their most successful season tonight unless they can somehow beat the Milwaukee Bucks.

Entering the fifth game of their National Basketball Association playoff, the Bucks lead 3-1 in the best-of-seven series. A Warrior win would send the teams back to Oakland Saturday night for game No. 6.

Despite Warrior center Nate Thurmond neutralizing Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Bucks, Golden State has had little luck stopping the rest of the Milwaukee team. Jabbar and Oscar Robertson scored only 26 pgints between them in the Bucks 106-99 win over the Warriors Tuesday night but Bob Dandridge and Curtis Perry combined for 48.

Thurmond's play hasn't reflected any outward concern he may have about his future. There are rumors he is about to jump to the Carolina Cougars of the rival American Basketball Association for $2 million.

But the general manager of the Cougars shrugged aside the rumor.

Bob Bartels, financial adviser for the veteran 6-11 center, said the Carolina team was using money from an ABA "war chest" to try to lure Thurmond away from the NBA. But Scheer denied there is any such war chest.

"If Thurmond wanted to discuss business after the playoffs," said Scheer, "he's welcome to."

Thurmond is in the final year of a two-year, $250,000 contract with the Warriors. Warrior owner Franklin Mieuli plans to talk with his big center about the future as soon as the playoffs end. An option year remains on Thurmond's contract.

SWIMMER DE MONT ON OLYMPIC ROAD

I-J Special Report

DALLAS, Tex. — Rick DeMont of Terra Linda took a giant step toward earning a United States Olympic team berth here yesterday, placing sixth in the 500-yard free style in the National Amateur Athletic Union Swimming Championships.

DeMont, 15, was a finalist in a field that included American record holder John Kinsella of Indiana University and former 400-meter world record holder Tom McGreen of the University of Southern California.

DeMont, training with the Marin Aquatic Club but swimming unattached, lowered his best time by five seconds to 4:34.5.

His coach, Don Swartz of the Marin club, said his race was "just outstanding, a good omen of what is to come" in DeMont's best event — the 1650-yard free Saturday.

Four other Marin Aquatic Club swimmers raced yesterday in a "very impressive" local showing at the national championships, according to Swartz.

Jo Hislop, 16, improved her 500 free time to 5:16.1, although not placing.

Maura Campion, 13, also topped her best mark in that event by more than a second, turning in a 5:17.4.

Denise Ham, 17, and Paul Cane, 18, swam the 100 butterfly and 100 breast stroke events, respectively, but were slightly off their previous top records in 1:02.0 and 1:02.8, respectively.

Bay Area: 1 Strike, No Balls

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" was last today on the hit parade of fans of the San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics.

An awesome stillness hung heavy over Candlestick Park, home of the Giants, as their scheduled 1972 opener against the San Diego Padres today was postponed because of the players strike.

Instead of greeting an expected throng of about 45,000 spectators, refurbished Candlestick Park lay barren. A Giants spokesman said the date of an opening game at the park is now indefinite.

The A's were scheduled to open their new season today in Chicago against the White Sox but that game also has been postponed.

The Giants announced that fans may exchange their tickets to cancelled games for similar tickets to other games. They can do this by mail or at the box office windows at Candlestick.

Favorites Triumph In Hockey Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Players and coaches alike prefer to look on the start of the Stanley Cup competition as a new season, but from the first night's results, at least, there hasn't been much change from the old season.

Form held up on all four fronts Wednesday night as the quarterfinals got underway, with the first and second place finishers in each division jumping off to 1-0 leads on their home ice. And the players who were in the forefront all year long, such as Phil Esposito and Gerry Cheevers of Boston, Vic Hadfield of New York, Gump Worsley of Minnesota and Tony Esposito of Chicago, once again had starring roles.

Phil Esposito, the leading scorer in the National Hockey League with 66 goals and 133 points, scored twice and Cheevers registered his fourth career playoff shutout as the Bruins blitzed the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-0 and Hadfield, a 50-goal scorer, also came through with a pair of goals as the Rangers edged the Montreal Canadiens 3-2 in East Division contests.

In the West, the 42-year-old Worsley turned in a shutout and 39-year-old Dean Prentice scored two goals to lift Minnesota to a 3-0 victory over St. Louis and Tony Esposito, Phil's brother, was beaten only once as Chicago overcame the stubborn Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1.

All four series resume tonight at the same sites before shifting to Toronto, Montreal, St. Louis and Pittsburgh for weekend games.

Phil Esposito broke a scoreless tie with his goals at 17:24 and 19:41 of the second period, and he called the first one "the greatest goal of all time because it went in."

Once Esposito opened it up, the Bruins put the game away with third-period goals by Don Marcotte, John McKenzie and Fred Stanfield. Cheevers, who put together a 31-game unbeaten string during the regular campaign, turned aside 27 Toronto shots.

"There was only one real tough shot," Cheevers said. "That was (Jim) Harrison's shot in the first period. We were real disciplined on defense. We didn't give them the shots. We played it real tight."

Hadfield's second goal of the game came with only 7:17 left to play and provided the Rangers with their first playoff victory over Montreal after 11 consecutive losses, dating back to 1957. Bobby Rousseau, a Canadian star for 10 years, set up both of Hadfield's scores with goalmouth passes and Hadfield also drew an assist on the Rangers' other goal by Bill Fairbairn.

Claude Larose and Frank Mahovlich scored for Montreal.

Bob Leiter scored for Pittsburgh with the game only 1:25 old, but Tony Esposito shut off the Penguins the rest of the way and Chicago went on to win on two goals by Pit Martin and one by Jim Pappin.

Pittsburgh Coach Red Kelly later criticized the officiating of Referee Bill Friday, who called 17 penalties, including three misconducts and three majors.

"Chicago doesn't need Friday's help," said Kelly, who was particularly incensed at a major to Eddie Shack. "They got plenty of talent of their own. We had a pretty good game going and our guys were as good as they were until Friday got into the act."

Rondon To Fight Foster Tomorrow

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The world light-heavyweight championship will be decided tomorrow tonight when Vicente Paul Rondon of Caracas, Venezuela, and Bob Foster climb into the right for a scheduled 15-round fight.

Neither Foster nor Rondon has ever been defeated by a light-heavyweight and both men are rated as two of the finest punchers in the sport.

Foster, a 33-year-old native of Albuquerque, New Mexico, stands six-foot-three and a half and will carry a two-inch height advantage into the nationally televised bout.

Rondon, 28, was recognized as the World Boxing Association's champion when he knocked out Jimmy Dupree in Caracas on Feb. 27, 1971. He has won 37 of his 44 pro bouts.

Foster won the world boxing council crown May 24, 1968, when he knocked out the late Dick Tiger in the fourth round of a bout in Madison Square Garden. He has successfully defended his title four times.

San Diego State Issues Threat To Quit League

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—San Diego State has threatened to withdraw from the Pacific Coast Athletic Association unless its football team is allowed to pull out by itself.

The move is a part of plans to upgrade the football program of the Aztecs.

Earlier this year, Aztec athletic director Dr. Ken Karr asked for PCAA approval of the football pullout but was rejected. He said he would withdraw all teams from the conference if his same request is denied at the next meeting June 5-6.

Washington To Face Pittsburgh Steelers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —The Pittsburgh Steelers of the American Football Conference will meet the New York Giants on the weekend of Aug. 5 and the Washington Redskins Sept. 9 in Pittsburgh and will play the New Orleans Saints on Sept. 2 in Memphis, Tenn. in preseason games.

A team spokesman said it would be decided later whether the two exhibition games in Pittsburgh would be played on Friday night, Saturday night or Sunday afternoon.

Walla Walla Signs Movie Actor Russell

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI)—Walla Walla of the Northwest League has announced the signing of three infielders, including movie actor Kurt Russell.

Russell, 21, who has appeared in several Walt Disney productions, played second base last year for the Bend (Ore.) Rainbows. Also signed were two other Bend players—Jim Van Wyke of Richland, Wash., and Curt Daniels of Vancouver, Wash.

Athletic Director Post To Koentopp

It is his third post at the Jesuit University, the 1959 Gonzaga graduate also is coach of the baseball team and chairman of the physical education department. He succeeds T.H. (Hank) Anderson who resigned earlier this year.

RAIDERS GET AIDE, LOSE ANOTHER

On the plus side, Paul Roach, a coaching aide at North Dakota University, Wyoming and Wisconsin, became the new offensive backfield coach for the National Football League team.

Roach has tutored such pro running back notables as San Francisco's Vic Washington, Miami's Jim Kiick and Green Bay's Dave Hampton.

On the minus side, assistant coach John Poloncheck left the Raiders to join the Green Bay coaching staff. He was a Raider assistant since 1967.

Swimming Program To Start

Coach Don Swartz says that the 45-minute sessions will be held Monday through Thursday evenings until mid-June for youngsters with little experience in swimming.

Swartz said, "The goals of our program are four-fold: It is designed as a low pressure, organized recreation; it will improve a child's physical fitness; it provides basic instruction in competitive strokes; it can serve as an introduction to competitive swimming at an individual's wish."

It is not necessary to sign up the first night, but Swartz said the Marin A.C. has had to close spring sessions in the past because of large turnouts.

Redwood and San Rafael High School pool sessions will begin at 5 p.m., while Terra Linda High starts at 5:30 p.m.

NBA Playoffs Tonight

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The final barrier standing in the way of a National Basketball Association playoff series between Milwaukee and the Los Angeles Lakers may be cleared tonight when the Bucks face the Golden State Warriors.

Milwaukee holds a 3-1 lead in games over the Warriors and needs only a victory tonight to clinch the series and set up the clash with the Lakers that will determine the Western Conference champion and, many believe, the eventual playoff champion.

The Lakers assured themselves of a spot in the Conference finals by eliminating the Chicago Bulls in four straight in the opening round.

The New York Knicks attempt to squar their Eastern Conference skirmish with the Baltimore Bullets at two victories apiece as the two teams meet at New York in an afternoon game. The contest was scheduled for 1 p.m. EST since the New York Rangers will be entertaining the Montreal Canadiens in Stanley Cup hockey action tonight.

The Boston Celtics will play host to the Atlantic Hawks in the fifth game of their Eastern Division semi-final Friday night. They are tied at two games each.

Meanwhile,the Lakers, setting a multitude of records during the regular season, wait in the wings—impatient to have a go at it.

Guard Gail Goodrich summed up the feeling by saying, "I would like us to start the next series as soon as possible. If we have too long a layoff, we may lose a little of our timing."

Coach Richie Guerin hopes his Hawks can come up with an effort similar to the one they produced in Atlanta Tuesday night when they edged the Celtics 112-110.

Rain Forces Prep Track Postponements

High school track meets in Southern Sonoma County were postponed yesterday due to rain.

The scheduled Sonoma County League meet between Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park and Piner High of Santa Rosa was set to run today at Sonoma State College.

The showdown between North Bay League foes Petaluma High School and Napa High, featuring some of the best long and middle distance runners in the area, was rescheduled for May 1 at Petaluma.

Trevino Talks Golf

Take It Easy, Tarzan

By LEE TREVINO

Okay, you sat in front of the tube all winter watching Arnie, Jack, Gene or even ol' Lee swing away on those taped golf shows. You're itching to get after it.

Don't swing hard too quick. The shots you saw on TV didn't tune up YOUR MUSCLES. The hacker's first sign of spring is an achin' back.

The average guy feels so powerful he takes a death grip on his club and tries to murder the ball. Then he butchers some shots and winds up sore in body and spirit.

Until your muscles are ready, hit it easy. You'll get stiff easy. As you get older — you got to have faith in your pro's advice on this — I think lighter clubs, weaker shafts and low compression balls can help your game. I see 20-handicappers hitting balls that they coulnd't mash with a sledgehammer.

A few sit-ups in front of the TV those winter days will tone up your body for your first game. I jump rope to keep my legs firm. Man, you never know when somebody's gonna ask you to tango.

NCAA Sues Second Cager: McDaniels

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— Jim McDaniels became the second former college basketball star sued by the National Collegiate Athletic Association within a period of six weeks Wednesday.

The NCAA filed a suit in U.S. District Court in Louisville, Ky., seeking $285,763.80 from McDaniels, the Carolina Cougars, the American Basketball Association, Athletes Advisory Group, Inc., and agent Norman Blass.

In announcing the suit, Earl Ramer, president of the NCAA, said, "The NCAA does not protest the signing of a professional contract by an athlete at any time. But the NCAA will take any action available to protect the integrity of intercollegiate athletics. We have been very much discouraged by the fraud and deception perpetrated against intercollegiate athletics."

On Feb. 23, the NCAA filed a similar suit against Howard Porter, former Villanova star, for $216,663. These are the only suits ever brought by the NCAA, although the organization has been sued many times.

McDaniels led Western Kentucky to a third-place finish in the 1971 NCAA tournament. Western Kentucky since has vacated its place and was required to refund $66,318.80, which it earned for its participation in the tournament.

Kentucky Defeats ABA Nets

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The real Kentucky Colonels finally stood up Wednesday night.

The Colonels, who set an American Basketball Association record with 68 victories during the regular season, finally broke into the win column after two stunning upset losses to the New York Nets in opening round playoff action.

Walt Simon and Artis Gilmore scored 25 points each and Gilmore took down 22 rebounds to spark the Colonels to a 105-99 victory. New York leads the best-of-seven series 2-1.

In the only other playoff action Wednesday night, utah downed Dallas 96-89 to take a commanding 3-0 lead. Virginia, which also holds a 3-0 lead, tries to eliminate the Floridians tonight while Indiana, which leads 2-1 in games, is at Denver.

"We made up our minds we were coming in here (New York) to win," said Simon, a native New Yorker. "We had our backs to the wall. We have a good team but we must avoid turnovers. This is the first good game I ever played against the Nets."

John Roche, who scored 22 points for the Nets, second only to Rick Barry's 39, credited Kentucky's outside shooting for the victory. "We tried to gamble and cheat from the outside," said the rookie from South Carolina. "We were dropping back on Gilmore and (Dan) Issel, (Les) Hunter, Simon and (Louis) Dampier killed us with their outside shooting."

Issel and Hunter each scored 19 points and Dampier had 12.

Ex-Football Star Faces Gun Charge

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

MARSHALL, Tex. — Joe Do Looney, a star halfback for the 1962 Oklahoma Sooner football team, was charged Wednesday with possessing an illegal submachine gun. A companion was also charged with plotting to assassinate a Houston Federal judge.

Federal agents arrested the pair at Looney's Diana, Tex., home.

Ronald Davis Frick, 24, of Los Angeles and formerly of Honolulu, was charged with complicity in a plot to kill U.S. District Judge Ben C. Connally. He was held in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Looney was charged with violating federal firearms laws. Agents said they confiscated a 45-caliber submachine gun and a half pound of marijuana at Looney's residence. He was released on a $10,000 bond.

"We have no evidence Looney had anything to do with the alleged contract to kill the judge," Assistant U.S. Attorney Cevil Emerson said.

Basketball

NEW YORK — Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels scored a double in his rookie season when he was named Wednesday the American Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player for 1971-72 and voted center on the All-League team.

Teammate Dan Issel drew the most votes in the running for first team honors with 40 and a total of 92 points to secure one of the forwward slots. Rick Barry of New York was named the other forward after registering 34 first place votes and 86 points. Gilmore, at center, received 85 points and 38 first place votes.

Bill Melchionni of New York, 19 first place votes and 81 points, took one of the guard posts and the other went to Donnie Freeman of Dallas, who had 81 points and 33 first team ballots.

Baseball

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians Wednesday announced right-handed pitcher Steve Dunning had been cut to reach the 25-player limit.

He was to report to the Portland farm club.

Dunning, 22, came straight to the Indians varsity in June, 1970, from Stanford. It will be his first time in the minor leagues.

Tennis

HOUSTON, Tex. — Upsets were the rule, rather than the exception yesterday in the quarterfinals of the $50,000 River Oaks Tennis Tournament.

Tiburon's Bob Lutz, the sixth seed, fifth-seeded Arthur Ashe, seventh-seeded Marty Riessen, and eighth-seeded Charles Pararell were all unhappily surprised yesterday.

Bowrey beat Riessen, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Nikola Pilic ousted Ashe, 6-3, 6-4; John Alexander beat Lutz, 6-7, 6-4, 6-2; and ninth-seeded John Newcombe defeated Pasarell, 6-3, 7-5.

Ramsay Picked

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Jack Ramsay, who resigned as coach of the Philadelphia 76ers at the end of the regular National Basketball Assocation season, was named head coach Thursday of the Buffalo Braves, succeeding John McCarthy who was fired March 27.

Terra Linda Sets Parade For Baseball

The Terra Linda Athletic Association will celebrate the beginning of its 14th baseball season with a parade and ceremony Saturday.

The parade will begin at the Terra Linda fire house at 9 a.m. and will proceed along various streets to the Vallecito Field at Nova Albion and Monticello roads, where the ceremony will take place at approximately 9:30.

Dignitaries expected to be present include San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini and police chief Joseph J. Brusatori, director Andrew J. Snyder of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, and Dixie Elementary School District superintendent Clifford W. Campbell and assistant superintendent Joseph B. Goff.

The TLAA sponsors Pee Wee (age 9-10), Junior (11-12) and Babe Ruth (13-15) baseball leagues for boys, plus two girls softball leagues for 9-11 and 12-15 age brackets. Approximately 500 youngsters are involved.

4 Considered In Cal Cage Coach Search

They are Bears assistant Phil Vukicevich, a former USF coach; USC assistant Stan Morrison, head coach Fred Goss of UC Riverside and assistant Bernie Simpson of Seattle University. Morrison and Simpson are former Cal Players while Goss played at UCLA.

Greener grass ...and a guarantee!

With Park 100 Lawn Seed—blended especially for Bay Area growing conditions—you get a greener lawn and a money-back guarantee. If Park 100 doesn't perform to your expectations, Northrup King will refund the full purchase price.

What makes Park 100 work is a combination of grasses: two improved narrow-leafed ryegrasses, Pelo and NK 100, plus Park Kentucky Bluegrass and creeping red fescue. They're precisely blended for even appearance, rich green color and controlled growth (less mowing!). Other benefits are summarized by Bay Area residents who've used Park 100:

"It mows very easily—there is no browning of the leaf tips." "Park 100 is the most uniform grass I've seen for establishing a lawn from the seedling stage." "It just filled in so good that we haven't had any weed problems." Buy Northrup King's Park 100 Lawn Seed, and have a greener lawn this year.

Marin Gals Play To Win In Slow Pitch League

By RON LENT

A bevy of Marin County gals over 18 have a solution to the major league strike: hire the Marin County Slow Pitch Softball Fun League members.

The women, participating in a 10-team five-game schedule starting April 30, are apparently willing to back this offer.

"We'd be willing to play opening day for the San Francisco Giants against the San Diego Padres at Candlestick Park. They (the Padres) probably wouldn't show up, but for us they might," mused Carol Foti, league secretary.

The gals — 15 each on the Gassy Lassies, Lucky Lodgers, Simon's Herem, Cookin' Mamas, Larry's Otter, Dorset Dolls, Fairfax Shell, Marin Belles, Water Lillies, and Rancho Nicasio — admit there are certain playing differences involved, most notably the rules. But the gals are apparently willing to play.

"I'm a roving shortstop," the Woodacre resident continued, "but I can also play catcher."

Mrs. Foti, a 5-foot-3, 113-pound performer, admittedly would not mind playing against major league competition, like the Padres, but she says "we're not playing for trophies or money; we just play to win."

Although her dialogue on the Giants and Padres was in jest, Mrs. Foti's softball views were not. "We do take this game seriously. We've been practicing each Sunday for two months now, and we're red hot ready to start the season."

The pert, 30-year-old noted, "some of the girls come in for a rude awakening when they discover there is a lot of work involved. We want to play a good brand of softball, so we do practice a lot. We're very serious about this point. If we're going to spend money on baby sitters, you better believe we're playing for real."

Apparently, so are her colleagues, because the two-year-old league has no recruiting problems. "We get players mostly by word of mouth. You know, one person tells another. There are a few openings left on some teams, but not many."

The women play all five games during the season ending in mid-August with 10 players in the lineup. "We have all the regular nine positions — pitcher, catcher, three outfielders, four infielders — but we also have a roving shortstop who moves around the diamond, hoping to be where the ball is hit."

Additionally, the gals have unlimited substitution, meaning the girls can return to the lineup after being previously removed. "The only difference," Mrs. Foti pointed out, "is that "they have to start out again in the outfield."

She stated that, unlike the big or little leagues, batting helmets are not required. "The pitcher throws the ball in a three to 10-foot arc, and it can't be hummed in there; so we know pretty much where the ball is. And we have pretty good coordination, too."

On the topic of men, Mrs. Foti asserted that "in regards to women's softball, a man's place is in the dugout. True, we have them as coaches and managers, but they have to take this seriously. And they also tried to sneak in girls under 18 who might be better players, but we won't allow this anymore. This game is for the girls over 18. And that's the way it is going to stay."

If the league maintains its age and other "serious" guidelines, Mrs. Foti and her assorted cute cohorts may achieve their common goal of developing "good sportsmanship, womanship (sort of like fellowship), wholesome fun and a good grade of softball."

Though the objectives are ambitious, the Marin County Slow Pitch Softball Fun League women are bent on fulfilling them.

German Team Meets Sonoma In Soccer Tilt

Six players from Petaluma and two more from Rohnert Park will be on the Sonoma County Junior Soccer League all-star team which will play a touring team from Braunschweig, Germany, next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Forward Ken Westphal and goalie Russell Ahlers of the Petaluma Leghorns are considered two of the better players on the all-star squad. Other Leghorns are Ronald Shields, John Smith, Stanley Hockerson and Eric Nelson. Tom Prasad and Mike Dawson represent the Rohnert Park Vikings.

The game is the fifth in a six-game Bay Area tour for the Germans. Admission to the game will be $1 for adults, 50 cents for youngsters of high school age or under, and free for California Youth Soccer Association players with official cards.

One Change In Swim Leaders

The Redwood High School 400-yard freestyle relay team of Troy Dunham, John Goepp, Spencer Eldred and John Redig provided the week's only change in the Marin County Athletic League's best swimming times when it swam a 3:30.6 Tuesday afternoon against Novato.

The same aggregation had the previous best, 3:31.8.

Redig equaled his own league best in the 50-yard freestyle with a 23.2 clocking against Novato.

The best times:

200 Medley Relay — Redwood (Pete Brunstetter, Paul Cane, Corky Hull, John Redig), 1:46.0; 200 Free — Spencer Eldred (Redwood), 1:54.6; 200 I.M. — Rick DeMont (Terra Linda), 2:06.0; 50 Free — John Redig (Redwood), 23.2; Diving — John Summerfield (Novato), 362.45; 100 Fly — Rick Demont (Terra Linda), 49.5; 400 Free — Spencer Eldred (Redwood), 4:06.2; 100 Back — Roger Rechsteiner (Novato), 1:00.8; 100 Breast — Paul Cane (Redwood), 1:03.5; 400 Free Relay — Redwood (Troy Dunham, John Goepp, Spencer Eldred, John Redig), 3:30.6.

Prep Sports Events Get A Drenching

Sports events involving Marin County high school teams were rained out yesterday.

Washed out were a Drake vs. Tamalpais golf match, Marin Catholic's track and field meet at Cardinal Newman in Santa Rosa, San Rafael's tennis match with College of Marin and Redwood's tennis match at Berkeley High. All events were non-league.

Endriss Eyes New Fences

By LEW CODDINGTON

If somebody does not restrain Al Endriss and his merry band of impromptu construction workers, Redwood High School may end up with a domed stadium or something of the sort.

Endriss, who is baseball coach and athletic director at Redwood, recently ended a five-year quest for dugouts at the Giants' home diamond, with a little help from his friends.

Now he is setting his sights on an outfield fence. With the kind of support he's been getting, it could be built within a year. After that, who knows?

"They've been absolutely great," said Endriss about the people who've helped him. "Just terrific."

Much of the help in the push to get dugouts came from the Redwood Benchwarmers, an adult booster group, which lent $500, enabling Endriss to purchase materials from contractor Tony Morena. The obliging Morena sold them at cost.

Labor? Enter stonemason David Bettega and two of his workmen. Enter also Benchwarmers Bill Secor, Al Connor and Doug Hartman to do some of the less technical work. (Those three Benchwarmers all have sons on the Redwood team who are not benchwarmers.)

The Redwood players also labored vigoroulsy. They worked on the construction for two entire Saturdays, in addition to their regular chores keeping the diamond in good day-to-day shape. They also agreed to work for a paper drop run by the Redwood International Student Exchange, getting in return some of the paper reclamation proceeds, which in turn go towards repaying the loan.

"It's good for the kids to work to get something, instead of having it handed to them," said Endriss. "We realize these things are frills — you can't sell the public that school money can be spent this way.

"But if we show good faith like that, it's easier to get things sometimes."

Among the projects Endriss has planned for the future: putting a fence around the field, enclosing the bleachers, and getting an electric scoreboard ("not the exploding type"). The fence will be a major undertaking, eight to 10 feet high along the foul lines and 12 or 16 feet in center field, and could cost a couple of thousand dollars, but Endriss is confident.

Can a dome be far behind?

Best Foot Forward — Redwood also believes in setting fashion trends. The Giants will have red shoes on their home uniforms this year.

13-Step Bicycle Safety Check – And A New Emblem To Mark Its Value

Look for the new 1972 bicycle safety check emblem, especially designed as an official seal to denote that a bicycle rider has successfully passed the 13-step bicycle inspection. It's an emblem of thoughtfulness and carefulness — showing that a bicycle rider is thoughtful and careful enough about himself and his fellow bicycle rider about road safety, and showing that the bicycle rider wants to reduce injury accidents.

BICYCLE SAFETY CHECK 1972

In California during 1970, 6,845 bicyclists were involved in fatal or injury accidents. Eighty-nine of these accidents resulted in death — almost all of the remaining accidents resulted in injuries to the bicyclist.

In Marin County during 1970 there were 50 bicyclists injured in traffic accidents, of these 22 were in incorporated cities and 28 were in unincorporated areas (county roads.).

Market Continues To Surge

NEW YORK (UPI) — Breaking out of a six-week narrow trading range, the stock market continued to surge ahead during the first two hours of trading today. Turnover was fairly heavy.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, which closed at an all-time high Wednesday, gained 0.44 to 109.44.

The two-hour turnover amounted to more than 8,630,000 shares, with advances leading declines, 855 to 392, among 1,607 issues across the tape.

Prior to Wednesday, the market had traded for more than a month in a range of around 925 to 950 on the Dow. Analysts said investors were reacting favorably to the break out of this range.

There still is some concern about the Communist offensive in Vietnam, but analysts said investors thus far have not been discouraged by the adverse news.

Stockholders' Meeting April 13

Bank of Marin's annual meeting of stockholders will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 13, at 1108 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael.

Bank President W. P. Murray Jr. said the main item on the agenda is the annual election of directors. Bylaws of the bank provide for nine directors, but management will propose only eight directors because of the recent death of Forrest E. Brown, one of the original directors of the bank.

In his annual report to sharholders, Murray said 1971 was the most prosperous year in the bank's history. Consolidated net income amounted to $529,192, an increase of 28 per cent over the previous year. Per share earnings came to $4.23 as compared with $3.58 the previous year.

"The Chief sure would like to get his hands on whoever said we have a stranglehold on our industry."

State Farm Mutual Reports Profit For '71

I-J Special Report

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — State Farm Mutual, the world's largest insurer of automobiles, today reported 1971 sales of $1,854,741,231 and profit of $212,460,986, after federal taxes of $105,090,233.

President Edward B. Rust said that "in light of this performance, we are continuing the policyholder dividend program inaugurated in mid-1971." Rust said that dividend program resulted from "what has to be the most astounding turnaround in the history of the auto insurance business.

"Just three years ago, in 1969, State Farm Mutual reported the largest underwriting loss ever suffered by an auto insurance company — $91.6 million. In 1970, we were able to turn it around to a $27.1 million profit."

Price Increase

OAKLAND (UPI) — Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. has announced an increase of approximately 3 per cent, effective April 15, in prices of mobile home custom fabricated products. The company said the new prices were within allowable limits granted by the Federal Price Commission.

New Pipelines Are Declining

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not one major pipeline project is presently under way in the United States, according to a research report by Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes, investment banking and brokerage house.

This is in sharp contrast with 1968, the all-time peak year for Free World pipeling construction, when 27,180 miles of new construction was reported, the Hornblower report says, noting that the situation has been deteriorating ever since.

A banner year for pipeline projects is expected in 1973, the report estimates, due to the substantial backlog built up by construction delays in the United States, the Arctic, Europe, and the Middle East.

INVESTING

Petroleum Company Examined

By ROGER E. SPEAR

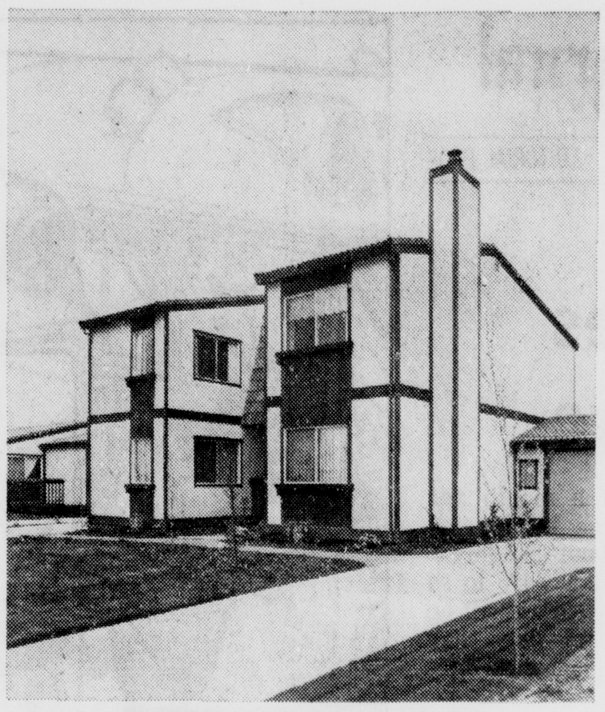
Q. I am interested in a stock called Creole Petroleum on the American Exchange. I am aware that their holdings in Venezuela could be a problem. I am trying to build a portfolio of 5 dividend paying issues for retirement. Is the risk in Creole too great? — H.P.

Q. At present price Creole yields 11 per cent. What is your opinion of the speculative stock? — L.B.

A. The dividend, $2.75 per share in 1971, can only be considered insecure. Earnings barely covered the pay-out in 1969 and 1970 and in 1971 fell short by a good margin. The earnings outlook is darkened by the latest in a series of restrictive measures imposed by the Venezuelan government. Increased product valuations, which added an average 34 cents per barrel for Creole's exports, have effectively raised the tax base on company shipments. Penalties will also be imposed in each quarter that volume varies more than two per cent year-to-year. Payments into a fund will be required henceforth to guarantee that facilities will be returned to the government in good condition when concessions expire. Creole's share should average about 30 cents a share or $233,000 annually. Although the icnreased costs incurred as a result of these latest measures may be passed along to customers, the competitive position of Venezuelan crude has been weakened.

Q. I hold 6 stocks, some bought 30 years ago. My largest holding, 700 Baltimore Gas & Electric, is about half my portfolio value. I am worried that I have too many eggs in one basket. But, I hate to sell because of the tax and also because I need this income. What is your opinion? — L.J.

A. NYSE-listed Baltimore Gas is well worth holding for its 6.3 per cent yield. Although this single holding dominates your portfolio, its relatively stable nature lessens any possible risk. Annual dividend increases should continue.



RETIREMENT COMMUNITY

Temelec Greens, new adult and retirement community in Sonoma County's historic Valley of the Moon, has four models open for inspection. Sale price is less than $25,000. Units have tile roofs with stucco-type exterior. Model sizes range from 960 to 1,170 square feet of living space. Valley of the Moon Realty in Sonoma is the exclusive sales agent.

Yacht Creditors Hearing Sought

State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger has called for public hearings to hear from creditors who allege that two Marin yacht brokers owe them money.

The two yacht brokers are Ernest William Chamberlain, doing business as Raccoon Strait Yacht Sales at 40 Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael; and Gene C. Erickson, doing business as Cipperships at Harbor Drive, Sausalito.

The hearing will be held in room 3057 of the State Building, 350 McAllister Street, San Francisco, on April 25, commencing at 9:30 a.m. and to be continued from day to day until completed. Purpose of the hearings is to get the names and addresses of creditors and their claims and to give the yacht brokers a chance to defend against the claims.

Danish Shippers Buying Vessels

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Danish shipowners have placed orders at home and abroad for 2.8 million tons deadweight up to 1975.

The 125 vessels range from modest coasters to mammoth tankers of 284,000 tons built at the giant Lindoe Shipyard on Funen.

Stock Split Approved By Clearing House

Commerce Clearing House this week approved a split of the company's stock on a two-for-one basis through a 100 per cent distribution of additional $1 par value common stock.

The board also declared a first quarter cash dividend of 10 cents per share on the outstanding shares prior to the stock distribution (equivalent to a rate of 5 cents per share on the increased number of shares outstanding after the stock distribution).

Both the stock distribution and payment of cash dividend will be made on April 28 to stockholders of record on April 12.

Giant Machine For Big Forging

DUSSELDORF Germany, (UPI) — Damag Hydraulic GMBH has announced plans to build a 150 thousand-ton forge manipulator for National Forge of Erie, Ohio.

The giant machine, which will be the second largest manipulator built by Demag, will have an operating pressure of 2,430 pounds per square inch, will be able to handle work up to 75 inches in diameter and move it at the rate of 115 feet a minute, a company statement said.

It said the manipulator will have an overall length of 44½ feet and will take approximately one year to build.

Lucas Valley Data Center Among The Nation's Largest

Corbett — Beacock

Plans are progressing on what promises to be one of the largest data processing centers in the nation, to be located at the corner of Lucas Valley Road and Highway 101 north of San Rafael.

Firemans Fund-American Life Insurance Co. is going ahead with designs on a three-story building with 300,000 square feet of floor area on a 38-acre parcel across the highway from Northgate Industrial Park.

John J. Byrne, manager of the real estate department for Firemans Fund, said it will be the company's central data processing center for the entire nation, which means that smaller data processing centers like those in Chicago and Dallas will be feeding into the main plant in San Rafael.

When the plant is completed in 1974, it will take more than 500 employees to operate it.

MILL VALLEY YARN and Needle Art Shop, which has the only elevator in town, is expanding upstairs into space formerly occupied by a custom dress-making shop.

The shop is located at 138 Throckmorton Avenue. Owners Else Tavela and Bea Lufi announced that they are moving all needlepoint, crewel embroidery and rugs upstairs, leaving the hand-knitting and crocheting yarns downstairs. "We have the only elevator in town, so it will be easy for customers to get upstairs," said Mrs. Lufi. Classes will be held upstairs in knitting, crocheting, stitchery and macrame (knot tying).

The expansion of the shop will coincide with the Mill Valley Stitchery Fair, which is scheduled for April 14 through 16 at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

BANK OF MARIN will hold its annual meeting of stockholders on Thursday, April 13, at 8 p.m. in the lobby of the main office at 1108 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael. Main item of business is the annual election of directors.

ALFIE'S VARIETY store on Tiburon Boulevard at Blackfield Drive may soon change hands, but both the present owner and the prospective purchasers maintain that the sale is being held up by legalities.

Michael J. Lagomarsino has owned the store for about two years. He is negotiating to sell to Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Leete of Belvedere.

W. T. GRANT store, now located at the Novato Fair, plans to move to the proposed new $7 million shopping center on the Pinheiro Ranch north of Novato. Burns Properties of Sausalito will develop the 250,000-square-foot shopping center. It's still a couple of years away.

HART W. CORBETT of Novato has been named assistant vice president in Wells Fargo Bank's head office loan adjustment department in San Francisco. He was formerly loan officer.

Corbett joined Wells Fargo in 1962, served as credit officer in the Petaluma office and as assistant manager of the Northgate office in San Rafael.

BEACOCK & MAXSON is the new name of the Earle & Solvason Inc. realty firm at 645 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera.

Donald A. Beacock of Larkspur and John S. Maxson of Tiburon, who have operated Earle & Solvason since 1967, decided to change the firm's name. Services will continue unchanged. Beacock is current president of the Marin County Board of Realtors.

Tufts began work with Metropolitan in 1927 at the New York home office and transferred to San Francisco in 1937.

Michael D. Ullstrom has joined the staff of Fox & Carskadon Inc. in the Tiburon office as a salesman. He was formerly associated with Van Vleck Realty in San Jose.

Big Brother Makes Mill Valley Secure

Sleep peacefully, Mill Valleyans. Leave your homes unlocked with confidence. All is well. Big Brother has so decreed.

That you may not worry over crime in your city, Big Brother has ordered that the names and addresses of all residential burglary victims be dropped into the Memory Hole. You know what happens when something is dropped into the Memory Hole, don't you? It is disintegrated, dissolved, gone forever — shredded more thoroughly than an ITT memo.

Big Brother is your Mill Valley City Council. On Monday night, the council voted 4-to-0 (Jean S. Barnard was absent) to order your police department to withhold names and addresses of all residential burglary victims from everybody except "duly authorized law enforcement agencies or personnel."

THIS SHOULD make your life much sweeter in Mill Valley. You will not know that your neighborhood is being "worked" by burglars — unless some neighbor is so thoughtless as to tell you that his house has been entered. So far, there is no threat that such an ingrate may be prosecuted for deviationist activities.

Big Brother moves carefully. Realizing that many of you Mill Valleyans may still believe in that old-fashioned, irrelevant notion called "the people's right to know," he decreed in that 4-to-0 city council vote that the police shall "make known from time to time . . . information concerning burglaries in this city, including the number committed in a given period and the general location of each incident."

IT WILL BE delightful, won't it, to learn that a month ago there were three burglaries somewhere in your neighborhood? (If the police care to so announce, that is; there will be no way to check up, since they are forbidden to show the reports to anybody).

If it works for burglaries (and how can it fail, when Big Brother in his infinite wisdom has ordered it?), the system may be extended to other crimes. Mill Valley may well become a crime-free city, as far as anyone knows.

It will be a little difficult, perhaps, when the time arrives that the names of murder victims are withheld to spare the feelings of their kin, for the sudden disappearance of healthy residents to be explained. But Big Brother no doubt will arrange for that in time.

DO NOT DOUBT Big Brother. He has excellent reasons for everything. Consider the excellent reason he put forth at Monday night's city council meeting: "We know that other cities are withholding burglary information from the newspapers."

So you see, it is relevant, it is meaningful. Do not say that you are being deprived of part of the police protection for which you pay taxes by the suppression of information that would hep you avoid loss. Big Brother knows best.

The four who voted for Big Brother are George E. Wickham, Robert H. Andresen, Edward J. Boessenecker and Jerome C. Hauke. Wickham and Andresen are retiring at the end of their present city council terms. Boessenecker's term has two years to run. Hauke is a candidate for re-election next Tuesday.

(Maybe we should have withheld that information.)

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Legislature Should Retake Powers It Gave Away

By EARL G. WATERS

There has been a trend in the past few years of the Legislature reaching for greater authority over administrative matters. This has been evidenced in such proposals as that which sought to rule over the apportionment of highway project money, presently the sole jurisdiction of the Highway Commission.

More recently it was proposed that all rate decisions of the Public Utilities Commission be subjected to final review and approval of the Legislature.

Constitutionally the state, like the federal government, is divided into three separate branches of government. The Legislature to establish the policies by writing the laws, the administration to execute those policies, and the court to rule upon the constitionality of the laws.

THERE ARE FINE lines which separate these functions and the court has injected itself at times into both other branches. And the Legislature on occasion has overstepped into the area of administration. The executive branch is not without fault and not only legislates but often attempts to interpret laws as well.

The proposal to oversee the functions of the PUC is clearly overreaching on the part of the Legislature. For the PUC exists by a vote of the people. If there is to be a change in the authority for rate decisions, it is for the people to decide, not the Legislature.

The Highway Commission is a different matter. It was created by the Legislature and its powers were granted by the lawmakers. While it would appear ridiculous and unworkable to plunge the disbursement of highway funds into the arena of politics, it is within the authority of the Legislature to do so.

AS FORMER SENATE President Pro Tem Hugh Burns always cautioned his colleagues, "put first things first". If the Legislature is concerned over slippage in its powers, it should start looking at those things which are properly vested with the Legislature that it has delegated to the executive branch.

The most glaring loss of authority has been in the rule making powers which it has granted to the executive. By this method the administration has gradually grown to be, volume wise, a greater lawmaker than the Legislature itself.

Almost every agency has the authority to adopt rules and regulations. These, once adopted, have the same force and effect as the laws passed by the Legislature. Through administrative law taxes can be levied, property can be taken, and people can be jailed.

THERE ARE NUMEROUS examples of regulations being adopted which go far beyond that which was intended by the law, have no authority in law, or are diametrically opposite to the law.

This is partly due to the fact there is no veto of regulations. A greater contributor to this is the fact that those passing rules do not have to run for office. Because of this they are less responsive to the public.

It would be a simple matter for the Legislature to return unto itself all lawmaking powers. All that is needed is a requirement that all administrative regulations be subject to ratification by the Legislature.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

'Tis better to be alone than in bad company. — George Washington.

We must resist the mad impulses to intervene and interfere in the problems of other nations, and especially since we are so notably unsuccessful in solving our own problems at home. — John S. Knight.

"Before I started driving, I was in aerospace."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Larkspur Post Office Model For Others

We have been reading a lot about the poor service rendered by the post office lately.

There is one that does not fall in this category, we mean the Larkspur Post Office.

The postmaster and his entire staff are most courteous and helpful, sometimes going beyond the call of duty, for which we thank them and are most grateful.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. ARCHER

Larkspur.

Jack Anderson, McCarthy Compared

Referring to the furor kicked up over the charges by columnist Jack Anderson, it seems a good time to check on his reliability — particularly since his charges are not made under oath.

The April issue of Reader's Digest has an interesting item on Anderson as a part of a broader story dealing with news handling by newspapers, radio, and TV.

It seems Anderson charged OEO Director Rumsfeld with remodeling his office in lavish style. The story turned out to be completely false and this was demonstrated to Anderson. Characteristically the columnist refused to retract the story and few of the papers which carried the column were decent enough to print a correction.

The original source of the false story was a disgruntled Democrat who formerly worked for the agency. Anderson just hadn't bothered to check it out.

It brings back memories of Joseph McCarthy, doesn't it?

Clutter Of Candidates' Signs Annoying

Being a citizen of San Anselmo and very much interested in seeing the unique character of the city maintained, I feel compelled to protest the awesome sight of the yellow campaign signs that are currently plaguing fences, mail boxes, etc., within this town. Such littering of the landscape for personal gain makes one wonder what other degradations this candidate might bring to the city for personal gain.

One talks about keeping San Anselmo from pollution and "Los Angelesation" while he clutters the landscape with yellow campaign signs!

I am pleased to see the majority of the candidates recognize the use of such signs as being a little "heavy" for small town politics. And, most important, as defacing to the esthetic peacefulness of San Anselmo.

Bribe Taking Seen As Common Occurrence

Re I-J March 31, "Must Return Half of Bribes." On an inside page, a middle of the page article (as though a news filler) appeared an article concerning a recently retired Consolidated Edison (New York) vice president and his suit against Con Ed for his retirement pay. Con Ed's counter-suit was for recovery of $32,000 in bribes taken by the veep. The ruling went that the veep must pay Con Ed one-half the bribes, in return for his $743-month retirement pay.

Granted, this makes news, probably because of Con Ed's business as a public utility and the recent notoriety in which it was involved. Multiply this incident by the thousands of times it happens in the private sector and it is little wonder so many of our youth (as well as middle agers and the elderly) despair at the way business is conducted. Credibility gap — in every phase of life!

Hilarita Project Referendum Sought

Referring to the I-J article of March 24, "No Sparks Fly . . . Hilarita."

I formulated the questionaire on Tiburon Ecumenical Association's agenda at their information meeting of March 23. The council had five days to prepare the answers, and I had been promised that answers would be supplied by qualified authorities. Mr. E. G. Weed, president of the TEA, answered most of the questions himself. . .

The maximum occupancy of the proposed project shows 510 occupants of which approximately 286 would be children. Would there be difficulties in absorbing a large number into the Reed School district? Total taxes from Hilarita would be approximately $34,000 of which Tiburon would receive about $1800 per year. Cost of services (police, fire dept., schools, etc.) would be a tax burden to the rest of the community.

The stipulation in the option agreement between the Housing Authority and the TEA states "not less than 20 per cent of the units would be leased by the Marin Housing Authority". TEA has now admitted that this percentage has been raised to 30 per cent and can possibly go higher. This can mean over 40 per cent of the occupants may be on welfare.

Contrary to the statement of the TEA Fact Sheet, the Parish Council of St. Hilary's Catholic Church did not formally endorse Hilarita.

I questioned the statement by TEA "to control the types of people allowed into Hilarita by careful screening by a control group". The Housing Authority cannot legally qualify applicants except economically and neither can the TEA in regard to low-income applicants.

Many concerned citizens like myself approved of the original concept of 56 units. However, in order for the TEA to control the project, the financial feasiblity forced the concept to increase first to 100 units and then to 112 units. This was more than twice the maximum number of units per acre limited by the Tiburon Master Plan, approximately 8 per cent of the total population.

"We all feel that this is a matter of great importance to the community. The current plan should be subject for a public referendum. Many like myself are skeptical of the verbal assurances of Mr. Weed and the TEA.

When Dr. McBride Gives Warning, It Would Pay To Take Heed

(Reprinted from Macon, Ga., News)

Dr. William McBride of Sydney, Australia, says a drug called Imipramine — and marketed in this country under the brand name of Tofranil — may be responsible for the birth of armless babies.

We should listen carefully to what Dr. McBride has to say. The last drug he warned us about was Thalidomide.

According to the doctor, Imipramine affects the nervous system, destroying the nerve cells that supply limbs to unborn babies. The orange tablet is proscribed for women who suffer from fits of crying, fatigue, sleeplessness or headaches, and industry sales reports indicate that 3.6 million prescriptions were sold in the U.S. last year at an estimated retail value of $12.4 million.

Dr. McBride says there are at least three cases of armless babies born in Sydney in which it has been established that the mothers had taken Imipramine in early pregnancy.

Of course, that is three too many. The Food and Drug Administration should waste no time looking into the validity of Dr. McBride's claim. And if what he says is true, Imipramine should be taken out of the hands of pregnant women.

Nixon's Rhetoric Adds Fuel To Controversy Over Busing

ST. LOUIS — It would be pleasant to think that President Nixon's belated venture into the politics of the busing controversy had quieted the antibusing contagion. The evidence in Missouri, a border state with a boot heel reflecting the Deep South is uite to the contrary.

The candidates for governor — no Senate seat is up this year — are all proclaiming their undying opposition to the heinous practice of busing school children. They repeat the alleged evils of this assault on the rights of free Americans like a litany learned from some calamitous encounter with a bus at an early age.

Getting into the middle of the act, Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, the leading candidate for governor in the Democratic primary, introduced an antibusing resolution in the state Senate calling for a constitutional convention to approve an amendment putting a stop to busing for racial integration. It was passed virtually without opposition. The Missouri House is expected to follow suit before the Legislature adjourns.

IF TWO-THIRDS of the states adopt resolutions with identical language, a convention must be called to pass on the amendment. Just here the ambivalence of the President's televised essay on busing is painfully evident. Waiting to speak out until after the Florida primary, he proposed a moratorium on court-ordered busing with the explanation that the process of amending the Constitution is too slow to put an end to forced busing.

This will not deter the Blackwells, the quick-on-the-draw politicians, who see a chance to exploit an issue inflamed out of all reason by fear and frustration reflected through the prism of race. That 36 states will adopt identical resolutions is unlikely. Although several have already done so. Yet the threat is there as it was in the prayer and the one-man, one-vote amendments.

It is a threat against the Constitution of the United States. The fundamental charter of our freedoms — the embodiment of the vision of the founding fathers. If the Constitution is to be frivolously amended at the whims of political passions of the moment, as in the false issue of busing, the anchor of our faith and our hope will soon be no more.

When the prayer amendment was attracting what appeared to be the required support of the states, the perils in that kind of contstitutional convention were all too apparent. If an amendment overruling the Supreme Court and allowing prayer in the public schools or against busing, why not an amendment to require that all athletic events be carried on network television or an amendment probibiting mini skirts above a certain length? The possibilities are infinite if the Constitution is to be used as a vehicle to enforce the convictions of a passing majority.

AN ANALYSIS in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch showed that in the 1970-71 school year 54 per cent of public schools were bused at a cost of 833 million. But as the director of the transportation in the state Department of Education, William E. Haynes, pointed out, the reasons were important. "I am not aware," Hayes said, "of any school district in the state that buses children to achieve racial integration."

Children are bused in Missouri for a variety of reasons. Busing in St. Louis is designed to relieve crowding and to help handicapped children. The St. Louis Board of Education, fearing the flight of ever-more whites to the suburbs, has refused to bus children to suburban schools for the sole purpose of ingegration.

As the Missouri experience shows, busing is a tool for achieving many objectives. It may be quite irrelevant to integration or it may be a temporary expedient to correct the serious imbalance in educational opportunity as between white and black.

The Department of Justice has a suit pending in federal district court in St. Louis challenging the racial make-up of schools in suburban Kinholch. Black parents in North St. Louis have filed a similar suit contesting the racial composition of the city's schools. The Nixon moratorium may put a stop to that kind of action. But the antibusing contagion has been inflamed by the Nixon rhetoric.

Clumsy Handling Of ITT Case Leaves Many Nagging Questions

It is hard to imagine a major public issue being handled more clumsily than the ITT case. Nobody comes out with a whole skin, from the attorney general-designate who had to have his memory "refreshed" on so many issues to the corporate officer who ordered the shredding of the documents in its Washington office.

Perhaps, because of all the clumsiness, we may never know the facts. There are surface issues, and there are more fundamental ones. On the surface, it is not clear that the Justice Department's decision not to press a case against ITT's acquisition of the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. was a bad decision. If it wasn't, it's hard to see how malfeasance was involved. Also on the surface, was a political convention ever held when the big hotels were not pressured to contribute?

But the basic issues are less easy to downgrade. They concern the relationship of big business to government, and the role of great conglomerates in the national economy. These are continuing questions, and they must not be dropped.

BIG BUSINESS works hard at its relationship to government. ITT was on good terms with the Johnson adminstration. Its major expansion, as Nixon defenders point out, came under previous presidents. Indeed, there have been many complaints that the Nixon team was less friendly to business than its predecessors. This may be because with President Nixon's election, business expected the milennium. They soon found out differently, although a door to the White House through Peter Flanagan has been opened wide. Mr. Flanagan may be one of the casualties of the ITT situation.

Business has a right of access to government. But of course it has no right to special privilege of any sort. Its interests are ex parte, naturally. The government has to protect the public interest, which is bound to be broader than the selfish interest and necessarily inhibitory of many of business's own concerns.

Vast conglomerates and the takeover process by which they grow make possible great abuses. They distort the economic system and the normal operation of a competitive and free market. Like the tax laws, which make it advantageous to buy up failing companies in order to obtain tax losses, the conglomerate process sometimes repeals both common sense and sound economics.

A PARTICULAR COMPANY in the hands of a conglomerate can play havoc with its competition by leaning on the strengths of its parent. Is that fair? A conglomerate can milk its component elements, to the detriment of the investors who have put their money in good faith in these components. There are many other distortions of the economic process, not to mention the menace of bigness in terms of power.

Conglomerates in a much smaller scale can be more reasonably defended. They spread risk and benefit. And yet even the most modest of them do something to the healthy influence of straight competition between like businesses.

Until the ITT case is somewhat clarified, it will continue to harm President Nixon's reelection chances. It will cast a cloud over Atty.-Gen.-designate Richard Kleindienst's service in that high and delicate office. The Democrats are split on the issue, and many of them will vote for Mr. Kleindienst's confirmation. Their relations with ITT in its Hartford takeover efforts are not above suspicion.

We need fresh air and straight information. So far, we haven't had much of either.

It Takes Some Monkey Business To Liven Council Meeting

Many city council meetings are boring. Councilmen drone on and on conducting the routine business of the city. Most meetings are little more than gab sessions.

Once in awhile some issue arouses public interest enough to draw a crowd to the meeting, but generally only a few persons including the reporters attend the meetings. Before elections, some candidates attend meetings to see what kind of job they are running for. But many do not even attend then.

At a recent San Anselmo City Council meeting, one candidate showed up with his wife and a pet monkey on a leash. The monkey kept that meeting from getting dull by climbing up and down a curtain at the rear of the council chambers.

It would be appropriate to say that the council was up to some monkey business, but it wasn't.

MARIN COUNTY is undertaking a program of construction of bicycle and horse trails. We agree that it is a good idea to get bicycles off the streets wherever possible. It is also a good idea to get horses off the streets because occasionally they will shy at cars.

The only thing we object to is the means of financing these trails.

Why should the public be taxed for trails that benefit only a few?

Wouldn't it be more appropriate to license bicycles and horses and use that money to pay for the trails?

INCREDIBLE AS IT may seem, work has actually started on the Novato freeway bypass!

When completed, it will eliminate the only traffic lights on Highway 101 between the Golden Gate Bridge and Willits. It will also speed up commute traffic from the north to San Francisco.

The old highway in Novato was a bottleneck for traffic long before the city incorporated. It was one of the main reasons for incorporation of the city.

Even after incorporation, the question was not settled. There were years of haggling on where the freeway route should go. At one time the state Division of Highways has proposed routes labeled from A through M. It finally settled on the J route, the one that goes north just east of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad in the center of the city.

This route required two crossings of the railroad and considerable cutting of hills and filling of swamp land. For years, the plan was known and no one did anything about it.

Suddenly, after the funds have become available for the project, a last-minute try by a group of environmentalists to stop it in the courts failed.

So the $14 million project finally is under way and, barring something unforeseen at this point, should take traffic around the heart of Novato in about three years.

Candidates Need Ingenuity To Get Some Press Coverage

WASHINGTON — When you get right down to it, the Democratic primary races are really a fight for press space and free television time. Because there are so many candidates in the race and none of them has said anything new since they started running, it's very hard for a presidential aspirant to get on the tube or in the papers unless he does something unique.

Mayor John Lindsay, for example, spent the night sleeping on the couch of a $6,000-a-year worker in Milwaukee "to identify with the little man." He was offered the worker's bed, but Lindsay said he'd rather sleep on the couch because he tossed and turned a lot at night.

As time goes on, each candidate's staff is going to have to escalate the type of stunt which will attract press and TV coverage.

I CAN IMAGINE in the next few months the following conversation in a candidate's office:

"Senator, we've come out with a dandy idea which will get us on the local CBS station. We've entered your wife in a roller derby Saturday night against the Bloodhawks."

"My wife can't roller skate."

"It doesn't make any difference as long as she can fight. We've set it up so 'Hated Hanna,' the captain of the Bloodhawks, pulls your wife's hair out. Then your wife hits her in the solar plexus and Hated Hanna will go right over the railing.

"Two other Bloodhawks will attack your wife from the rear and start stomping on her, but her teammates will come to your wife's aid and kick the two across the rink."

"I'm not sure Penelope is up to that."

"It's essential, senator. This state is bananas about roller derbies, and if your wife gets beaten up by the Bloodhawks, we'll pick up 5 per cent in sympathy votes alone."

"Well, I'm going to go there to see that Penelope doesn't get hurt needlessly."

"YOU CAN'T, senator. We've booked you to perform a heart transplant at the General Hospital on the same evening."

"A heart transplant?"

"Yes, we've found a retired factory worker who says you can operate on him. It will be a good chance for you to dramatize your concern for the lack of decent medical treatment in the country. The NBC station is sending out a film crew, and Sander Vanocur will cover it live."

"All right, if you think it will help. Tell my wife I'll meet her back at the hotel after the operation."

"Oh, we forgot to tell you. You're not sleeping at the hotel Saturday night. You're sleeping at the zoo. They have a white leopard out there that everyone is crazy about, and we think if you spend a night with him you'll get your picture on every front page in the state."

"Good grief, isn't there any other way of getting exposure?"

"BELIEVE US, senator, if there were, we wouldn't put you through all this. Now, tomorrow morning you have to be at the state fair with Penelope at 9 sharp."

"That shouldn't be so difficult."

"You've been entered as a couple in the sky-diving championships."

"We're in the sky-diving championships?"

"You're not competing. You're just starting the show. Both of you jump out of a plane at 2,000 feet, free fall for a thousand feet, and then yank on your parachutes. ABC bought the idea sight unseen."

State's Taxable Sales Reach $13 Billion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Board of Equalization reported yesterday taxable sales in California during the fourth quarter last year reached an all-time high of $13 billion, up 13 per cent from the previous year.

The board said it was the largest year-to-year percentage increase for any fourth quarter since 1955.

A major increase for the increase during the final three months of 1971 was a 39 per cent year-to-year gain in sales by new car dealers who accounted for 10.5 per cent of all taxable transactions.

The board noted a "resurgence" in demand for big merchandise such as automobiles, mobile homes, boats and houses—items for which longterm installment payments are used. It said that proportionally consumers spent less in the stores featuring lower priced items.

Candidates Reply To Youth Paper

The fourth issue of "Free Youth," a newspaper sponsored by the Marin County Youth Commission, was released yesterday devoting the bulk of its space to the approaching June 6 election.

Included in the issue were responses from supervisorial candidates to the newspaper's question of why youth should support the various candidates.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., incumbent from the Second District, urged youth to look at his record and "vote for me if you think my record deserves it."

Meanwhile, his two challengers — Barbara Boxer and Dr. William J. Filante — appealed directly to youth for support.

Mrs. Boxer, a Greenbrae housewife, said she represents "no 'special interests.'" I owe no political debts and will push for an enforceable countywide plan which will stop the 'Los Angelization' of our county." She added that she also supports low-cost housing for students.

Filante, however, said his "ability and training as a physician to seek out causes and find true remedies for problems not just emotional responses," deserves the support of youth.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, seeking reelection to his Third District seat, reminded youth that "I was the only supervisor to defend the first issue of 'Free Youth.'"

James Dougan of San Rafael, seeking the ourth District seat being vacated by Supervisor Louis H. Baar, said, "When elected I will endeavor to work with and assist young adults in perfecting government by eliminating nonsensical waste in spending."

Another Fourth District contender, attorney Gary T. Giacomini of Woodacre, simply urged those interested in supporting him to call his headquarters.

The only woman running in the Fourth District, women's liberationist Patricia Maginnis, called for support because women and youth have been "ostracized in the decision making process" in the past.

The final candidate responding, Michael Peevey, also in the Fourth District, called for a "coalition behind my campaign which will not only win in June but offer basic leadership in the future . . ."

The newspaper, circulated on every Marin High School campus, also includes a new column, "Pitchforks and Poppies."

Recipient of the first pitchfork was the Independent-Journal "for its consistent editorial policies." While excluding any examples, the newspaper said "The youth of Marin County can almost always count on you to oppose anything constructively offered by them."

Poppies went to "those organizations attempting to help Marin's young people."

Committee Kills 'Equal Rights' Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —With Senate leader James R. Mills declaring the legislature wouldn't "turn and run on a phony issue," a Senate committee Wednesday killed a proposal to ratify the so-called "equal rights" amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

On a surprise 2-2 vote, the Senate Rules Committee rejected the resolution by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles. It needed three votes to clear the committee.

"The problem is simply that of somebody hanging a good name on a bad piece of legislation," Mills, committee chairman, told newsmen moments after voting against the measure. The San Diego Democrat said he feared no women's backlash.

The issue now shifts to the Assembly, where the Rules Committee of the lower house takes up a similar resolution Thursday by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park.

Mills and Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, cast the two "no" votes in committee, while Sens. Robert J. Stevens, R-Los Angeles, and Joseph J. Kennick, D-Los Angeles, voted "yes." A fifth committee members, Sen. Stephen Teale, D-Rail Road Flat, was absent but was reported against it.

Explaining the committee's action, Mills said it "just indicates the legislature of the largest state is not going to turn and run on a phony issue."

The proposed 27th amendment to the federal constitution, which already has been ratified by a handful of states, would guarantee women equal rights with men. Three-fourths of the 50 states must ratify it to become law.

The soft-spoken Mills said many of his Senate colleagues agree with his assessment of the proposed amendment as "poor legislation."

"It has gone as far as it has," Mills added, "because many congressmen and legislators are afraid of the consequences of voting against it."

The Rules Committee members had been urged privately by other senators to stop the legislation there so that they wouldn't have to face the issue on the floor, Mills said.

About a dozen women's rights proponents had gathered hoping to testify in support of the measure but the committee moved quickly to a vote on Kennick's motion and rejected it without debate.

Rapid Transit Budget Hiked

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Staff members have suggested a $26.3 million budget for the Bay Area Rapid Transit District for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The budget was $12.3 million for the current year.

Manager B.R. Stokes told the district's administration committee Tuesday the increased budget is necessary because additional employes will have to be hired when district trains start running.

Stokes said for budgeting purposes he "assumed" trains would start Sept. 1 on the southern Alameda line between Oakland and Fremont.

Imitation Bomb Policy Advances

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Criminal Justice Committee has approved and sent to the lower house floor a bill making it illegal to mail an imitation bomb.

But the committee amended the measure by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, Tuesday to restrict its provisions to a fake bomb mailed with the "malicious" intent of convincing the recipient that it is a real explosive.

EOC Board Rejects Breakup Of Agency

Aides Vow Fight Despite Fund Woes

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A move to disband the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council was rejected last night by the poverty agency's board which vowed to struggle on despite mounting financial troubles.

The proposal, offered by board member William J. Bielser as a means of starting anew with another poverty agency, was defeated on a 9-5 vote with seven abstentions.

Board members opposing the proposal argued that if the EOC was scrapped it was doubtful that another agency would ever be created in Marin to replace it.

The agency, under fire from the federal government for unauthorized use of funds and a lack of accountability for spending, has until June to clean up or face financial strangulation.

The already black picture was darkened even more last night with disclosure that another poverty agency is poised to file suit against the EOC while a second is demanding return of a $5,700 donation.

According to board member J. Kevin Donovan, the Marin County Legal Aid Society board is expected to authorize suit tonight against the EOC to regain about $5,000.

Donovan, a member of the society board also, said that the board's position appears to be that it was "bamboozled" out of $5,000 by the EOC for administrative supervision which was never done.

Following closely on the heels of that disclosure was an announcement that Freedom From Hunger, a nonprofit group supporting nutrition among the poor, has demanded return of a donation made last year.

The group, which in Marin has sponsored the "walk for survival" campaigns, has charged that its $5,700 donation was "inappropriately used" by the EOC.

Bielser's proposal to junk the agency and start anew gained immediate support from board member Harold Stockstad, long an outspoken supporter of the EOC.

Stockstad, said, however, that he had "reluctantly reached the conclusion that there is no hope of continuing."

He charged the board with having forgotten the poor, which the agency serves, during the last few months of controversy.

"This thing is dead, dead as dead can be," he said. "That's the reality of it."

He said that to continue would be "like pulling the wings off a dead fly."

"Let's end this right now and start planning (for a new agency)," Stockstad said.

The proposal to phase out the agency brought strong reaction from other board members and

U.S. Bombs North; Saigon Threat

SAIGON (UPI)—The United States today carried out heavy retaliatory air and naval bombardments of North Vietnam. In the south, four Communist divisions were reported moving into areas north and northwest of Saigon in the most serious threat to the capital since the 1968 Tet offensive.

Hanoi Radio said 10 American planes were shot down in the first hours of the bomb attack north of the Demilitarized zone (DMZ.)

UPI field reports said three F4 Phantoms, an unidentified jet fighter plane and an HH53 Super Jolly Green Giant rescue helicopter were known to have been shot down on both sides of the DMZ. The U.S. command reserved comment.

The field reports said two F4s were downed north of the DMZ and that the third was shot down just north of Quang Tri City, 18 miles south of the DMZ, by the first missiles known to have been installed in South Vietnam. The HH53 was shot down while trying to rescue the two pilots.

Military sources said four full divisions of 40,000 to 50,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were in Tay Ninh, Binh Long and Binh Duong Provinces just above Saigon and that heavy fighting was under way in regions 60 to 75 miles from Saigon. Some of the Communist troops moved in from Cambodia.

The U.S. command said the bombardment of North Vietnam by fleets of Air Force and U.S. Navy planes—up to 500 in all— and by five U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers equipped with missiles and five-inch rifles was in retaliation for the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam.

The command said the strikes were being carried out because the invasion had endangered the lives of the diminishing American troops in South Vietnam. It was the first time since the 1968 bomb halt ordered by President Lyndon B. Johnson that the bombings were not called "protective reaction" strikes.

Military sources said Communist troops were closing in on three sides on the district town of Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, and that casualties on both sides were "very heavy" as the outumbered South Vietnamese fought back.

Thousands of government troops formerly in the areas guarding Saigon were flown earlier to Quang Tri Province in the northern part of South Vietnam to stem the Communist invasion across the DMZ border, and the military sources said the defenders were outnumbered by a full division.

"The III Corps Region (the 11 provinces surrounding Saigon) has no reserves left," one military sources said. "They are short on tactical air, short on helicopter redeployment and resupply aircraft and are getting no B52 strikes." (The B52s also have been concentrating on Quang Tri Province.)

The sources said government commanders in the II Corps region had appealed to the U.S. command for help. One American general also urged the high command to give more American air and artillery support to the beleaguered government troops.

The four Communist divisions involved in the new offensive were the 4th North Vietnamese Division, the 9th North Vietnamese Division—considered Hanoi's toughest—the newly formed Binh Long Division and the 7th North Vietnamese Division. Saigon has three understrength divisions in the area.

Military sources said the 9th Division had crossed the border from Cambodia and was moving toward Binh Long, 67 miles due north of Saigon. The 5th Division was battling near Loc Ninh and was threatening An Loc, the capital of Binh Long Province 60 miles north of Saigon. The other two divisions were in the same general area.

UPI correspondent Leon Daniel reported that the Communists were attempting to overrun strategic government positions along Highway 13 and that they had become so bold that on Wednesday night they ran a truck convoy with lights on a dirt road leading into Highway 13.

At one point the government was forced to close Highway 13 at Chon Thanh, 40 miles north

CHINA BOUND

Keeper Bids Farewell To Milton And Matilda

By MARC NURRE

A former director of the Louise A. Boyd museum of Natural Science in San Rafael until more than a year ago, Maxwell lives with his wife and two children in Terra Linda. He is now a zoologist at the San Francisco Zoo, where both musk oxen were born.

Milton and Matilda have been Maxwell's charges — especially after the announcement of their destination. He's sorry to see them go, he said, but in return the zoo will get credit from the government toward purchase of a rare Okapi, a foraging animal.

Nixon's gift of the musk oxen was in exchange for two giant pandas from the Chinese people to the United States. The pandas will be kept at the National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C., according to Maxwell.

The two young musk oxen were supposed to be shipped on March 1, but Milton caught a respiratory infection and had to be nursed to health before making the 26-hour jet journey.

"I slept with him several nights when he was sick, we were that worried about him," Maxwell said. Eventually, Milton's health improved, but Maxwell continued the tender loving care. "We've been babysitting him, the veterinarian and I," he said. "We come in every morning and take him for a walk."

Although Milton is not quite a year old and weighs 102 pounds, "I have a hard time keeping up with him when he's on the end of a rope," Maxwell said.

His sister, Matilda, is nearly two, weighs nearly 400 pounds, has developed her horns and is not nearly so friendly as Milton. Consequently, she dosn't get as much attention from the public.

When Milton is out on a run, he roots through the grass in search of his favorite delicacy

Pollution Worse, Engineer Claims

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Air pollution in the Bay Area is far worse than reported by smog officials, a chemical engineer reported yesterday. (Another smog control story, page 5.)

His criticism would mean that air quality in the region does not meet minimum standards set by the state and federal governments, thus opening the way for government intervention to impose tougher regulations on the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

It also would mean more smog alerts.

The analysis by Dr. David T. Mage would explain long-time complaints by citizens and even some district directors that air quality often seems not nearly so good as indicated by district measuring equipment.

Mage, an assistant professor at San Jose State College's school of engineering, disclosed what he termed "serious deficiencies" before district directors at their monthly meeting. The district's air quality monitoring equipment, he said, was too far from many heavily polluted areas, too high above ground, incorrectly calibrated and inaccurate.

His report won immediate praise from several directors, and promises that it will be given to "outside" experts with no vested interest in verifying or refuting its criticism of the district.

Mage's report came immediately after the board adopted a complicated new system for daily reporting of pollution levels. His report thus challenged the reliability of the new system, based on measurements

'U.S. STARTS WAR AGAIN' —PARIS REDS

PARIS (UPI) — Viet Cong Foreign Minister Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh today said President Nixon has started the Vietnam war "all over again" by ordering U.S. land, air and sea support for the South Vietnamese fighting the new Communist offensive.

The North Vietnamese delegation, at the same time, denied its troops had invaded the south although it said all Vietnamese "are entitled to exercise their legitimate right of self-defense to punish the U.S. aggressors."

Both the Viet Cong and Hanoi spokesmen also urged Nixon to end the American boycott of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Catholic School Pledge By Nixon

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — President Nixon said today that collapse of Catholic and other nonpublic schools would be catastrophic to the nation and pledged federal help to keep them operating.

Nixon renewed the pledge he made last summer to Catholic educators that he would work to save the financially beleaguered parochial school system. And for the first time, he said his long promised education finance reform plan would include "specific measures to preserve the nonpublic schools system."

The President made the promise in a speech to some 10,000 nuns, teachers and priests attending the 69th annual convention of the National Catholic Education Conference, which heard more disquieting reports of the woes of Catholic education —with costs soaring and enrollment dropping.

He spoke coincidentally on the same day and in the same city where a three-judge federal panel today declared unconsitutional a Pennsylvania law providing for state reimbursement of parents of children attending nonpublic schools.

Nixon said collapse of nonpublic schools would be catastrophic from several standpoints but particularly to big city public school systems which would have to absorb a new load of students.

He added:

"For many Americans, allegiance to their nonpublic community schools is their strongest single tie to city life,"

Nixon Will Spend Weekend In Florida

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has decided to fly to his bayside villa today at Kay Biscayne, Fla., for the weekend. The White House said he would continue to keep in close touch with the situation in Southeast Asia while in Florida.

It was also announced that the President and Mrs. Nixon have accepted an invitation of the Shah of Iran to visit the Asian nation May 30-31 following Nixon's visit to Moscow.

Marin's Thirsty Reservoirs Not Helped By Late Rains

Marin's thirsty reservoirs benefitted only mildly from the late spring storm that hit the county yesterday and today, and a Marin Municipal Water District official said some form of voluntary summer rationing program still is under consideration.

William R. Seeger, district general manager, said, however, the rationing would be only a "mild" one, if and when it comes. "We'll probably advise people not to waste water, let it run into the street and that kind of thing," he said. In any case, no program would begin until after May 1, he said.

Seeger said the district will have a much better idea of how serious the water shortage will be by the end of the month "because there's not much chance of rain after that time."

District officials, fretting over a reservoir supply far below normal levels, previously have said an enforced rationing program would be considered if a voluntary effort failed.

The recent storm, which left more than an inch of rain in some parts of the county, raised district reservoir levels to a total of about 13 billion gallons, J. Dietrich Stroeh, manager of engineering, said today. Capacity is 17 billion gallons and district officials have pointed out reservoirs normally are filled at this time of year.

"It helps, everything helps," Stroeh said of the storm. "But as far as the total outlook, it's still about the same."

The showers, accompanied by blustery winds that reached 45 miles per hour in Tiburon, caused auto accidents and minor storm damage in the Marin-Southern Sonoma area.

Rainfall figures for a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today were: Woodacre, 1.14; Ross, .93 of an inch; Santa Venetia, .75; Tamalpais Valley, .24; Petaluma, .23; Novato and Mill Valley, .22; Sausalito, .16, and Tiburon, .12. San Rafael recorded .18 for a 24-hour period ending at noon, bringing the seasonal total to 17.09, nearly half the winter average.

U.S. Air Strikes Against North 'Will Be Restricted'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American air strikes against North Vietnam in retaliation for an invasion of South Vietnam are likely to be restricted to the area just north of the Demilitarized Zone, according to military sources.

The sources indicated Wednesday it was unlikely there would be widespread attacks deep into the North such as those ordered by former President Lyndon B. Johnson. Their comments occured before American planes started bombing the north today.

While the sources indicated in advance that a bombing campaign against the North was inevitable, they said it was "unrealistic" to think that American ground troops might become involved in the fight.

The sources also said dispatching U.S. Marines to the war zone would be "absurd" although there are extensive Marine forces based on Okinawa.

Meanwhile, 12 House Democrats have asked President Nixon to avoid any action such as bombing North Vietnam that "widens the war" in Indochina, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has called for an immediate ceasefire and a U.S. return to the Paris peace talks.

The House members, including Ronald V. Dellums of Alameda County and Phillip Burton of San Francisco, made their appeal Wednesday, urging

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Drugs Less Popular

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Cigarettes and alcoholic beverages are more popular with the younger generation than marijuana and illegal drugs, a University of Michigan researcher said today.

Lloyd Johnston, director of a nationwide study by the U-M's Institute for Social Research (ISR) on drug use among young persons, said youth attitudes toward drugs are more conservative than usually is thought.

The ISR researchers asked a representative sample of 1,600 young men a year after they had graduated from high school questions about previous use of drugs.

The survey was conducted in 1970 and less than 25 per cent of those questioned admitted to having experience with drugs while in high school, Johnston said.

Aid Handicapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee voted Wednesday to liberalize the welfare system for the nation's aged, blind and disabled, in a move that would lift 4 million of them above the poverty level.

Adults in those categories now receive an average payment of $76 a month. They would be assured an income of $130 a month for single people and $195 for couples under the committee's unanimous action.

At an increase of $3.5 billion in federal welfare expenditures, this would add 4.3 million persons to the 3.1 million adults who now draw benefits from the states.

Ex-Policeman Awarded Pension

NEW YORK (UPI) — Edward (Popeye) Egan, the narcotics detective turned actor who was dismissed from the New York City police force seven hours before he was to retire, can collect a $6,800 annual pension, a judge ruled yesterday.

Egan

New York State Supreme Court Justice George Stark ruled that the police department — which has been at odds with Egan ever since his exploits were dramatized in the hit movie "The French Connection" — must pay Egan his pension.

Stark said the department's action against Egan was "disproportionate" to his alleged offenses — failing to observe department regulations by not keeping court dates and appointments with prosecutors and not turning over evidence such as narcotics and guns seized in raids.

"It's a big relief," said Egan in his Hollywood office at Paramount Studios, where he is an executive.

C5A Attacked Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force's controversial C5A transport plane was under new attack in Congress today on the basis of a government report which says it is still beset by major deficiencies and is ready to fly only about half the time.

"It is clear from the report that the Air Force has bought a $60 million plane that is coming apart," said Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md. Long released a report on the C5A made by the General Accounting Office, the agency which monitors government spending for Congress.

Lindsay On Ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay's name must remain on the June 6 California primary ballot, even though he has withdrawn from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"The law doesn't provide any way for him to get off the ballot," Deputy Secretary of State Tom Quinn said Wednesday. "Once you're certified for the ballot, that's it."

Irish Peace Sought

Belfast, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Roman Catholic politicians, long overshadowed in Northern Ireland by bombers and gunmen, today launched a peace drive they hoped would break the Irish Republican Army's grip on Roman Catholic ghettos.

"We intend a massive campaign to win support for peace," said Gerry Fitt, leader of the Social, Democratic and Labor party SDLP, the political voice of Northern Ireland's half million-Roman Catholic minority.

Hostage Released

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Warden Hiram Schoonfield walked unarmed into an inmate-held cellblock of the Baltimore City jail and talked about 200 rebellious prisoners into surrendering a hostage guard.

"I just told them how it was and they backed off," Schoonfield said.

About 175 riot-gear equipped policemen, some carrying teargas grendades, stood at the entrance of the 75-year-old jail Wednesday night awaiting word from Schoonfield.

"There was no negotiating. They had some demands, but I just told them that we're going to have to straighten things out and to let the guard go," Schoonfield said.

Meeting Accepted

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh said today India has accepted in principle a summit meeting between Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Pakistan President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto to solve the two nations' post-war problems.

Singh, who returned today after three days of talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow, said talks between special emissaries of the two leaders were first necessary to prepare the ground for the summit.

Kosygin Visiting

BEIRUT (UPI) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived in Iraq today for a visit Arab political sources said could lead to a significant extension of Moscow's influence in the Middle East and a treaty between the two nations. Iraq has not been formally aligned with a major power for 14 years.

Big Windstorm Gouges Vancouver, Killing Six

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — High winds hopscotched through this southwest Washington city Wednesday, ravaging a shopping center and ripping apart an elementary school minutes before students were to return from lunch. Six persons died and 250 were injured.

Hundreds of children were returning to Peter X. Ogden Elementary School when hail and high winds hit the building. None of the children was killed, although about 100 were injured.

Jason Spicer, 10, a fourth grader, said, "It was raining bricks." The boy had a bandage over a head injury and told of being pinned under the falling bricks. But he was freed by two men and made his way to safety dodging around downed utility lines.

Power and telephone lines in the area were blown down and Clark County Public Utility District officials estimated it would take most of today to restore service. Telephone communications between Vancouver and the outside were on an emergency basis.

The Coast Guard said the wind was a tornado, but the Weather Bureau said it could not confirm that description. Tornados are rare in the Pacific Northwest.

Vancouver's East Side bore the brunt of the storm. The wind smashed buildings and uprooted signs, then lifted up to spare other vulnerable structures, only to land again and ravage stores and homes a few blocks away.

The storm raked a wide area of northwest Oregon, but damage was not as extensive as in Vancouver. The wind was part of a series of storms which have buffeted the Northwest this week.

Mrs. Clifton Clevidence, 25, Vancouver, her daughter Denise, 5, and a one-week-old infant died when the six inch concrete walls of a supermarket collapsed. Mrs. Wilbur LeRoy Adams, Vancouver, and her son Brian Keith Adams, about 3, died in a Ware-Mart store and Sharon Graser, 30, was killed when the roof of a bowling alley collapsed.

Triple Explosion: 8 Die Inside Food Plant

DALLAS (UPI)—Eight persons were killed in a triple explosion and fire at a food processing plant Wednesday. Firemen said an unstable chemical used in preserving bread could have caused it.

Seven persons were injured, including one seriously.

It was the worst explosion or fire in Dallas since 1946 when 10 persons died in a downtown hotel blast.

Fire Department spokesman Gene Myers said the explosion occurred near a storage area in the Pennwalt Corp. plant containing 15-20 tons of potassium bromate.

"That chemical is volatile and must be kept at a certain temperature and humidity," Myers said. He said the chemical was capable of causing such a blast, but the department has not officially determined the cause.

It took firemen eight hours to recover the bodies, which were buried under tons of rubble.

Nineteen persons escaped the building after the first explosion. The eight victims remained inside the building when the second—and most intense— blast rocked the plant, shattering its walls and damaging seven buildings in the neighborhood.

One Killed As Blast Rips Gas Tank Farm

ATLANTA (UPI)—A thundering explosion ripped through a gas storage tank farm in the Atlanta suburb of Doraville today killing one workman and bathing nearby homes in flames.

At least four other persons, all residents of nearby houses, were injured and three houses were left in charred ruins.

About 300 other homes were evacuated.

Cause of the blast, which triggered a series of lesser explosions, was not immediately determined.

The explosion occurred at the Triangle Refinery, part of a vast complex of storage tanks situated just off Atlanta's busy four-lane perimeter highway, about 15 miles northeast of downtown Atlanta. The tank farm is surrounded by many small houses and is near a large auto assembly plant.

Flames from three of the huge storage tanks shot hundreds of feet in the air and firemen worked frantically hosing down four other tanks to keep them from exploding. Two adjacent tanks — one containing 54,000 barrels of gasoline and the other 35,000 barrels — were in particular danger.

A great pall of black smoke, clearly visible to residents of two counties, rose into the early morning sky and traffic coming into the city from the northeast sector of the metropolitan area was jammed.

The blast occurred shortly before 6 a.m. EST and rattled doors and windows in homes as far as 10 miles away.

Ambulances and fire fighting equipment sped to the scene and scores of law officers from surrounding communities converged on the area and went to work rerouting traffic, helping with evacuation and holding back a mob of sightseers.

Officials closed schools in the area and asked spectators to stay away.

Library Presenting History Slide-Talk

John McLaren Society historian Raymond H. Clary will present a slide-talk on the history of San Francisco's Golden Gate Park at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Corte Madera branch of the Marin County Library.

The program also will be presented at the Novato branch library at 8 p.m. April 18, according to Jacquelyn Mollenkopf, Marin County Free Library reference librarian.

12% Pay Hike Demanded As School Budget Studied

With the Marin County Board of Education amid budget deliberations, its nonteaching employees have demanded a 12.6 per cent pay raise.

According to Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent of county schools, the raise would cost county taxpayers $89,870 a year if grnted to the 127 employees.

In March 1971 the same group requested an 8.3 per cent hike, and after protracted negotiations — interrupted by the wage freeze —received an average 2.8 per cent increase in January. Florence Franklin, a secretary in the board office, is president of the group.

Spain said he met with group representatives yesterday, telling them the county board is now checking with the federal pay board to see if raises that high are permitted.

The group made its request during Monday night's board meeting, and the board turned it over to Spain and Supt. Virgil S. Hollis.

The board tentatively approved about a third of next year's budget Monday night. In the present budget, Spain said, this section required 7.25 cents of the total tax rate of 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. He estimated this section in the new budget would require a tax rate of 6.5 cents per $100, raising $563,643.

This section, Section E, funds seven apparently unrelated accounts, including one for 28 per cent of Hollis's salary ($6,758), one for unemployment insurance ($3,394) and one for reserve funds ($30,000).

Spain said the final hearing on Section E would take place during the first week of August, when the final budget will be up for adoption.

The board also approved the idea of a cost of living increase and a full-paid dental plan for administrative personnel, both tied to consumer price index. Specific details will be presented later, Spain said.

Board members approved an unemployment insurance program for its classified employees, limiting board liability to a maximum of $4,200 per employee per year.

The board set a public budget workshop meeting for 8 p.m. April 18 at the county schools office, 201 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera.

The Marin County Board of Education also:

DEAF — Authorized Hollis to apply for state Department of Education funds for a program to aid hearing-handicapped children aged 18 to 36 months.

FUNDS — Requested $20,000 in federal funds to purchase audio-visual aids.

Vessels Taken From Church

A collection of valuable altar vessels has been taken by thieves who broke into the Church of the Nativity in Marinwood.

Douglas Abel, church warden, said the missing items included three silver chalices and a silver paten. He pleaded for return of the vessels, "no questions asked."

The burglary occurred late Monday or early Tuesday. Windows were broken to gain entry to the church, located at 333 Ellen Drive.

Innocent Plea To Hit-Run Felony Charge

Robert Brian England of San Anselmo pleaded innocent yesterday to felony charges in connection with the running down and killing of teen age girl in Sleepy Hollow last month.

Trial was set for May 30 in Marin Superior Court.

England, 19, is charged with drunken driving and manslaughter in the death of 13-year-old Alene Toneff, daughter of former San Francisco 49er Robert A. Toneff of Sleepy Hollow.

She was walking home with a friend on the shoulder of Butterfield Road March 11 when the girls were hit. The other girl received minor injuries.

England was arrested in his stalled, damaged car nearby.

He is now serving a six-month jail term for violation of probation which required that he not drive a car.

Dominican College Art Work Shown

A collection of art work from Dominican College in San Rafael will be on display through April at Marin Civic Center.

The work, by students at the college, include weavings, oil paintings and water colors. They are located on the first and third floors of the administration building.

ACTION IN VIETNAM — These two UPI Telephoto maps pinpoint action in South Vietnam today. A new defense line near Don Ha has been set up in an effort to hold back the invading North Vietnamese.

of Saigon, but it was reopened later. Eight U.S. advisers were flown out by helicopter from a South Vietnamese artillery base at Quan Loi, just to the east of threatened An Loc.

Lt. Col. Pham Quang My, the district chief of Chon Thanh, told Daniel there were only about 800 government troops in his area and that 12,000 Communists were believed involved in the battle near Loc Ninh.

Fighting also was under way at the provincial capital of An Loc a few miles closer to Saigon.

On the northern front, UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported that the government's Bastogne Combat Base outside Hue came under heavy attack during the day and a South Vietnamese armored relief cblumn ambushed two days ago still was stalled more than a mile from the embattled base.

Kellerman reported that government units today abandoned the Veghel combat base, three miles north of Bastogne and 12 miles south of Hue. He said the withdrawal was "voluntary and there was no fighting in the region" but the 370 troops manning the base could not defend it if the Communists launched a major attack.

Bastogne and Fire Base Anne, already abandoned by the South Vietnamese, were instrumental in the defense of Hue, the country's third largest city.

Trident Safecracker Sentenced To Prison

A safecracker found guilty in connection with the October 1971 amphibious robbery of the Trident restaurant today smilingly listened to a judge tell him he was a "career criminal" before sending him to state prison.

Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court was smiling, too, as he told Edward W. Devaney, 32, that "we don't often see fellows like you.

"I have no doubt that when that day comes that you get into that black limousine (upon release from prison), you'll be right back into someone's safe as soon as you can get the materials."

The judge said that most criminals he sentences are either people from poor back grounds or those who get into trouble with the law because of stupidity but that he considered Devaney different. "You go about your chosen business with a great deal of intelligence," he told the safecracker.

Despite his admiration for Devaney's skill in his field, the judge said he had no recourse but to put him out of circulation as long as possible. He gave him concurrent sentences, 10 to 40 years for safecracking and five to life for armed robbery.

About $50,000 was taken in the Oct. 25, 1971, robbery at the Sausalit restaurant, where three men garbed in scuba gear entered in the predawn hours and blew open a safe.

None of the money was recovered and no one other than Devaney has been prosecuted.

Scuba gear and oxygen tanks later were found on the boat and other incriminating articles including guns and a pair of handcuffs which matched those used on two victims were found in Devaney's $50,000 East Bay home.

Chamber In Support Of Square Sale

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce has endorsed sale of the Courthouse Square for $650,000 to a Sacramento developer and was to meet this afternoon to adopt the resolution it ordered to that effect.

The plans of McKeon Construction Co. would offer "highly desirable" economic returns to downtown San Rafael, according to the proposed draft of the chamber resolution. Jack E. Bucknum, chamber president, said the board members would consider the resolution at 3 p.m. today.

Meanwhile, a team of city and county officials has agreed to meet with McKeon spokesmen at 3 p.m. tomorrow in San Rafael City Hall to review the firm's $650,000 offer for the block — $100,000 below the county's asking price.

McKeon had set an April 3 deadline for action on its offer made March 20. The firm now has extended the deadline to April 15, according to Albert Bianchi, attorney for the firm.

— paper. "He loves peper," said Maxwell.

A crowd of photographers which gathered to see Milton off to the airport this morning found it difficult to get pictures when Milton wouldn't stay far enough away. Instead, he made the round, nibbling on overcoats, skirts and trousers.

"He gets three bottles a day," said Maxwell. Accompanying Milton and Matilda will be bales of alfalfa hay, a month's supply of goat's milk, sacks of feed and a detailed list of instructions on the care and feeding of the adolescent musk ox.

"One thing we're very excited about is that we want to establish contact with our colleagues in China," said Maxwell. He said the San Francisco zoo hopes to get information from the Chinese about how the brother and sister are doing.

The two were scheduled to leave today by Air Force jet from Travis Air Force Base. One thing is sure, according to Maxwell. "He won't understand a word they say when he gets to China."

3 Plead Guilty To Possession Of Marijuana

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony agreed to reduce a felony charge of possessing marijuana in return for the guilty pleas to the misdemeanor charge.

Walter Jerome Haas and Charles Frederick Weck, both 21 and from San Rafael, are to be sentenced May 22, but Judge Samuel W. Gardiner sentenced the other two yesterday.

Rebecca White Burgwin, 21, of San Rafael, and Sereno Samuel Scranton III, 22, of Santa Barbara, each were fined $1,000.

Felony charges of possessing cocaine and opium against Wecks were dismissed.

The four were arrested by drug agents in November after two persons arrested in Oregon with $18,000 told police Haas had sent them to buy a boat.

Agents raided Haas's home and seized 10 pounds of suspected pot, which agents said would have sold for as much as $175 a pound.

he said. "If the schools should close, many of these families would abandon the city for the suburbs. This in turn would further worsen the racial isolation of our central cities — a development we must not permit."

The nation's private schools now educate 5.2 million children, with 4.1 million of them in Catholic schools. Church-affiliated schools enroll more than nine out of every 10 nonpublic students.

Almost all of them face a financial "crisis of the first magnitude," Nixon said, adding that he was "irrevocably committed" to the proposition that "we must and will find ways" to provide help for them.

The President also touched briefly in his text on school busing, reviewing his recent proposals to Congress to declare a moratorium until the middle of next year on court busing degrees and to approve new legislation to curb excessive busing.

POLICY

that U.S. air strikes in the battle zone be limited to protecting American troops "where there is a clear and present danger".

But at the same time Nixon got vocal support from a number of Republicans in Congress for any actions he takes to check the new Communist offensive in Vietnam.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said there was no reason for "panic" and stated that no disaster was imminent for the South Vietnamese "unless we withdraw our aid and naval fire support."

he finds defective.

Mage, who has been studying district methods for several years, said his own checks in San Jose had found pollution levels more than triple those detected by the district's single measuring station in that city.

(The professor reported last year finding carbon monoxide levels 10 to 20 times higher than those detected by the district.)

Another key error at the district's eight monitoring stations, Mage noted, was that measurements are taken as high as 100 feet above the ground. This violates the federal requirement that measurements be of "that portion of the atmosphere, external to buildings, available to the general public."

"The air at 100 feet elevation is not available to the general public," Mage observed. (Marin's single station in San Rafael measures air near the roof top of the two and a half-story structure.)

Air samples should not be taken higher than three meters (about nine feet) above ground, Mage recommended.

He also urged two stations in each location, one near highly polluted areas to measure maximum public exposure and one far removed from any single source of pollution to measure the background levels.

Mage also noted that district employees round off pollution readings, "possibly up or down. There may be a possibility of a constant bias in the data if they are rounded off in a nonscientific manner," he suggested.

Also vital to correct readings, he said, would be calibration of measuring equipment to compensate for delays in detecting sharp increases in pollution. Without such calibration, Mage said, instruments used to enforce district regulations "are inadequate."

Another problem is that charts on instruments measuring sulfur dioxide only run at one inch an hour, making it "extremely difficult and quite inaccurate" to determine if maximum allowable levels have exceeded the maximum of three minutes. Charts should run faster so peak pollution can be detected more accurately, he said.

Mage also faulted the averaging system to compute the health effect of carbon monoxide. The system fails to account for levels known to be harmful to human health, he said.

The measurement of nitrogen oxides, Mage added, "is inaccurate and levels are being underreported" because of faulty methods of chemical analysis.

Mage stressed that his recommendations "are not new technological breakthroughs, but represent applications of well-known techniques from the engineering literature." His recommendations, he said, would provide for "more uniform enforcement of all emitters."

Sausalito City Councilman Wyman Hicks was among several directors praising Mage, saying "you make a lot of sense to me." Hicks suggested Mage's report be checked by federal experts after the district staff has a chance to comment on it.

The district's director of technical services, Milton Feldstein, assured directors that "we are fully aware of these problems and have been working on them for a long time."

County Seeking Student Designs

A trophy design competition for Marin high school students is being sponsored by the Marin County Fair, according to fair manager Marcelle McCoy.

The winning design will be used for trophies presented winners in horticulture, floriculture, arts, crafts, photography, films and other fair events.

Entries are due at the fair office at the Civic Center by May 15, Mrs. McCoy said. The fair will be held from Aug. 31 to Sept. 4.

The winning design will be announced on June 1, and the designer will receive a first edition of the plaque inscribed with his name.

Condition Good From Accident

Ruth Isabel Brown, 62, of 1325 Third Street, was struck by an auto backing out of a driveway while walking on Third Street near D Street shortly before noon Tuesday.

The car's driver, Madelyn Carol Kuczora, 33, of 77 Bolinas Avenue, Ross, according to police, said she did not see the pedestrian until she screamed after being hit by the car.

EOC staff seated in the audience.

"You will be hurting hundreds of people," warned board member Kelly Fister, who said it was apparent that some on the board didn't realize the good the agency provides.

"The board has not taken the time and energy to find out," added Collie Gaines, an employee.

"The board has evidenced all kinds of energy in tearing down this agency," said Robert M. Kent, transportation coordinator, adding it was "too bad" the board hadn't used the same energy to help the agency.

Bielser, meanwhile, continued with unanswered questions of exactly how deep in debt the agency stood, how the agency could survive on limited funding (estimated at about $43,000 for the next six months) and who the agency really was helping.

By junking EOC, he continued, the board would be eligible for a "phase out grant" from the federal government to pay off its bills.

Further, he said, a "planning grant" could be acquired to study the needs and structure of a new agency. His last point was disputed by other board members.

At one point, Bielser was interrupted by Chairman Robert P. Simmons, who said he predicted the financial picture would not be as bleak as painted once a federal audit is completed.

"Your past predictions on the future of this agency have had something to do with the position we're in," Bielser shot back.

After the vote, the board set another meeting for April 18 to continue review o its financial picture.

The board agreed to retain its 25 employees another month whie studying a reduction in force to a size it can afford.

The board also held its annual election of officers, with Barbara Eaton named chairman.

Population Up In Petaluma

Petaluma has gained 2,650 residents in the past 13 months, according to a new census estimate by the state.

The population as of April 1 was set at 29,500 by the state Department of Finance. The last census estimate was set at 26,850 on March 1, 1971.

The estimate is based on new home construction, service connections and vacancy rates.

OBITUARIES

George L. Pavlisin Dies At 48

George L. Pavlisin, an executive for the Michelin Tire Co. in Brisbane, died yesterday at Marin General Hospital after a sudden illness. He was 48.

He had collapsed at his home at 60 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley, and was taken to the hospital, but efforts to revive him failed. The death was apparently of natural causes, according to the Marin County Coroner's office.

A native of Frontier, Wyo., he had lived in Marin County for 12 years and had worked for the tire company for 21 years. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

He is survived by his wife and four daughters, Mary K., Anne, Donna, and Linda Pavlisin, all of Mill Valley, two sisters, Irene Thomas of Sacramento and Mary Peterson of Lake Tahoe, and two brothers, Max and John Pavlisin of Wyoming.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church in Mill Valley and Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tonight at Russell and Gooch Mortuary. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

VALENTINE COX

Valentine M. Cox, 63, a resident of San Rafael for many years, died yesterday in a Bakersfield hospital. She had moved to the Kern County seat only a month ago, and died after a brief illness.

Mrs. Cox worked as a clerk for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael for 20 years. Her husband, the late Leonard Cox, died in 1950.

A native of New York, Mrs. Cox had lived in California for 62 years. She is survived by two sons, Lance Cox and John Barton, both of Bakersfield; a sister, M. Suzanne Miotti of Bakersfield, and a brother, Robert Miotti of Sonora.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Hobson Mortuary Chapel, Bakersfield.

MRS. CLEMENTS

Funeral for Esther McKay Clements, long time San Rafael resident, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. She died Tuesday after a long illness. She was 97.

She was born in Wisconsin and lived in Marin County for the past 20 years. Her late husband, Abner B. Clements, a commander in the U.S. Navy, died in 1927.

Surviving are her sisters, Elizabeth M. Hilton of Greenbrae and Nell M. Locke of Medford, Ore.

Following a private inurnment, her ashes will be returned to Arlington National Cemetery.

C. FRANKLIN

Funeral for Charles Franklin of San Rafael was held yesterday in San Rafael. He died Sunday in a local convalescent home after a short illness. He was 72.

Franklin was born in Cambria, Calif., and was a Navy veteran of World War I. He worked for many years as an owner, operator and dispatcher in the trucking industry.

Survivors include a daughter, Gerda Tonnemacher of Kentfield; a son, Earl Franklin of San Rafael; sisters Blanche Mazur of Los Angeles, Pauline Ritter of Honolulu and Mildred Couch; nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Inglewood.

HAROLD H. JONES

Funeral for Harold Hill Jones of Mill Valley will be at 4 pjm. tomorrow in the Russell and Gooch Funeral Home. Jones, 84, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., he had lived in California and Marin County since 1969, residing at 215 Throckmorton Avenue.

Jones was educated in Buffalo schools and received a civil engineering degree from Cornell University in 1910, then worked as a timber cruiser in Canada until World War I. During the war he served with the New York Guard on the Mexican border and then with the 27th New York Division in France, returning as a captain of field artillery.

Jones logged in British Columbia before joining the James D. Lacey company of Seattle as a timber expert in 1924. He served as inspector of Oregon and Washington State CCC camps in 1933 and was subsequently supervisor of Washington State camps and state fire chief.

He joined the Crown Zellerbach Corporation as a timber purchaser in Portland, Ore., and was later an adivsor to the firm, a job he held until moving to California.

Jones is survived by his wife, Marion Burns Jones and three daughters, Mrs. Henry R. Ferriss of El Cajon, San Diego County; Emily Ross of Sausalito and Betsy B. Jones of New York and five grandchildren.

The family prefers contributions to the H. H. Jones Jr. Memorial Fund, C/O San Diego Trust and Savings Bank, San Diego.

CLARKE C. SMYTH

Private service has been held in San Francisco, for Clarke C. Smyth, 63, of 110 Manor Road, Fairfax, who died unexpectedly Tuesday at a local hospital.

Smyth, born and reared in San Francisco, had lived 11 years in Marin. He was employed by Fluor Utah Construction and Engineering Co., San Francisco.

An accomplished pianist and musician, he performed for several years at the Avalan Ballroom in San Francisco and arranged music for the Anson Weeks Band in the 1930s. He was a member of Musicians Union Local 6.

He is survived by his wife, Elinor G. Smyth; two stepsons, John and Michael Thomas; a son, Clarke A. Smyth, and a daughter, Laura Smyth.

C. JONES

Graveside service for Charles Jones of San Rafael will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

Jones, 72, died Sunday in a local hospital after a long illness.

Move To Fire Lawyer For Smog District Aborted

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A bitterly contested move by some Bay Area smog officials to fire their legal officer has been aborted, it was learned yesterday. (Another smog control story, page 1.)

Air Pollution Control District directors had voted 9-8 last month to fire Matthew S. Walker, falling one vote short of the 10 required to oust him. The anti-Walker faction then hoped the return of the board's 18th member — Solano County Supervisor Robert Scofield, then out of the country — would provide the 10th vote that would dump Walker.

Scofield, however, told the Independent-Journal yesterday that he would not vote to fire Walker.

Scofield said he had read the complete transcript of the March 15 hearing, and that "not enough information" had been presented against Walker to justify his firing.

The district's top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, had charged Walker had failed to cooperate with him. But Walker, when the move to fire him was launched last October, promptly charged Callaghan with shielding industrial polluters.

Walker's charges against Callaghan have been echoed by citizen groups and by director William R. Jelavich, a Mountain View City councilman. Further action against either Walker or Callaghan, however, has been shelved by the board until summer pending completion of a management survey of the district.

A $45,600 contract for the survey was approved yesterday with Cresap, McCormick and Paget Inc. They are to report their findings at the board's July 12 meeting. The contract specifically calls upon the consultants to look into the dispute over Walker and Callaghan.

The board yesterday rejected a request from Jelavich that Callaghan be given a deadline to reply to Jelavich's own charges that the administrator had been a willing tool of polluters.

Also rejected was a demand by the Citizens Against Air Pollution, a San Jose based group, that a public hearing on the charges against Callaghan be held within 30 days.

The citizns group said that after 30 days it will file a malfeasance lawsuit against Callaghan. Its spokesman, Peter B. Venuto, a business professor at San Jose State College, told the I-J that the suit will be filed by the People's Lobby, backers of the Pollution Initiative on the June ballot.

In a related matter, the board voted 6-5 to permit Western Union to release the identity of the anonymous sender of a telegram accusing Walker of a conflict of interest. The telegram, sent to the board in February, said Walker had used an attorney in his divorce who worked for a law firm that represented industry in district matters.

The board dropped the matter, satisfied that no conflict of interest was involved, but the true identity of the sender, an unlocatable "Barry Hastings" never was determined.

Elizabeth Segal, reporter for the Freedom News of Richmond, requested the board approval so she could determine who was "behind the telegram. I think it would be interesting to find out," she said.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors also:

PERMITS — Heard a protest from the Associated Homebuilders of the Greater Eastbay to the pending requirement that all construction be subject to a district permit. The builders charged that the requirement — ordered by the federal government —was "an exercise for environmentalists" and insisted that "housing is not related to air pollution."

PROPOSITION — Postponed, for the second month in a row, discussion of the controversial Pollution Initiative, Proposition 9 on the June ballot.

VACANCIES — Postponed again appointments to fill vacancies on the advisory council. One of the seats has been vacant since last August.

VIOLATIONS — Reported violation notices were issued during the past month for backyard burning against Paul Lucas and Lavonne Woodman, both of Mill Valley. In Petaluma, violation notices were issued against Atlantic Richfield Co., St. Anthony Farms and Royal Tallow and Soap Co.

PHILLIPS — Received report that Phillips Petroleum Co. had asked the district's hearing board for a rehearing on its denial of a variance for the company's terminal in Petaluma. Its storage tanks are not equipped with required floating roofs.

EQUIPMENT — Bought an integrating nephelometer from Meteorology Research Inc. of Altadena, for $5,778 and a carbon monoxide analyzer from Beckman Instruments of Walnut Creek for $3,201.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

TODAY:

3:59 a.m., Petaluma — Fire did minor damage to car at Payran Street and Petaluma Boulevard North, owned by Rod Arnold, 3503 Petaluma Boulevard North, caused by faulty wiring.

Crackdown Set On Nude Bathers

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) —Santa Barbara County authorities, complaining that naked folk by the hundreds are overrunning a local beach, have launched a crackdown.

So far, the sheriff's patrol has arrested 48 bathers in the buff. The haul last weekend included a nude priest, a naked airline vice president and an unclothed deputy district attorney from Los Angeles, officials said.

"Hundreds of people" from all over the state have been congregating at Summerland Beach, said Dislrict Attorney David Minier Wednesday.

"Santa Barbara has become somewhat the Southern California mecca for nude bathers," Minier said.

Last year "the situation got completely out of hand," and so authorities decided this year to launch the crackdown early in the spring "before we were faced with an almost impossible situation with several hundred or thousands of nude bathers on the beach," the district attorney said.

SEALY MOVES FACTORY

AND WESTERN BRINGS THE SAVINGS TO YOU

Once in a great while an unusual opportunity presents itself and we've made a great buy! Such as, Sealy Mattress Co. has moved their factory from Berkeley to Richmond. Sealy decided they might as well start out with some new models and new covers. This has given us the opportunity to bring to our customers the best quality for their dollars in mattresses and box springs. Just because the cover and the name have changed on the outside of their mattress doesn't mean the quality has changed on the inside. The fine Sealy construction is still there! The only thing that has changed is the price. You won't mind paying for any of the 4 best values you will ever get in mattress and box spring sets. Save now on all sizes - twins, doubles; save even more on modern queen and king sizes at Western Furniture. Come in and see our firmly buttoned-down sets with firm support at these exceptional savings. Or our extra-firm quilt mattress sets — that are firmer than the Sealy Posturepedic and yet priced to spare your budget. Choose from 4 groups of mattress sets. High Speed Sun Waves Discovered

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) —A California Institute of Technology graduate student has discovered giant high speed waves, thought to be vast outbursts of sound, in expanding rings from sun spots, a Caltech scientist reported Wednesday.

Dr. Harold Zirin, director of the Big Bear, Calif., solar observatory, in a report to the Solar Division of the American Astronomical Society, said:

Caltech scientists reporting the waves said they are informally called Stein waves after graduate student Alan Stein, who first observed them in movies taken of the sun from Big Bear.

SECONDS APART

"The undulations," Zirin said, "are some 1,600 miles from crest to crest, travel at 18,000 to 25,000 miles an hour and follow each other about 270 seconds apart."

(The speed of sound at sea level on earth is about 685 miles an hour. A Caltech spokesman said on the sun this would be greatly increased by pressure from heat).

The Caltech astrophysicist said, "These are the first running waves observed on the sun."

He said the possibility of magnetic waves was considered, but if Stein's waves had been of magnetic origin they could be expected to slow as they radiated outward through the sun's decreasing magnetic field. But the velocity is constant, as would be expected of sound waves, he said.

Wave fronts, which appear as expanding dark rings, originate in the umbra (dark central region) of sun spots and become visible as they expand outward through the penumbra, a partly dark region of horizontal magnetic field filaments that radiates spokelike from sun spots.

The waves are thought to be related to the flashes of light in the dark umbra discovered in 1968 by New Mexico's Sacramento Peak Observatory. The umbra flashes usually last a minute and are repeated every two minutes.

NEW PICTURE

"It is interesting that the Stein waves occur just about once every two umbral flashes. We believe the waves are sound waves carrying outward the energy generated by the umbral flashes. These waves should give us a whole new picture of the energy production in sun spots. There's a great deal of energy going into them."

Discovery of the waves also may result in alteration of current theory that activity in sun spots is "frozen" because of the magnetic field in them.

"Now we are beginning to get a whole new picture of the inside of sunspots. There appears to be a great deal of dynamic activity going on in them," Zirin said.

Zirin said the waves could not be heard by the human ear—even if it could get close enough to the sun—because they are 10,000 times lower in pitch than the ear can hear. However, if they could be recorded they could be heard by speeding up the recording.

Zirin said they probably were not discovered previously because they can only be seen under exceptionally good observing conditions.

LAB PUZZLED

New Teeth Restore Dog's Grin

McCRORY, Ark. — After a laboratory got the plaster cast of a jaw, a technician called the dentist who made it to ask what kind of a human was to have this particular partial denture.

"Not a human," said Dr. David Startup, "It's for a dog."

And it was. A physician, Dr. James Rowe, owns a 10-year-old boxer, Taffie, whose lower front teeth were worn down to the gumline. Let Dr. Rowe finish the story:

"I called Dr. Startup and made a deal. His dog was due for puppies any time and it appeared that a Caesarean section would be necessary. I told him I would perform the operation if he would make my dog new teeth.

"His dog had a normal delivery, but he agreed to carry through with the original agreement. We put my dog in his chair and he set to work as he would with any patient. He made a plaster cast and you can't blame the lab for its utter disbelief. Now Taffie has a bridge with two 14-karat gold caps and four shiny white front teeth. She wears this partial like she'd been born with it. No trouble at all." (Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Preliminary Hearing Set

A Santa Venetia resident, arrested last week on suspicion of attempting to kidnap a 19-year-old Corte Madera girl, has been charged in Marin Municipal Court with illegal possession of a billy club and disturbing the peace.

A preliminary hearing for Richard Charles Joseph, 31, has been set for Monday.

The young woman told police that Joseph had driven up to her as she stood on a corner waiting for a bus and told her to get into his car or he would shoot her.

The young woman told police she distracted the motorist by saying friends were coming and then ran for help. Joseph was arrested nearby.

CALLING ALL CAMERA FANS

WHERE TO BUY YOUR CAMERA

When it comes to advice on "where to buy" photographic equipment, we have to be a bit prejudiced. But there are also some very good reasons behind our convictions.

The usual choice is between a large volume or "discount" department store, and a local camera dealer. And sometimes the volume dealer will win out on the basis of price alone.

But there's a lot more to photography than simply buying a camera bearing a familiar and trustworthy name. And we happen to believe that your local dealer is the man to see for after-sale service, helpful advice on equipment (from an expert in the field), and all the related services of developing, printing, film, and the like.

Photography is our business, and we make it our business to do a little more for you. You can feel a little more confident when you buy your golf clubs from a pro ... and your photographic equipment from us!

LEGISLATION UNLIKELY

The Nudge That Keeps Auto Repair Costs Up

By ROBERT P. HEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Tired of driving cars so dainty they turn rush hour nudges into $300 repair bills? And were you hopeful that this was the year Congress would force automakers to build sturdy cars?

Forget it. The House of Representatives has towed that proposal to the legislative junkyard. Twice in the past month lobbying pressure from the multi-billion-dollar auto industry has triumphed over the wishes of the consumer, as expressed in hundreds of letters to members of Congress. Now the House has killed the bill.

Consumer advocates are making a last-ditch attempt to resuscitate it, but their chances of success are exceedingly slim.

Barring such a legislative miracle, the bill that could have saved American auto owners more than $1 billion a year in needless crash repairs is as extinct as the Stanley Steamer, at least for this year.

Rep. John Moss, a leading House consumer advocate, estimates that American auto owners spend $6 billion a year to repair crash damaged cars. The House subcommittee on commerce and finance, which he chairs, held hearings on the issue last year.

It and a corresponding Senate subcommittee heard charges that auto manufacturers purposely make cars that are easy to damage and expensive to fix. Since the companies also make the replacement parts, the charges went, they have a lucrative "captive market" that is highly profitable.

Last year Rep. Bob Eckhardt, another of the House's leading consumer advocates, called the auto repair bill that emerged from the Senate hearings one of the two "important, substantive" consumer bills with "the best prospects of passage" in 1972.

It cruised through the Senate 89-4 last November. Its principal provision would have given the federal government authority to set damage standards that would make cars sturdier — hence harder to damage — or easier and cheaper to repair. Or both.

But it was not to be. The auto industry threw up two roadblocks in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, which consumer groups charge is both uninterested in consumer issues and vulnerable to lobbying pressures.

The first roadblock surfaced not unexpectedly in Mr. Moss's commerce subcommittee, which was considering thebill. Although Mr. Eckhardt also is on the subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over many consumer bills, most of the subcommittee's members are considered by consumer groups to be openly hostile to consumer issues. Many pro-consumer bills die in this subcommittee — Mr. Moss cannot muster a majority of votes to get them out of committee.

In the case of auto repair, the subcommittee voted to throw away the standard-setting bill. In it's place it substituted one backed by Republicans, and by auto manufacturing interests. The substitute would merely have the federal government provide information to consumers on the relative damage suceptibility and repair costs of different auto makes.

Consumer interests thought this next to useless. They pointed out, among other things, that much publicity is given similar information now published annually by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety — without the auto industry being noticeably spurred by the spotlight to produce stronger cars.

For instance, last fall the institute reported that 1972 model cars it had tested averaged $263 in estimated repair costs when crashed at five miles per hour — the speed of a brisk walk — front end into barrier.

The full House Commerce Committee voted to go its subcommittee one better. It decided in effect to kill the whole bill altogether; the method it chose was to send the bill back to subcommittee, a procedure frequently used to prevent a bill from getting to the floor of the House or Senate.

This vote was very close — 20 to 18; reportedly it stemmed from auto industry pressure to defeat the very bill the industry earlier had been supporting.

So now there is no bill. Despite his best efforts it is unlikely that Mr. Moss will be able to get an auto repair measure out of his subcommittee this year.

And for the auto driver facing those annoying "fender bender" low speed accidents, it's time for the perennial rallying cry of baseball's lamented Brooklyn Dodgers: "wait until next year."

Aviation Commission Chairman Steps Down

Herbert M. Hanson Jr. of Kentfield, chairman of the Marin County Aviation Commission, has resigned, giving pressure of business matters as his reason.

Hanson, appointed in 1969, announced his resignation at Tuesday's commission meeting but said he will continue as a commissioner until a replacement is named.

Vice Chairman William W. Schwarzer was named to succeed him.

A vice president with Stone and Webster Securities Corp. in San Francisco, Hanson said his duties recently were expanded making it impossible to devote much time to the commission.

"Not much has happened in the last month on joint use of Hamilton (Air Force Base),-- he said. "Progress has to be made and I haven't had time to do it."

Hanson, who lives at 6 Coronet Way, has been associated with Marin County aviation for more than 15 years.

In 1958, he was named to an airport committee which backed an unsuccessful bond measure for construction of an airport on the San Quentin Peninsula.

Meter Fee Raise Is Recommended

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Increase of parking meter fees to 25 cents per half hour in the downtown area has been recommended to city officials by the Chamber of Commerce.

James E. Stretch, chamber president, said the sharp increase was needed to ensure shoppers with "sufficient short-term, reasonably priced, centrally located parking spaces . . ."

Religious Equipment Taken From Church

Thieves who broke into the Church of the Nativity in Marinwood Monday or Tuesday took religious equipment of undetermined value, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Deputies said three chalice cups, three silver dishes two silver bread boxes, a baptismal bowl and a ciborium were taken by the thieves who broke three windows to ransack the church at 338 Ellen Drive.

Brian Donlevy, An Actor Of Three Decades, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Brian Donlevy, the jaunty, he-man movie actor of three decades, died Wednesday. He was 69.

The cause of his death was not immediately announced.

A native of Ireland, Donlevy played rough-and-tumble roles on both sides of the law in most of his scores of pictures. His voice was coarse, his manner brusque but there was always a twinkle in his eye.

His two best-known films were "Beau Geste" (for which he was nominated for an Academy Award) and "What Price Glory."

Donlevy's forte was military pictures in which he generally portrayed a brass-bound officer or a blood-and-guts sergeant.

Before and during World War II, Donlevy became a fixture in war movies. They came naturally to the actor who was a bugler in World War I for General John J. Pershing in France.

Donlevy was brought to the United States as an infant and raised in Sheyboygan Falls, Wis: He spent two years at the Naval Academy at Annapolis after serving his stint in World War I.

BRIAN DONLEVY
A he-man actor

In his early years his only work was as a model for magazines, posing mostly for collar and cigarette advertising.

Suitably, his first acting role was the Broadway version of "What Price Glory," playing a corporal. He spent a dozen years on Broadway playing comedy, drama, farce and musicals.

His first Hollywood movie was "The Milky Way" with Harold Lloyd in 1934. His second film, "Barbary Coast," established Donlevy as a star and set the pattern for his tough guy roles.

Donlevy was married to singer Marjorie Lane in 1936 and divorced in 1947. They were the parents of a daughter, Judy. He married for a second time in 1966 to Lillian Lugosi, ex-wife of the late Bela Lugosi.

The actor starred in one of television's first filmed series, "Dangerous Assignment," later retiring to Palm Springs to write short stories.

Bill Gives Break To Some Taxpayers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Unmarried heads of households would receive the same tax benefits as married couples under a bill approved Wednesday by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and sent to the floor.

The Franchise Tax Board estimates the measure by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Canoga Park, would cost the state $22.5 million during 1972-73.

Plumbers Accept New Pay Contract

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Plumbers in Marin and three other counties have accepted a new pay and fringe benefit contract hiking wages to $12.91 per hour.

An industry spokesman said the new rate was among the highest in the nation for plumbers and it will undoubtedly prompt some contractors to raise prices.

The 9.6 per cent increase must be approved by the national construction industry wage stabilization board.

The contract covers some 1,600 construction and plumbers in San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma and Mendocino counties. It includes an increase to $10.16 an hour in wages—which in turn includes $8.53 in direct pay, 85 cents paid into a savings account, 40 cents into a holiday fund, and 38 cents into a vacation fund.

Ex-President Luebke Dies At 77 In Bonn

BONN (UPI)—Former West German President Heinrich Luebke died today after a short illness, a government spokesman said. He was 77.

The white-haired Luebke, who served as president from 1959 to 1969, entered Bonn University Clinic last Thursday for emergency surgery to stop massive internal bleeding.

Doctors said at first he was making a successful recovery from the operation. However, he took a turn for the worse and on Sunday a medical bulletin described his condition as serious.

A Westphalian farmer who spent nearly two years in prison under the Nazis in 1933, Luebke served as Federal Minister of Food and Agriculture after World War II.

In 1959 Chancellor Konrad Adenauer selected him as the Christian Democrat nominee for president, which in West Germany is largely a ceremonial office.

He won a second term in 1964, but resigned three months short of the end of that term so the new presidential elections would not have to be held at the same time as parliamentary elections.

New Student Leader Elected

Other winners are Craig Bachrach vice president; Marilyn Nederman, secretary, and Frank Bosl, Treasurer.

Selected to head the school's committees are Krissy Adamson, elections an special activities; Diane Bessee, spirit, and Bess Christie, publicity.

Mark Showers was elected Student Action board chairman while Don Falk, Bobbi Lee Kirk, Stacy Scott and Lisa Sockolov were chosen as board representatives.

John Lechner, Melinda Leoncini and Suzie Mettner were appointed to the finance committee. Robin Bacci, Terry Coleman and Dave Kavrell were appointed to the inter-club committee.

WINE NOTES #5

Mr. Earl Thollander has painted an exceptional poster of the Napa Valley which is done in beautiful color on one side, and has a map of the Valley on the other. The Nut Tree apparently commissioned the work and they have asked us to feature the poster in our stores. The poster makes a great gift and is reasonably priced at $1.50.

Setrakian Brandy is a new wine product in our stores and we think it is about the nicest brandy we have tasted. Its evolution is a long and interesting story we hope to pass along to you someday. Meanwhile, at $4.99 the fifth, it is a special treat. Brandy, by the way, is the perfect all-around drink. We don't recommend it in martini's, but try it any other mixed drink in place of your usual potion, and expect a pleasant surprise!

Bourbon Shop managers had a noteworthy experience at their be-weekly wine tasting. After a tasting of some excellent Nepenthe Cellars and Ridge Vineyards wines, a surprise bottle was presented — a 1943 Zinfandel produced and bottled by F. Salmina and Company which bottled its wines under the Larkmead label. It was a wonderful wine and a tribute to the standards of many of the winemakers of the 1930's and 40's. Speaking of Zinfandels, please don't forget to try our Wine of the Month selection, Ridge Zinfandel.

'Lost Horizon' Actress Isabel Jewell, 62, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Isabel Jewell, who went from movie star of the 1930s—appearing in classics such as "Gone with the Wind" and "Lost Horizon"—to court dockets in her later years for drunkenness and bad checks, was found dead in her home Wednesday. She was 62.

The coroner's office gave no cause of death.

The daughter of a prominent Shoshoni, Wyo., doctor and medical researcher, Miss Jewell, her real name, was a hit in her first appearance on a Broadway stage, stepping into a role in "Up Pops the Devil" in 1930 with only three hours rehearsal.

The petite blonde's movies included "Manhattan Melodrama" with William Powell and Clark Gable, the role of the seamstress in "A Tale of Two Cities" with Ronald Colman, and with Colman as the tubercular waif in "Lost Horizon."

Her best known stage appearances were in "Of Mice and Men" and "Counsellor at Law."

At one time, when she was under contract to M-G-M, she was loaned out to other studios for nine months in a three year period, making her the most in-demand contract player for borrowing of her time. She was making $3,000 a week.

In 1959 she was arrested in Las Vegas on charges of passing a bad check for $37 to pay a cab driver, and of leaving another bad check in Wyoming.

In 1961, she was sentenced to five days in jail and placed on a year's probation for drunken driving.

Labor Woes Still Loom For GM

By ED TOWNSEND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — The United Automobile Workers (UAW) strike against the highly automated General Motors Vega assembly plant in Lordstown, Ohio, is over, but stubborn problems may linger there for a long time.

The settlement that ended a 22-day stoppage hardly cleared away the workers' strong dissatisfaction over jobs on the fastest automobile assembly line in the world. New grievances could erupt into new discord in the future.

The problem is not just a General Motors or Lordstown problem, and it is not one in the United States alone. Assembly line operations are again a hotly controversial, highly emotional issue in industrialized nations. Young and militant workers are rebelling against the monotory and drudgery; "dehumanization of work" is a growing complaint.

GM's assembly plant at Lordstown was shut down on March 4 by a strike of 7,800 UAW unionists after months of tension. The plant is a shiny new one, opened two years ago, and considered in the industry to be the most modern auto plant anywhere, geared to produce 100 cars an hour. GM built it to automate production work and reduce labor costs, to make its U.S.-built subcompact Vega competitive with the Volkswagen and other foreign cars.

There is no question of the plant's efficiency — when it is operating. But, despite GM's thought about it, there are serious questions about the nature of the highly automated work.

The Lordstown plant originally was under GM's Fisher Body and Chevrolet divisions, and there were fewer problems; both divisions are more relaxed in their employment policies. Then, last October, the General Motors Assembly Division took over, intent on production efficiency gains and lowered labor costs. And troubles began.

GM had overmanned its new plant to get the Vega into full production in a hurry. It had employed hundreds of workers more than it would need later for the smooth operation of the plant. This ignored an industrial relations fact of life: It is hard to take away from workers anything that becomes an established part of an industrial relationship; organized labor fights whatever it considers to be a regressive move by an employer.

When GM started cutting back on the Lordstown work force to levels set for normal operations, labor rebelled.

UAW's Local 1112 in Lordstown said that nearly 800 workers had been laid off since October of last year when the assembly division took over, while production rates remained unchanged. It charged a "speedup" of work. GM conceded that about 350 had been laid off but denied the speedup charge.

The local union demanded restoration of most jobs, and, during months of negotiations without appreciable progress, the dispute widened to other issues, generally with an emphasis on allegations of the speed and monotony of the Lordstown assembly line.

The average age of workers at the plant is under 25. Many wear their hair long and are in their first real job. They are as militantly anti-establishment as other young people — whatever that establishment might be. They are frustrated, impatient, and very little tolerant of the tedium and discipline of assembly line and plant work.

The settlement negotiated between GM and the local and ratified by a 70 per cent affirmative vote of a small turnout of local unionists, included an agreement by the company to reemploy about 150 workers and resolved most of some 5,000 grievances that had piled up — many involving complaints of excessive workloads.

One local union spokesman said the settlement "clears away most immediate problems," but he conceded that since only about 2,500 of the Lordstown unionists actually voted to approve the new agreement, this could mean continuing troubles — particularly if GM takes further steps to reduce the work force or to step up productivity.

For its part, GM is "hopeful" that things will settle down now. The company charged earlier that there had been sabotage in the plant in connection with the labor dispute — generally, work left undone or done improperly or damage to Vega finishes or interior fittings. After one charge of bolts left untightened, one unionist admitted that "some cars" got by workers without bolt-tightening because, he said, "nobody can keep up all the time."

The faster auto assembly lines are likely to be a bargaining issue in the industry in the next big negotiations in 1973. Ken Bannon, a UAW vice-president, recently warned the Ford Motor Company to expect that.

"The pace at which people are compelled to work (on the highly automated, fast assembly lines of the 1970's) and the monotony of many jobs have their effect both on the worker and the product," Bannon said.

Meanwhile, a Big Three auto executive has warned his company that in the 1970s "the young will be less concerned about losing a job, less willing to put up with dirty, uncomfortable working conditions, and less willing to conform to rules." He urged giving serious thought to the problem of today's changing and very different work force of younger, better educated, more militant, and less disciplined workers.

Other business advisers are saying much the same thing and are warning that millions being spent for advanced production technology could be wasted unless workers are properly motivated (absenteeism and quitting are costly, and the rate is excessively high) and are made masters of the machine — not human labor connected with the machine process.

More thought is needed on the critical element of interaction of men and machines at Lordstown and elsewhere — the human role in assembly line production. The long-haired auto unionist at Lordstown said workers want to be important beyond "the kind of importance we've had, to do what a machine can't do as cheaply as a man with a twist of his wrist."

With unions, the Lordstown strike is considered the first of many likely on similar issues. This would not be a result of organized efforts nationally, but, labor observers say, "a natural outcome: of assembly line dissatisfactions.

In the 1930s unhappiness over plant conditions spurred the unionization of auto and other workers; unrest would take different forms now. And, say some UAW officials, if the economy were in better shape, "the speeds for revolt in the plants" would be sprouting faster; they are "pretty dormant now, because of the recession," they say.

Larkspur Consultants Ripped On Priority Positi n Policy

The development policy conference constructed by planning consultants Mocine and Williams was knocked down by the Larkspur City Council last night.

Councilman William G. Fleckles launched the attack on the results of the three meetings designed to find the priorities of the town by declaring the consultants had not done their job.

He said the findings now in public hearings before the planning commission are no more than the feelings of subcommittees. Fleckles insisted the group of about 100 persons should be recalled to judge the conclusions.

He call the sessions "the poorestly structured conference I have ever had the misfortune to attend."

Planning Commissioner Robert H. Lee, a council candidate, disagreed, claiming an overall consensus had been reached, but councilmen Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Neil R. Brixon joined Fleckle's attack.

Brixon said the consultants hadn't added "one damn thing" to the conference. "As it stands right now I think we have wasted a lot of money. I'm not impressed and I'll be blunt about it because I'm not up for reelection," he said.

Fleckles, who is up for reelection, said, "I think we are going to end up with a mistake."

The San Francisco planning firm was hired for $12,000 to upgrade the city's master plan and zoning regulations over a nine-month period ending in July.

Its summation of the conference sessions will have its second public airing before the planning commission Wednesday.

Kennedy Sees McGovern As A Top Contender Now

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, repeating his intention not to run for president, says Sen. George S. McGovern became a leading candidate for the Democratic nomination with his win in Wisconsin.

"He established himself as a major contender for the Democratic nomination and proved he had a broad base of support," Kennedy said in an interview.

Public opinion polls before the current round of primaries began last month listed McGovern as a longshot to the front-running Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and the 1968 Democratic nominee, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Because of tte wide-open character of the Democratic race, some party leaders have stated that Kennedy may be the only hope for the unity the party needs to successfully challenge President Nixon in November.

And Republican Natioal Chairman Robert J. Dole said Kennedy was the "real winner" in Wisconsin.

"Senator Kennedy is enjoying all the benefits of running for office, with none of the responsibilities," Dole said.

But Kennedy restated Wednesday his intention to stay out of the presidential sweepstakes. Asked if he was under pressure from his supporters to reconsider, the Massachusetts senator said, "I think people understand my position."

Kennedy also said the second place finish of Alabama Gov. George R. Wallace in the Wisconsin primary reflected "the frustrations of many Americans with an inequitable tax structure, a lack of responsiveness in government. That frustration is shared by many others, including myself."

A Far-Ranging Session Without Any Conclusions

The Larkspur City Council roved through discussions of a redevelopment agency, public safety building and referrals to the planning commission without burning any bridges last night.

The council named itself a redevelopment agency, as a relatively painless way to finance improvements, and appointed Councilmen Neil R. Brixon and Alfred J. Malvino to study the possibility of a public safety building constructed by the redevelopment agency.

It also smoothed the ruffled feathers of the planning commission, which was unhappy that prezoning of San Quentin and a proposal for a fashionable shopping center were not referred to it.

"Are you creating the redevelopment agency concept to develop, in effect, the shopping center that has been proposed?" commissioner Robert H. Lee, a council candidate, asked.

The council and City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst assured Lee and his colleague, Leonard S. Rubin, that all the options are still open, but the agency has to be created before anything could go to the commission.

Included could be improvements for a 56-acre expansion of Bon Air shopping center proposed by Oakland developer Ted Connolly or another center in what is now the Hutchinson quarry.

It could also include a joint police and fire station, but the council decided not to drop condemnation proceedings on a building next to the present fire station until Malvino and Brixon report in May.

The council in January voted to condemn the property owned by Lena Fendler of Sutter Creek for a police station, but city staff has had second thoughts.

If the redevelopment agency is used, the assessor will freeze the assessed valuation of affected land with taxes on the increased value from development going to pay off redevelopment bonds. Bathurst said it is a more economical method than condemning the Fendler property.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

POLICE ASSOCIATION — Recognized the Larkspur Police Officers Association, a self-improvement group that will have no collective bargaining power.

FLOOD PROJECT — Instructed its two members on the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone advisory board to vote for the zone to appeal with the Town of Ross a court decision allowing Ross residents to block completion of the crucial stage of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project.

PLANNING AGENCY — Introduced an ordinance spelling out the powers of the planning commission, thus correcting an oversight in the city code, and directed staff to look into creating a board of zoning adjustments.

PARKING — Adopted an ordinance governing offstreet parking requirements for commercial and apartment developments that has been in the works more than a year, then ordered amendments to permit credit for curbside parking spaces where applicable.

PRIVATE FIRE EYE — Introduced an ordinance that would require all new residences to be equipped with sensitive combustion detectors that cost $100 per outlet, but can prevent asphyxiation by warning of smoke before it becomes choking.

SURVEY — Tabled until May 3 action on a recommendation by Bathurst to do a $3,500 study of employee job descriptions, salaries and management practices, directing him to get other estimates and check the cost of a less extensive study.

NOTICE — Adopted an ordinance which provides that mailing of hearing notices to all affected may be stopped on citywide issues.

SUMMER RECREATION — Supported the concept of a four-week summer recreation program with Corte Madera beginning June 21 instead of the eight-tweek program of past years. Recreation director Harlan Barry said the cost will be the same, $7,000, because the new program is more planned and supervised.

BICYCLES — Endorsed state legislation calling for licensing of bicycles and asked the estate of Adolph A. Tiscornia if it will withdraw right-of-way for a bicycle path between Doherty Drive and Bon Air Road if the city council should turn down a grading permit for Little King Mountain. Construction can start on the path, but the estate could revoke right-of-way on 30 days notice.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. April 18 when the council will convene in city hall, then move across the street to St. Patrick's Church meeting hall to hear the grading permit appeal.

Action Planned To Keep Hospital Open

UKIAH (UPI) —The Board of Supervisors authorized the district attorney to file a suit aimed at preventing the closing of Mendocino State Hospital.

The hospital on Sept. 1 is scheduled to be the third state mental hospital closed this year.

Ross Candidates' Theme — Flood Control

By DAVID DIETZ

As it has from the start of the campaign, flood control dominated the discussion last night as four of the five Ross Town Council candidates met the public for the first and last time in formal debate.

The issue, a subject of controversy in the quiet community for nearly two decades, so pervaded the candidates' night, in fact, that members of the audience soon were groaning over its repeated mention.

Yet most of the questions put to the candidates present — incumbents John H. Chase and Jewell Osterloh and challengers Peter B. Valentine and Tracy Van Voorhees — dealt with the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project, on which work has been stalled by legal snarls.

The fifth candidate in Tuesday's election, incumbent Alan P. Maginis, was said by sponsors of the debate — the Ross Property Owners Association and the League of Women Voters of Central Marin — to have been delayed on out-of-town business and unable to attend the confrontation at Ross School.

Among the four present, it was Chase and Mrs. Osterloh against Valentine and Van Voorhees on the flood control issue. The challengers, in fact, are running as a team as co-chairmen of the Save Our Creek Committee, a year-old group opposed to extension of the tributary's concrete ditch from the center of the community almost to the San Anselmo line.

The main source of disagreement last night was over the meaning and effect of a ruling in a suit brought against the town by Valentine, a 32-year-old investor. Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson, while committing the town to approval of some type of flood control extension, said that Valentine and his supporters were entitled to a referendum on current plans for more concrete channel.

Otherwise, the judge said, the council must rescind approval already given the new phase.

Valentine and Van Voorhees, noting that Wilson affirmed the council's "absolute control" over design of the extension, said the burden now was on the Army Corps of Engineers, builder of the project, to propose a scheme that would satisfy residents.

But Chase and Mrs. Osterloh explained that alternate methods studied in the past had proved too costly and probably more damaging to the ecology, and wondered about town liability if the money wasn't found to build an extension of different design.

Further, said Chase, the council has been advised by its attorney that the council's powers over design cover only "basic amenities" and not broad review prerogatives. In any case, the incumbents noted, the project was stalled, despite Valentine's suit, because of what the town considers to be the failure of the county flood control district to meet obligations to correct ancillary flooding woes.

Both Chase, a 37-year-old Transamerica Corp. executive, and Mrs. Osterloh, 54, a housewife, were asked by someone in the audience about reports the council intends to appeal Wilson's ruling.

Chase said he believed the Valentine suit had "proved absolutely nothing" and wondered what an appeal would solve. Mrs. Osterloh said she lacked the advice of the town attorney to state her position.

Chase, noting the creek issue has been a topic at some 70 meetings both within the town and outside it since 1946, accused Valentine and Van Voorhees, a 48-year-old manufacturer's representative, of midnight-hour opportunism.

"The council remains open to alternative suggestions," he said, "but we're running out of time. We've been at this a long time and I wonder where were Mr. Valentine and Mr. Van Voorhees?"

The challengers said a possible creek solution might be construction of an underground bypass which would carry off much of the storm water without disturbing the creek bed. But the incumbents said such a scheme already has been adjudged too expensive — as much as $2.5 million more than the ditch now proposed — and could mean widening of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to four lanes.

The added expense, Chase, said, "is just beyond our wildest dreams," adding that the federal government, prime financer of the project, would never approve. Valentine, however, said Wilson's ruling gave citizens the lever to "force the county and the corps to do whatever we want."

"We can demand a design that meets with our approval," Van Voorhees said.

Aside from flood control, the debate focused on the council's practice of going behind closed doors to name successors to departing colleagues, without opportunity for the public to question candidates, and on how to tackle persistent appeals for a town recreation program.

Of the closed-door practice, Chase — like Mrs. Osterloh, an appointee seeking election for the first time — said: "This is not an unusual procedure ... It's actually requested by the applicants themselves. It's for the convenience of the applicants that this has been done."

To hold public interviews, Mrs. Osterloh said, would mean to "cut down on applicants if they feel they will be put through the public wringer."

"I'm not too concerned about the applicant's feelings ... I am more concerned about what the townspeople's feelings are," snapped Valentine. Van Voorhees said he, too, supported an open appointment procedure.

Van Voorhees was first to express support of appointment of a town recreation commission, although Chase and Mrs. Osterloh later said a resolution aimed at the group's creation would be considered at the next council session. Valentine was noncommittal on the issue.

Van Voorhees also initially raised the idea of informal community meetings on pressing town matters, insisting that citizens sometimes felt intimidated at regular council sessions. The proposal later won general endorsement from the incumbents. Valentine said he believed a lack of communication between citizens and town officials was a major cause of the battle over flood control.

In the absence of Maginis, a 48-year-old real estate executive also seeking his first full council term, debate sponsors read a prepared position paper from the candidate which upheld the council's recent vote to stop the creek project until commitments on solving local flooding problems are honored.

Maginis also said in the statement, "Ross must maintain its own identity. I am against countywide services such as fire and police, as we would lose control of these vital services. The exchange of information between neighboring communities is important and should be encouraged."

Widening Ban On Fireworks Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration has proposed a widening of its two-year-old ban on the general sale of cherry bombs, aerial bombs and other fireworks with more than two grains of powder by extending the ban to agriculture explosives.

Such explosives have been used by farmers to scare away birds from crops but the FDA said some fireworks manufacturers have been selling them to the general public. The new ban would take effect in 60 days.

Deadline Extended In Beard Contest

Deadline for entries in the Novato Western Weekend country fair beard contest has been extended until April 17, according to Billie Garl, secretary-manager of the Novato Chamber of Commerce.

Applicants must be clean shaven when they apply, Mrs. Garl said. Judging will be May 25. Applications can be made at the chamber office, 1123 Grant Avenue.

Water Panel Ordered To Give Names

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The state Court of Appeals today ordered the North Marin County Water District to release to the Independent-Journal a list of the names of all district employees, their job classifications and salaries.

The order upheld one made 18 months ago by Marin Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating. The I-J brought court action against the district after it refused to furnish the information. The district appealed Keating's order.

The newspaper published such information for every other city and public agency in the county.

The district claimed that the disclosure would be "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," but the Court of Appeal held that state law provided no such secrecy for public records.

(Eugene S. Churchill, manager of the district, told the I-J that the records would be made available immediately.)

The Court of Appeal ruled that state law only limited disclosure of records such as previous employment, medical history, beneficiaries of insurance policies, type of insurance coverage, names of dependents and similar information.

Papers Banned By Pakistan

An annoucement said the government banned the Punch, Zindagi and Urdu Digest, for defying rules of the new press commission.

The arrested editors were Husain Naqi of Punch, Altaf Qureshi of Zindagi and Aijaz Husain Qureshi of Urdu Digest.

2 Highway Crashes Injure 8, Tie Traffic

Three persons were hospitalized — one in critical condition — and five others injured in twin accidents involving seven cars yesterday on rainslick Highway 101 near the Marin County Civic Center off-ramp.

Russell L. DeMel, 53, of Orange, Orange County, was reported in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital with fractured ribs, according to hospital authorities. Mary Ellen Grant, 83, of Buhl, Minn., was reported in fair condition at the hospital with a fractured right hip.

Francis Tong Eng, 44, of San Francisco, was reported in good condition at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael with possible broken jaw and facial cuts.

Alice Margaret Berglund, 50, of 31 Joan Avenue, Novato, went to see her own doctor for cuts on her forehead, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Howard Lee Dachslager, 39, of Berkeley, was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for cuts on his head, hospital authorities reported.

Grace E. Hilton, 26, of 199 Posada Del Sol, Novato, was treated at San Francisco's Letterman General Hospital for scalp cuts, according to hospital spokesmen. Her daughter, Jennifer, 2, was examined at the hospital for minor bruises.

Donna Anne Taylor, 19, of 251 Crescent Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base, was taken to the base hospital by her father with an injured left knee and neck highway patrolmen reported. The hospital had no record of her being treated there.

According to highway patrol reports, the first of the twin accidents happened at 11 a.m. in the northbound lanes of Highway 101 at the San Pedro Road undercrossing when a car driven in heavy rain by Mrs. Hilton slowed on the slick pavement. It was hit by a car driven by Eng and both were hit by a car driven by Lee Edwin Pickney, 24, of San Francisco.

This closed all three northbound lanes of the highway and cars were stopped behind the wreck when the second accident happened, according to highway patrolmen.

Cars driven by Mrs. Serglund, Dachslager, Miss Taylor and Jacob John Czerwienice, 38, of Loleta, Humboldt County, all collided moments after the first accident, patrolmen said.

The northbound lanes of the highway were closed until 11:50 a.m., patrolmen said.

Librarian Seeks Record Designs

Traditionally, libraries use file cards Kilbourne said, but several years ago a local artist made about 100 posters with apple tree designs. After the child read a book, he put a red paper apple on the front of the poster, and wrote the name of the book on the back.

Kilbourne is seeking other designs for use this summer. He said entries would be judged by a panel of three, with prizes of $15, $10 and $5 for the top three entries.

Further information, he said, may be had at the Larkspur Public Library, 400 Magnolia Avenue.

Tax Deadline Nears; More Blood Needed

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI)—With the April 15 income tax deadline drawing near, regional blood center director William Pugh has issued a call for blood donors.

He said the blood is needed for the rash of ulcer operations that occur every year at this time.

New Snow For Skiing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A heavy layer of new snow has improved the ski outlook for Northern California and Nevada resorts still remaining open.

Boreal Ridge: Open for the weekend.

Squaw Valley—Twelve inches of new snow on a two to two and one-half foot base. Conditions unspecified.

Alpine Meadows: Six to eight inches of new snow on five to six foot base. Fair to good skiing on wet pack.

Heavenly Valley: Open at last report which was on April 4th.

Bear Valley: Twelve inches of new snow on four foot base. Reporting good to very good conditions. Powder.

Mount Shasta: Will be open this weekend.

Senate Hears New Link In ITT Fund, Convention

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate ITT investigation was provided with material today alleging the company's lobbyist, Mrs. Dita D. Beard, told a Republican leader she wrote a memo suggesting an ITT donation to the GOP national convention was linked to a controversial antitrust settlement.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., made available the text of a tape recorded newspaper interview in which Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., said Mrs. Beard and her immediate supervisor both discussed the memo with him when it first came to public light.

The Wilson interview was first revealed by the Baltimore Sun.

It was obtained by Robert E. Cox of the San Diego Union on March 3 but was not made public in full until today.

At one point, Wilson was quoted in the transcript as saying columnist Jack Anderson, who first published the purported Beard memo," had the original, not just a copy, but the original memo."

Wilson also was quoted at one point as saying he was "sure as can be" that Mrs. Beard was "mousetrapped" into writing the memo by high ranking ITT officials.

The controversial memo was carried in an Anderson column in February, touching off the Senate inquiry. Mrs. Beard has denied under oath that she wrote the memo contained in Anderson's column.

Mexico Zeroes In On Art Thieves

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Mexican government appears to be making progress in a campaign to prevent the looting of pre-Columbian ruins and to stop the smuggling to the United States and Europe of centuries-old works of art.

A new government department has been set up to fight this multimillion-dollar operation and already thousands of stolen artifacts have been recovered and dozens of art smugglers been arrested.

To aid its own campaign, Mexico is also pressing the United States and European governments to cooperate by forbidding the sale of stolen works of art and by discouraging state-owned museums from buying contraband artifacts. A treaty concluded with Washington last year now allows Mexico to sue for the return of objects smuggled into the United States.

But as with drug-smuggling and gun-running, it may be several years before the network operating the lucrative pre-Columbian art field can be broken. There is too much money involved for the smugglers to give up easily.

The government is not worried about the tourists who may slip out of the country with a few bits of pottery or jade tucked into the bottom of their suitcases. They usually take away worthless pieces or even objects cleverly falsified by the innocent-looking peasants who are to be found hanging around most ruins.

The big smugglers, on the other hand, are real professionals. They employ archeologists to verify the authenticity and value of objects; they know which customs officer or police chief to pay off; they use trucks, boats and even planes to smuggle the pieces out of the country.

After that, there is a whole network of dealers, galleries and museums in the United States and Europe to make sure a good price is obtained. And by the time funny little clay statues and pots (which the Mexican government regards as criminal loot) have been mounted behind glass with subtle lighting in a private collection or a National Museum, they have gained respectability.

To fight the art smugglers, the government is depending largely on paid informants to tip them off about direct looting of ruins and about consignments of artifacts leaving the country. Once the Attorney General's office has a lead, a group of special agents moves into the area for the catch and the interrogation. Since the smugglers do not always surrender without a fight, the agents are armed, ready for any eventuality.

One of the greatest difficulties faced by the agents is that the smugglers are almost invariably well protected by the local authorities or police who may also have a piece of the cake. In some cases, the head of the smuggling ring has been found to be the local police chief or even a government archeologist.

At present, most of the looting of pre-Columbian ruins is taking place in the south and south-east of Mexico where the Olmec, Mayan and Toltec cultures flourished 1,000 years ago or more. Since the Mayan civilization overflowed into what is today Guatemala, British Honduras and Honduras proper, the smugglers are also active there.

The thieves do not feel restricted by region or even archeological period. The damage they do can be seen in colonial churches as well as pre-Columbian ruins throughout the country. In fact what most often upsets archeologists is the way the smugglers indiscriminately vandalize ruins in order to take the best pieces. If a supporting column of a building has to be knocked down in order to steal a particularly beautiful and valuable stone head, this is no obstacle.

The smugglers also have an enormous area in which to work. There are probably at least 1,100 pre-Columbian ruins in Mexico alone, only about one-sixth of which have been officially excavated.

To protect all these ruins is impossible without resorting to a major military operation and it may be difficult even then to stop the vandalizing and stealing completely. The hope of authorities is that if they can break up the major smuggling rings, other racketeers will be discouraged.

Many of the people arrested in recent months have been well-known respected citizens, something that has helped bring publicity to the campaign. With these arrests the government hopes to dramatize its view that art smuggling is as criminal activity as any other. A new "cultural heritage" law allows for fines of $500 and prison sentences of three to seven years for stealing or smuggling.

"We're not particularly interested in having lots of smugglers in jail," one government official said. "We want to stop the racket and then perhaps begin to recover some of the objects that have already been stolen. We hope the arrests will have a deterrent effect on the smugglers, that they will realize we mean business."

ANATOMICAL ANOMALIES

Technology And Children's Dolls

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Virtually every American adult must have had a "Fido" in his or her life —a soft stuffed rag of an animal or doll bruised and worn by the slings and arrows of outrageous childhood.

There were few "Kidos" to be found at the 69th annual toy fair, at which some 800 U.S. toy manufacturers who belong to the trade association, Toy Manuafacturers of America (TMA), displayed their wares. Instead, there were scores of mechanical dolls, which most closely resemble obots.

These "hard" dolls come with such anatomical anomalies as strings dangling out of their hips, which when pulled activate the doll's voice, slits in their sides in which records can be inserted, and a series of perforations across their midriffs to emit sound. The tape recorders inside are easily accessible by dismembering the doll.

The industry recorded last year more than $2 billion worth of sales, much of it reaped from the production of sophisticated rather than simple toys.

THIS INTRUSION of technology into the private life of the child is not without its advantages. One of the big items this year is ecology kits. Parker Brothers' Johnny Horizon Environmental Test Kit is one of several tqt enables the child to record a pollution index. Skil-Craft puts out a Weather Forecaster, and Ideal Toy Corp. features Nature's Window, that provides seeds and "soil" made of a transparent gel so the child can observe the germination and growth process.

Such toys combine aspects of fun and learning, and can be regarded as substitutes for strictly educational toys, which the industry has reduced because of their lack of commercial success.

Another major development may challenge the supremacy of the bicycle. "Choppers" and "trikes" are designed for children to ride in. Walter Ross, president of the TMA, explained, "A chopper is a vehicle with a sort of prehensile front wheel. A trike is a motorized three-wheel vehicle particularly adapted to off the road travel."

Some are battery operated and others are pedal driven, and if that seems too tame, consider the "first gasoline powered cars" for children with speeds from 3 to 12 miles per hour.

THE THOUGHT of a child driving such a "motorized" vehicle raises the all-important issue of toy safety. Consumer advocates have long pursued toy anufacturers like a band of furies, pointing their fingers at dangeorus toys and demanding legislation to protect children from them. There have been at least a few signs of response from the industry.

A comparatively new contingent of critics was on hand this year, however. A group from the National Organization for Women (NOW) demonstrated against "the practice of assigning male and female labels to toys, which leads to sex role stereotyping."

NOW objected that toys advertised and packaged for little girls are predominantly dolls or household items that reinforce the child's image of women as "either homemakers or sex objects" while toys for little boys are oriented toward action and achievement.

The feminists say that little girls as well as boys should be encouraged to play with erector sets, airplanes, etc. But they reserve their greatest wrath for the various "fashion dolls," of which Mattel's widely popular Barbie is the prototype. According to the protestors, Barbie encourages vanity — tantalizing the little girl with her wardrobe of clothes, cortege of friends, and convoy of luggage. Barbie's newest outfits equip her for the patio, the beach, or for lounging in front of the mirror.

Mattel, some time ago, introduced a male doll, euphemistically known as an "action figure," modeled after Hasbro's highly successful GI Joe who leaps from helicopters and drives jeeps. Now Mattel is producing Big Jim, the epitome of the all-around athlete, and his black friend Big Jack, with a caravan of sports outfits, equipment, and vehicles.

ROSS, IN his speech to the TMA, stressed the manufacturers' awareness of women's liberation and noted that some toys this year were pitched to both girls and boys.

He then disclosed the profound uncertainty within the industry about how to deal with "the movement," saying, "So the toy industry has spoken: If you are zealous about women's lib — so are we; if you think it's foolish — we sympathize with that view; if you couldn't care less —we won't insist."

A less publicized issue is that of ethnic stereotyping. Blond-haired, blue-eyed dolls are still in the overwhelming majority, but an increasing though still small number now are available in black as well as white. Mattel has Dottie, who even in her white version has brown eyes, and a dark Spanish-speaking doll called Drowsy.

The question is not only of color but of ethnically realistic dolls. The black-owned Shindana (meaning "competitiveness" in Swahili) Toys in Los Angeles produces the most authentic and perhaps the most appealing black dolls.

Though the issue of toy safety has been hammered into the consciousness of the manufacturers, it is still attended by ambiguity because everything is a potential source of danger to a child. Children will, after all, swallow an object from the "real world" with the same alacrity as a toy lipstick, fork, or car wheel.

STILL, AS Boston attorney Edward Swartz writes in his heavily documented polemic against the toy industry, "Toys That Don't Care," manufacturers should shoulder a large share of responsibility for the safety of their particularly vulnerable consumers.

'NATURE'S WINDOW' was a kit shown at the annual Toy Fair in New York. It permits children to grow their own gardens and watch the plants develop.

. Some of the abuses which Swartz enumerates in his book have since been corrected but others were in evidence at ty fair.

Among the most dangerous toys are those involving heat or electricity, with play ovens and casting sets among the prime offenders.

A related danger is that of fire. There is legislation covering flammable fabrics and many now are treated with "flame retardants." But parents would be well advised to check the flammability of toys.

Ideal has eliminated altogether the thermal threat in its play ovens by developing an In-a-Minute Cake Maker that requires no heat and produces an "edible" cake and frosting through the compression of dried batter. The company, however, also manufacturers battery powered power tools, such as saws and drills, for children. Rapco, Inc., offers a bottle cutter and decorating kit for children to "recycle" glass.

ONE SURE way a parent can both look out for his children's well-being and give them a crack at grownup skills, however, requires no toys. Mothers and fathers can take their child into the tool room or kitchen and work together on make-it and bake-it projects.

On the bright side, General Mills announced this month the development of a nontoxic plastic model cement as a substitute for glue.

Noticeable effort has been made to rid toys of sharp parts and edges. Wires, pins, and points are still to be found —but not to the same degree. There are positive signs such as Mattel's new line of preschool blocks,Tuff Stuff, which have no sharp corners, no paint, a five-year guarantee for durability, and an education angle. Their soft Baby Bean dolls are said to be tightly sewn so that the baby cannot gain access to the tiny beans inside.

"Action toys" (cars and planes) still have some sharp protrusions, and very real danger exists from cars that fly off the track or self-destruct. Mattel has developed airplane propellers that stop on finger contact for a line of technically advanced lightweight planes operated by either remote control or on a tether.

POSSIBLY HARMFUL "projectiles" (guns and bows and arrows) remain on the market, though in fewer numbers. Mattel restricts its manufacture to cowboy guns, some of which fire pellets.

According to Swartz, toy safety is a continuing problem in this country because of inadequate legislation to regulate the industry. Toy manufacturers have tried to regulate themselves, and an inevitable conflict between profit and conscience ensued.

A recent example of the syndrome, which Swartz calls in his book "The Fox Attempts to Guard the Henhouse," is the appointment of Ruth Handler, the president of Mattel as chairman of the Product Safety Subcouncil of President Nixon's recently established National Business Council for Consumer Affairs.

To the credit of the TMA, about 10 of the largest companies last year contributed to a professional study of toy safety standards by the consulting firm of Arthur D. Little in Cambridge, Mass. The results of the study are to be submitted to the National Bureau of Slandards in May, and manufacturers will be urged to apply the findings to their 1973 line of toys as a voluntary product standard.

This is little consolation to Swartz, who finds even the laws affecting child safety —such as the Flammable Fabrics Act, the Hazardous Substances Act, and the Child Protection and Safety Act of 1969 — hamstrung by difficulties of enforcement.

He advocates a bill that is pending in the House of Representatives which is called the Consumer Product Safety Act. If passed, it would place premarket testing and control of toys in the hands of a single organization (responsibility is now scattered throughout government agencies) and prevent dangerous toys from getting on the market in the first place.

In the meantime, parents might do well to cast an analytical eye at television commercials, which are the mainstays of the toy industry, advertisements, and all the printed matter on or inside the packages.

Cooking Faster In Covered Pan

To conserve natural gas, the American Gas Association recommends covering saucepans on the burner so food will cook faster thereby saving gas.

Don't take forever to pre-heat the oven; the average oven takes only 10 minutes, and roasts and casserole dishes do not need to go into pre-heated ovens. Opening the oven door to check the food wastes gas. Aids to save gas are basting bags, self-basting foods, meat thermometer, time and temperature charts and see-through glass doors

Correct Places For A Mirror

The mirror might be decorative, but it's also a potential hazard because it can detract from the business of walking down stairs.

Many persons are tempted to watch their reflection instead of where they should be putting their feet.

Color Not Enough

Considering color alone is not enough when buying a new carpet. Factors such as texture and fiber affect wearability and ease of care. Backing and padding are important if the carpet is to last. The amount of sunlight in the room and the traffic on the carpet also should affect the quality and color you choose.

Engagement Announced

Sept. 2 nuptials are being planned by Claudia B. Carmozzi of Hayward and Norman Charles Collins of Petaluma.

Claudia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Carmozzi of Hayward, and Norman's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins of Petaluma.

Now a medical receptionist at an office in Castro Valley, the bride-elect is a graduate of Sunset High School in Hayward and attended Contra Costa Junior College and Kaiser School of Nursing.

Norman is a graduate of St. Vincent's High School in Petaluma and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. He served in the navy and is now employed by John's Welding Co. in Novato.

He is the brother of Robert Collins Jr., Mrs. Joan Luiz and Mrs. Anita Baccala of Petaluma.

Soft Is Word For New Fashion Look

Soft is the word to sum up the look to new fashions. Every top designer is stressing softness with closer-to-body shaping.

The soft dress comes back in princess shapes, in shirtwaisters, in sweater dresses.

White Shoes 'In'

White shoes are "in" with everything. Yves St. Laurent used white patent wing-toed pumps with three inch built-up leather heels. Ankle strapped sandals are all over the lot.

A TRUE STORY

Vacation's More Fun With Travel Ready Children

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—This is a true story. I know a father who once wheeled his firstborn around to a neighborhood market, parked her in her carriage outside the entrance while he went in to make some purchases.

Back at home an hour or so later, his wife said, "Where's Carol?" (the baby) "Oh my Lord," he said as he dashed for the door. "I left her outside the supermarket." Fortunately the forgotten Carol still was there in her carriage happily cooing at passersby.

What brings this story to mind is a talk with Leila Hadley, who through the years has taken her four children— one or two, three, four at a time— through Europe, the Middle and Far East, Central America and Africa—and hasn't misplaced a child yet.

"I ALWAYS wear a bright red or yellow coat so I'm easy to spot," said Mrs. Hadley in an interview. "But I also prepare the children. I've taught them all to look for a policeman, a guard, someone in authority who can take care of them if we do get separated."

Mrs. Hadley must be a woman of superb courage, compared to most parents for whom the thought of a day's outing is enough of a trauma. For she insists that now is the time to travel with your children, not to wait until they're older.

Mrs. Hadley, of an affluent New York family, recalls that her parents took her to Europe for the first time when she was a baby. In turn, her eldest, Kip, was only six months old when he went to Europe with Mamma.

WHAT SHE'S learned in traveling with her own, plus research, all is spelled out in a new book. "Fielding's Guide to Travelling with Children in Europe" (William Morrow & Co.). In detail, she covers 19 Western Europe countries and the things they offer to children, plus the practical details of what parents need to know — baby food, diapers, emergencies, airlines and the like.

She lists several reasons for taking the small ones along— "Europe is beautifully organized for taking care of them if you don't want to cope ...baby sitters immediately available, companions, places to leave your child for a few hours, days or weeks, children's hotels, camps and schools."

Mrs. Hadley feels the "emotional expense of not having them along is greater than leaving them at home."

There's the plus factor of expanding the child's knowledge —" Geography comes alive," she said. "Children have no cultural blocks. They don't say, 'Well, this is the way we do things back home.' They're so quick at picking up the language...so unselfconscious it's amazing how fast a child makes himself understood to everyone from waiters to children of the country he's visiting."

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

String Along With Undecided If You're Sure He's Worth It

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I've liked this guy since fourth grade, but only started going with him after his girl friend dumped him five months ago. It lasted three weeks, and then he went back to her.

Well, that went on less than a month and she treated him like dirt, so he wised up and back he came to me.

Another month, and he was with her, but now he's at my house again. He says he's over her, but I hear she still wants him.

People tell me to 1. Hang on; 2. Slam the door; or 3. Lead him on and then dump him bad just to get even. Which ? I couldn't bear treating him as dirty as she does. — THE CRUTCH

DEAR CRUTCH:

I vote for No. 2: a softie like you could never lead a guy on just to get even, and "hanging on" will just give this guy a big head: With two girls fighting over him, he knows someone will always be available. Try getting friendly with his other-girl. When you compare notes, you may both decide to dump him! — SUE

DEAR CRUTCH:

I vote for No. 1 — with reservations. Keep the door open, but let this boy know he's got competition. Drop a hint that he's your second choice too!

And don't ding a guy for indecision. Better you should help make up his mind by being casual, undemanding, understanding — and not always home when he calls! — HALEN

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

John and I have been going around together for two years. We break up up and make up. We've discussed getting married, but I can't forget our constant quarrels. We claim we love each other dearly, but I wonder . . .

Now John is visiting his sister in Europe, and I can't deny — it's kind of a relief.

The other day his younger brother Tom called to ask if he could return some of my records. He's been away at college, so I'd hardly even met him, except to rap over the phone. He's my age: 22.

When Tom arrived, I was shocked to find "the John of my dreams." We talked almost the whole night and I saw in him the things that made me love John — but he's opposite from John in the things that make us fight.

We've been seeing each other ever since. I'm truly in love this time, but I can't bear to face John, though I now realize we'd never have made it together. He'll be home in a month. How can I tell him — or shall I just drop out of both their lives? — WISH I'D MET TOM FIRST

DEAR WISH:

You can't live your life for somebody else.

If you're sure Tom is Mr. Perfect, then try to cool things down with John so that he won't get hurt. Don't hit him with "I'm in love with your brother." (After all, you may not be, even though you THINK you're sure.) Just ask a lot of questions in your letters, and get him thinking, too. — SUE

DEAR WIMTF:

. . . Could be John is already thinking, and the break-off may not be as rough as you imagine. Would a man who is desperately in love leave for Europe alone (when he could have made the trip a honeymoon)?

. . . And who asked Tom to return the records?

Perhaps he's waiting for that "Dear John" letter. Get on with it! — HELEN

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

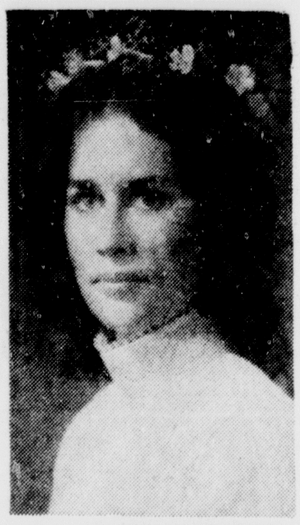
From Biblical Times

Metallic yarns have been used since Biblical times for the apparel of the wealthy, the noble and the clergy. Gold and silver were hammered into very thin sheets and cut into narrow stripes to be woven into the garments. Since World War II aluminum has become the base for most metallic yarns used today.



MRS. MICHAEL E. CARTER
Vows in Pennsylanvia

Couple To Reside In Virginia

Johanna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Iobst of Center Valley, formerly of Burlingame, and Michael is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Albert B. Carter of San Anselmo.

The bride's sister, Elizabeth Iobst of Center Valley was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Noela Abruzzo of Great Neck, N.Y., and Barbara Iobst of Center Valley, another sister of the bride.

Craig W. Carter of Mill Valley performed best man duties for his brother, and the ushers were the bride's brother, Steven F. Iobst of Center Valley, Eugene Trahan Jr. of Washington, D.C. and John Walck of Frankfurt, Germany.

After a wedding trip to San Francisco and the Barbados, the newlyweds will live in Alexandria, Va.

Now a flight attendant with Pan American Airways in Washington, D.C., Johanna was graduated from Mills High School in Millbrae and West Chester State College.

Michael is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and San Francisco State College. He is a diplomatic courier with the U.S. Department of State.

Mrs. Mary C. Peters of Santa Rosa is his grandmother.

Drudgery Is Taken Out Of Washday

When Grandma called washday drudgery day, she was right. Just 20 years ago, one study reports, it took 57½ minutes and 625 steps just to hang, remove and fold eight pounds of clothes —after they were washed.

Today, an automatic dryer cuts the time to 10 minutes and three steps.

MARRIAGE TIPS

Use A Tape Recorder The Next Sparring Round

NEW YORK (UPI)—Though it's hard to believe, those newlywed love birds ought to prepare for discord in marriage.

Togetherness, if it means continual invasions of privacy—physical, spiritual, intellectual— can rip a marriage apart if it isn't managed properly, you see.

Dr. George O'Neill and his wife of 26 years, Nena O'Neill, are the two eggheads who say so in "Open Marriage" (M. Evans and Co.), a book that contains a blueprint for saving the institution of marriage in the United States.

Said institution is floundering like a boat on a stormy sea. One out of three marriages end in divorce. Some authorities estimate 75 per cent of all marriages are ailing.

They also give some great tips for the civilized way to stage a marital spat—via tape recorders.

No. You don't throw the recorder instead of flinging dishes or skillets. What you do, when you're angry and want to make a point: take a tape recorder into a room. Alone. Pour your your thoughts, giving your side of the argument.

Then leave it for your mate to listen to same. Mate, as step two in this civilized process, speaks a rebuttal into the recorder microphone — alone. And leaves the reply. This can go on—with each side adding the stuff of which arguments are made, but with a difference. The atmosphere is calm or somewhat cool.

Another tip for keeping marriages from stunting the growth of individual partners: aloneness, though together under the same roof.

When O'Neill, for example, has the need of a lot of quiet time, he puts on a dingy golf hat. When his wife sees that, she knows she must not speak to him or distract him in any way.

And Mrs. O'Neill? She wears a particular bandana on her head. When hubby sees that, he knows to keep quiet and also distant.

Mark Boitano Marries Patricia Anne McCarthy

The Chapel at San Domenico School for Girls in San Anselmo was the setting for the wedding of Patricia Anne McCarthy to Mark Edward Boitano of Santa Clara on Sunday morning.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer C. McCarthy of San Rafael, Patricia was attended by her sisters, Christine McCarthy as maid of honor, and Michele McCarthy as bridesmaid. Julie Boitano, the bridegroom's sister, was also a bridesmaid.

Frank Boitano of San Jose served as best man for his brother. The ushers were Mark McCarthy of San Rafael, the bride's brother, and Steven Boitano of Santa Clara, the bridegroom's brother.

A luncheon followed at San Domenico Alumnae Hall.

After a skiing trip to Vail and Aspen, Colo., the newlyweds will live in Washington, D.C., where the bridegroom is stationed with the Army.

Patricia is a grduate of San Domenico School and University of Santa Clara.

She is also the sister of Terrance McCarthy of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mrs. Cornelius McCarthy of San Rafael.

Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Boitano of Santa Clara and the grandson of Mrs. Frank Boitano and Louis Baldas sar, both of San Jose.

He was graduated from Bellarmine College Preparatory School and the University of Santa Clara. He has been a ski instructor at Sugar Bowl, Norden.

Ways To Aid Environment

In every community there are things you can do to help the environment, according to the American Gas Association.

Start at home in little ways by returning wire hangers to the dry cleaners and laundry. Save on unnecessary paper bag disposal by using grocery bags until they are worn out or, as the Europeans do, take along a reusable bag of your own to the supermarket or store.

Keep a litter bag in your car. There are some people who even keep small plastic bags in their purses for cigarettes, candy wrappers, gum and thing like that.

Get to know your community recycling centers, find out what materials they want and do what you can to support them, the association recommends.

Bare-Backed Look

What's for the hostess with the mostest who entertains at home or terrace or patio? Answer: The bare-backed, plunging neckline on pajamas in fabulous floral prints.

ALUMNAE

'Rest' Wool Clothes

Woolen clothes must be pressed with steam to retain the appearance of the fabric. Woolen garments should be allowed to "rest" for about 24 hours between wearings for them to return to shape, advises the American Home Economics Association.

Wedding Held In San Rafael

Irene Laufer became the bride of John Cardoza in a ceremony March 25 at Mission San Rafael Arcangel in San Rafael. A reception at Dominic's restaurant followed the ceremony.

Maid of honor for her sister was Marcia Laufer of San Rafael, and the bridegroom's brother, Joey Cardoza, also of San Rafael, was best man. The bride's brothers, Michael and Andrew Laufer, ushered.

Following a wedding trip to Southern California the newlyweds will live in San Rafael.

The bride is the daughter of Robert Laufer of Santa Venetia and Dolores Laufer of San Rafael. A graduate of San Rafael High School, she is employed at Marin General Hospital. Susan Derr of Chico and Deborah Penaluna of Reno, Nev., are also her sisters. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Cooper and Mrs. Catherine Laufer, all of San Rafael.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cardoza of San Rafael. A San Rafael High School graduate, he attends College of Marin and is employed at Denny's restaurant. Susan Cardoza is his sister.

Woman Ranger Just "Thrilled"

SANTA CRUZ — (UPI) — Paula Peterson, 23, first woman to enter fulltime ranger service with the California Department of Parks and Recreation, says she's "thrilled with the whole thing."

Paula took the state exam and qualified for the training program on the basis of her combined written and oral score. She has been assigned to training duties at Big Basin Redwoods State Park out of Boulder Creek.

"It's been almost scary, but I'm thrilled with the whole thing," said Miss Peterson.

She does "get hit with this women's lib thing and people look at me and I know that some think I went out for the job because there are no other women in it. But that isn't true.

"I wanted a job outdoors, dealing with the public," she said.

KITCHEN HINTS

Familiarity Can Breed Contempt In Knife Use

(I-J Special Report)

CHICAGO — Nicks, punctures and gashes — 200,000 each year — are the unhappy result of misusing kitchen knives.

Familiarity breeds contempt — that's the big reason for kitchen cuts, according to the National Safety Council.

WRONG USE of a knife — using it to pull out carton staples, open a can, or pry up a lid — causes many injuries. So does use of the wrong knife for a task.

Basic kitchen cutlery — each piece designed for a specific use — should include a paring knife for peeling, scraping and small tasks; a utility or trimmer knife for slicing, dicing and coring vegetables and fruits and for trimming and scoring some meats; a hefty butcher knife capable of dealing with stubborn joints; a carving knife for cutting hot meats and poultry; and a ham slicer.

Slips are another common cause of knife injuries. To avoid them, grip the knife handle firmly, always cut away from your thumb or hand — and concentrate. Many slips are caused by inattention. The sharper the knife, the less likely it is to slip. A dull knife calls for extra pressure, and when the force finally overcomes the resistance, the blade moves suddenly and unexpectedly.

Incorrect washing and storage of knives can be unsafe too. Many homemakers have been cut while groping for a knife in the dishwater or a jumbled drawer. A few simple precautions would prevent such injuries. For example, wash sharp knives separately from tableware and place them point down in the silverware cup of the drainer or alongside the drainboard. Knives should be dried separately, too — not gathered up in a handful of tableware.

Ways To Start Conservation

Conserving water is one way the housewife can contribute to the conservation of natural resources, according to the American Gas Association.

Keep a bottle of drinking water in the refrigerator instead of letting the tap run until the water gets cold. Fix leaking faucets, and use the dishwasher for storage until there is enough for a full load.

If you wash dishes by hand, the association recommends using a dish pan or stopper over the drain. Don't wash every single plate or knife and fork under constantly running water.

Engagement Of Couple Is Announced

Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Keys of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter Janice M. Keys to Vernon L. Mandler Jr. of San Anselmo.

The couple plan to be married June 17 at St. Anselm's Church in San Anselmo.

Janice is the sister of Robert T. Keys of Rohnert Park, Cynthia and David Keys of San Rafael, and Richard Keys, who is serving with the Navy in Rhode Island.

She is the granddaughter of John J. Keys of Berkeley and Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Lymburner of Petaluma.

Janice is a San Rafael High School graduate and is employed with Pacific Telephone Co. in San Rafael.

The future bridegroom is the son of Vernon Mandler of San Anselmo and the brother of Mrs. William Meagor and Mrs. Everett Cirio, both of San Anselmo, and John Mandler of Novato and Rick Mandler of San Anselmo.

Vernon is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and is employed with Trailorboat in San Rafael.

The Smock Showing Up With Pants

Variations of the artist's loose-fitting smock are showing up as topping for pants. Designers finish off the costume with tasselled or plain ropes of jewelry hanging almost to the waist and with big, "door knocker" earrings.

College Wants Creek Flood Work Resumed

Visions of having to navigate College of Marin parking lots by rowboat spurred Marin Community College District trustees last night to urge resumption of work on the stalled Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

"If no additional work is completed, the capacity of the stream bed (through the college area) is historically exceeded on an average of once every three years," Grasham explained. Water spilling over the creek banks upstream would reach the campus from Kent Avenue, he explained.

The result could be inundation of the parking lot beneath the new science center and lots adjoining the temporary buildings housing the computer center, and near the physical education buildings.

Not only would lack of flood control endanger the district's more than $3.5 million investment in the science center, but plans for other buildings to serve the campus's goal of 5,000 students would face problems, Grasham warned.

The legal entanglements involving the Town of Ross, Marin Flood Control District,. Army Corps of Engineers and other agencies pose a threat that the Army "could conceivably" abandon the Corte Madera Creek project, Dale A. Fleming, college planning director, warned.

Fleming and Grasham reviewed developments since mid-March, when the Ross Town Council effectively blocked further work on the Army's channel work and Charles P. Murphy, county flood control engineer told the Independent-Journal that completion of portions of the work through Ross had been delayed at least a year.

The college has requested copies of court rulings in the suits involving the project, Grasham added.

The district trustees last night ordered the staff to prepare a resolution urging the town, the county and the federal agency to resolve the delay as soon as possible.

The Marin Community College District board also:

GRADUATION — Approved changing graduation dates from Friday, June 16, to Wednesday, June 14, for 1972, and from June 15, 1973, to June 13.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations of and voted appreciation to Martha Valliant, instructor in the registered nursing program since 1965, and Cathryn Burgess, instructor in vocational nursing since 1970.

INDIAN VALLEY — Approved spending up to $12,000 for additional site surveys at the Indian Valley campus, and $19,700 for soil tests, and confirmed the contract with Neptune and Thomas, architects for the campus.

GOALS — Approved participation by college trustees and officials in a workshop of the Joint Committee on the Master Plan for Higher Education, Monday in Berkeley.

EMERGENCY — Voted to join in the unified Marin County Operational Area Emergency Services Organization for civil defense, disaster and other emergency preparations.

OVER 18 — Heard Grasham report that a conference Tuesday in Sacramento indicated the budget impact of recent legislation defining 18-year-olds as adults would be delayed at the community college level for at least a year, while corrective legislation is being prepared.

MEETINGS — In addition to the regular meeting April 19, scheduled a workshop session for 8 p.m. April 12 on faculty salaries and board policies.

Driver's Head Cut In Petaluma Crash

Bessie H. Blakeway, 68, of 1821 Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts suffered in a two-car accident at 1 p.m. yesterday at East Washington and Payran streets, Petaluma.

Police said her car collied with a car driven by Andrew Reid, 76, of 314 Petaluma Boulevard, South, Petaluma.

ART REVIEW

Bay Area Sculptors Combine Talents For Major Exhibition

By ADA GARFINKEL

Fourteen Bay Area sculptors have combined their sizable skills, wit, and imaginative perception to create a major exhibit in the Fine Arts Gallery, College of Marin, through April 28.

There is no monumental sculpture. These artists have oriented their work to concern with processes, sociological content (political and environmental), to inner space, and to fun. Process and subject matter are so skillfully blended that they are inseparable. They do not, however, overwhelm the viewer — they gently nudge him.

By far the most unusual works are the two huge wall sculptures by Hugh Wiley. Both feature bull's horns and matador capes and are constructed of cement over chicken wire. The capes are filled with folds and puffs suggestive of energy and motion.

In "Wovoka Messiah", the cape is light tan. Bands of copper and brass and a "sun" surmount the horns, and a variety of cattle brands and cowboy symbols are painted beneath the cape. In "Untitled" the cape is black and more contained. The graffiti is more prominent, more varied, and more pointed. Chinese calligraphy and other Far-Eastern languages are painted in profusion along with a variety of symbols — the whole adding up to Willey's largest lettered clue: "Interface".

"Shboom", "Prone", and "Mr. Fidd" are three works by C.G. Simonds combining unusual materials: bronze, wood, aluminum, and wax, in masses of coils and thrusts.

An adjustable mirror of billboard proportions by Richard Berger, focuses on views of the environment, and two photographs show the expanded sculpture on a sandy beach, submerged in ocean water, and an overhead view reflecting mountain terrain.

Other environmental sculptures are Stephen Dubov's set of six steel floor pieces which show only the cast shadows of buildings, and Joseph Girard's black steel cubes, which are first molded and then collapsed by pressure, so that they look like lava spewed from some volcano.

Inner space is explored by Bella Tabak Feldman biologically in "Extrusion", and psychological duality in "Space Egg". The latter is of cast aluminum molded in two sections, both resting on a laminated wooden carrying case with handles. An inscription in French invites the viewer to open the egg. The right-hand outside portion of the "egg" reveals a bright, smiling face; the left-hand interior section is bathed in a murky blue in which the facial features are barely visible.

Violance is preconditioned in the tiny wooden "thingies" of wood and string created by Stan Askew, who titles them "Anti Toy 1, 2, and 3".

And if one doesn't know what to do with old inner tubes, Jerry Bol shows the way in his inflated "Raspberry #2", complete with sound effects.

Most of the sculptors in this exhibit are art instructors, and several of them have exhibited extensively. Bella Feldman, Sidney Gordin, Theodore Odza, and Vaea are among those who have filled numerous commissions. An exhibit of this calibre should prove inspirational to aspiring young artists.

Gallery hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 10 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Krips To Launch Busy Week Saturday With Gala Concert

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

Josef Krips, conductor emeritus of the San Francisco Symphony, will conduct his 70th gala birthday concert Saturday night at the Opera House.

Krips, who continues to be actively engaged in worldwide musical circles, will present a concert of some of his favorite selections — Weber's "Overture to Euryanthe"; Beethoven's Symphony No. 8; Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," and the "Suite from Der Kosenkavalier," by Strauss.

In addition Krips will conduct next week's regular subscription series of the symphony and on April 16 will lead a special performance of Mozart's "Coronation Mass," in St. Ignatius Church in San Francisco, in observance of his 50th year on the podium.

Woman Picks Jail To Give Dog Freedom

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI)— Georgia Pelle spent Tuesday night in the city jail rather than pay a $5 fine for allowing her dog to run loose.

Mrs. Pelle's dog, Sam, was spotted running free in December by suburban Crestview patrolman Ed Martin, and he issued her a summons.

She argued in court that the dog had broken his leash while tied to a post in the back yard.

The judge found Mrs. Pelle guilty and fined her $5. She refused to pay on principle.

Patrolman Martin was ordered to take her to jail. She stayed in the lockup about three hours and at 12:01 a.m. authorities said it was a new day and released her.

Martin told Mrs. Pelle he was turning in his badge as a result of the episode, explaining that "for $300 a month it's not worth it."

Sam ran away again in January and hasn't been seen since.

Films Set For Senior Citizens

A series of films for senior citizens will be presented at the Novato branch library at 3 p.m. Tuesdays throughout April, the library reported today.

The series will open Tuesday with "J.D. Goes Hunting," "Let's Go Fishing in the Northlands," and "Western Newfoundland."

"Teton Trails," "To Walk the Divide", "The Wonderful World of Wine" and "Colors of Italy" will be shown April 18.

"New Voice in the Tundra," "Europe from Dusk to Dawn" and "Highways to Splendor," on April 25.

Plans For Motel Given Approval

Plans for a motel have been approved by the Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments.

The board granted the request of James Oberg for a motel with a rustic exterior to blend with the adjacent Cattlemen's restaurant, Trading Post Store and Plant Nursery on Petaluma Boulevard North.

The board on Tuesday also approved the request of Earl Anderson to build a tri-plex at 327 Bassett Street.

Keys Taken

Thieves apparently using master keys took $60 from desks at the Marin Terrace School in Almonte between 1 p.m. Saturday and 5:40 a.m. Monday, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Fuschia Society Meets Saturday

Albert Wilson of the television show "Dig It With Albert" will talk about gardening in the Bay Area at the annual meeting of the American Fuchsia Society at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Novato Community House.

Branches from Northern California are expected to attend the meeting hosted by the Novato branch of the society. Awards will be presented for photographs of fuchsias.

Hostesses will be Josephine Barlow, Betty Barnes, Rose Elverfeld, Harriet Hood and Mide Simonds.

Donna Petersen To Give Next Dominican Concert

Donna Petersen will be presented by the Dominican College Music Associates in a concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Caleruega Hall, San Rafael.

The mezzo soprano will be accompanied by pianist Loyd Carroll in a program that will include three Elizabethan songs by Arnold Freed, "Songs of a Wayfarer" by Mahler, the finale from "Cinderella" by Rossini, five French songs by Debussy and Faure and five songs by George Cory.

The singer has been a guest soloist with more than 15 symphony orchestras, has participated in seven nationwide tours and sings regularly with the San Francisco Opera Company. She has also sung with the San Francisco Spring Opera, Guild Opera of Los Angeles, San Diego Opera Theater and Western Opera Theater.

She has been a soloist in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City and a frequent guest at the Cabrillo Music Festival and the Carmel Bach Festival.

DONNA PETERSEN
Mezzo soprano to sing

She will be a guest soloist in the Rogers and Hammerstein program to be presented by the San Francisco Symphony's pop concert this summer conducted by Arthur Fiedler.

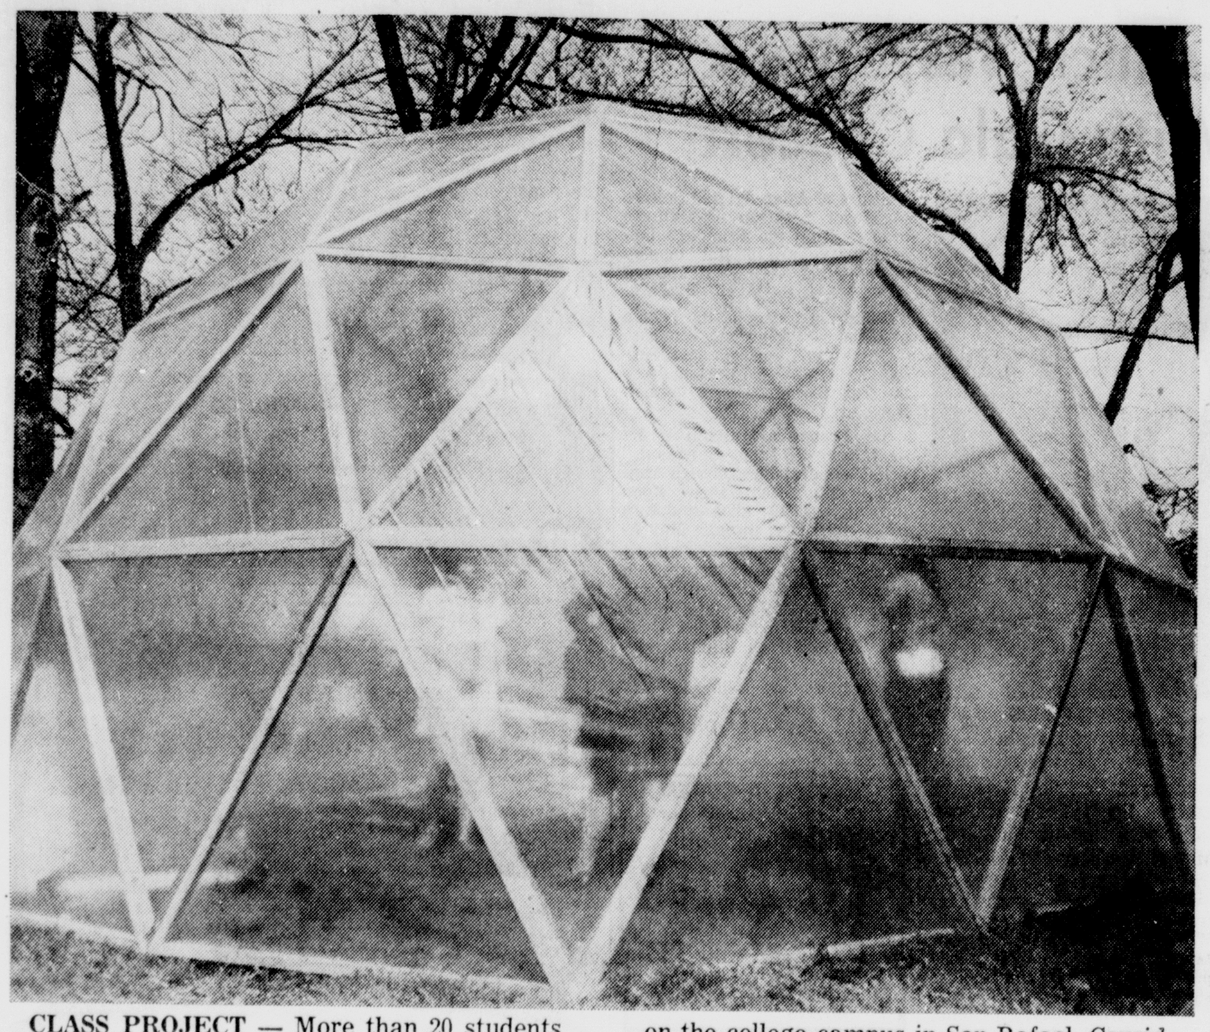
Students Build Dome From 'Book Learning'



CLASS PROJECT — More than 20 students in Richard Lumaghi's philosophy class at Dominican College have pitched in and applied their "book learning" to the real world. They constructed this geodesic dome on the college campus in San Rafael. Considered by some to be the architecture of the future, geodesic domes are assembled quickly and cheaply. This one costs less than $200.

EXPLANATION — Prior to construction, students listen to instructor Richard Lumaghi explain the principles of the dome with the aid of a miniature model. Developed by architect, poet, engineer and philosopher Buckminster Fuller, the geodesic dome is constructed of triangular-shaped sections designed to distribute stress within the structure itself.

FINISHING TOUCHES — Robin Dice surveys the final stages of construction, with only a few more triangles to go. Geodesic domes, she learned, are the only large domes that can be set directly on the ground as complete structures.

Red China Talk Set In Mill Valley

Robert Gomperts, San Francisco businessman and vice president of Committee for a New China Policy, will speak and show slides taken during a recent trip to mainland China at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley Wednesday at 8:15 p.m.

The presentation by Gomperts, president of an import-export firm in San Francisco, will be sponsored by the Marin chapter of the World Affairs Council of Northern California.

During the China visit, he and five others had a two-hour talk with prime minister Chou En-lai and dinner with Ch'iao Kuan-hua, who led the Chinese delegation to the United Nations last fall.

Gomperts will respond to questions from the audience. Reservations must be made with the World Affairs Council for the presentation, which is to be preceded by a cheese and wine buffet at 7:30 p.m.

Voter Registration Set-Up On Saturday

The League of Women Voters of Central Marin will conduct voter registration centers in San Rafael from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, according to Susan Stompe, voter service chairman.

Registration will be at the old county courthouse site in downtown San Rafael and at Northgate Shopping Center, she said.

Registration for the June 6 primary election closes next Thursday and the league is attempting to help reduce the number of unregistered eligible voters, Mrs. Stompe said.

Anyone at least 18 years of age by June 6, and a resident of the state and county for 90 days and of the precinct 54 days is eligible to register, she said.

Those who have moved, changed their name or occupation or wish to change their party affiliation also must register by next Thursday, she said.

Ranch To Open For Mustangs

NEWCASTLE, Utah (UPI)—The National Mustang Association has announced plans for a 44,000-acre ranch in southern Nevada devoted to the preservation of one of the nation's last herd of wild horses.

The only livestock will be free-running mustangs that range in the area, said C. Tom Holland, president of the association. He said the ranch will open April 15 in nearby Lincoln County, Nev.

Mustangs numbering in the millions once ranged the West, Holland said, but recent Bureau of Land Management statistics indicate fewer than 10,000 of the animals survive.

Two Plead Innocent To Kidnap

Two men charged with robbing, kidnapping and raping a Mill Valley woman pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court. A preliminary hearing for each was set for April 14.

Charles Moultry, 23, and Charles Lee, 22, both of San Francisco, were arrested March 29 after a chase across the Golden Gate Bridge.

The 28-year-old victim told police that two men, one armed, held her up in her driveway, then forced her to go with them on a drive through Southern Marin during which they took turns raping her.

Released two blocks from home, she called for help and sheriff's deputies stopped the car after chasing it from near Marin City.

SLEEPY SAN RAFAEL

Viewed from atop Wolfe Grade in a generally northern direction, the San Rafael of 100 years ago gave no hint of someday blossoming into a community of 40,000. The photograph, showing the D Street curve that remains today, is part of a display of memorabilia removed last month from the old county courthouse cornerstone. The display was set up yesterday at the Civic Center library and includes old newspapers, documents and valuable coins. The display, delayed a month when a specially built case was lost in shipping, will run at least through May.

Sixty-Day Extension Is Recommended

The Sausalito Planning Commission last night recommended that the Golden Gate Bridge District be given a 60-day extension of its conditional use permit to operate ferry service in the city.

Chairman Robert L. Nissen said the district was seeking the extension — until June 15 — to allow more time to complete plans for two ferry terminals for Sausalito. The original use permit was granted in August of 1970 and the district has received three extensions since that time, he said.

The commissions recommendation will be forwarded to the city council.

Nissen said the commission also granted a variance to Donald G. Davis to convert an industrial structure at 3000 Bridgeway into an office building.

A variance application by Heath Ceramics to reduce the size of a designated road in the Marin ship area to expand its present building over the area was also approved.

Hub Council Campaigners Trade Barbs

A challenger in Tuesday's San Anselmo City Council election has charged the two incumbents with keeping secret plans to widen Center Boulevard to Fairfax at a cost of $9 million.

The accusation by Richard Alan Raznikov, a 26-year-old law student, was termed an "outrageous lie" today by Councilman James F. Reed, one of the incumbents.

Raznikov said preliminary steps to the widening were under way, but Reed said today the city council plans no further widening projects in town. Raznikov's charge, he said, is "absolutely untrue."

The issue of traffic and the environment has been a major one in the campaign.

Accreditation For Dominican

Dominican College of San Rafael has announced its accreditation by the Western Association of Schools following inspection by a team of six representatives of public and independent colleges and universities.

The accreditation team, according to the Dominican announcement, noted the candor of the college's report, the vigorous and effective program in student personnel services and the high quality of instruction.

The accreditation will remain in effect until such time as new programs or new directions indicate a need for reevaluation by the association.

Thomas Recalls Events Of Civic Center Shooting

By MARY LEYDECKER

SAN JOSE — Gary W. Thomas, the young assistant district attorney permanently crippled from the August 1970 shoot-out, yesterday calmly and slowly recounted how he grabbed a gun and shot four kidnappers during the bloody battle.

The shot that left him paralyzed from the the waist down came, however, from outside the van in which he was held hostage, he said.

Speaking from his wheelchair in the center of the courtroom, Thomas told the jury in the Angela Davis case what he remembered of the horror-filled 45 minutes on the morning of Aug. 7.

After a great deal of confusion in the Marin Hall of Justice, Thomas, Judge Harold J. Haley and three women jurors were taken by their captors to a yellow van in the parking lot.

When they first got into the van, Thomas testified, Judge Haley asked McClain, "Where are we going?"

"We're going to the airport and take a plane," Thomas said McClain replied.

Thomas also told how he asked that the women jurors be released, but McClain told him, "No, you're all going."

After the van, crammed with three escaping San Quentin convicts, their young accomplice and the hostages, started up in the Marin Civic Center parking lot, it went only a short distance before coming to an abrupt halt, Thomas said.

"Then I saw Jonathan Jackson (the young accomplice) put his hand out of the driver's side window," Thomas said. Jackson, who was driving because convict James McClain had been unable to start the van, had a gun in his hand, according to Thomas.

"Then I heard one or maybe two shots," Thomas continued. They did not come from inside the van, he said.

"Jackson pulled his hand back inside the window and looked at it. There was blood on his hand," Thomas said.

"When I saw that, I immediately turned and looked at Judge Haley," he said.

"What did you see?" prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. asked Thomas.

"He was alive. An instant later, I saw the right side of his face slowly pulling away . . . it was as if it was in slow motion . . . all the outward appearance of his face was slowly moving away from the right side of his head," Thomas said.

Then Thomas said, he turned to his right, took the gun out of Jackson's wounded hand and fired a shot "in Jackson's direction."

He saw McClain moving toward the driver's seat and "I got him in the back," Thomas testified.

Then, "I turned and fired a shot in the area of Christmas (William Christmas, another convict), and then I shot Ruchell Magee in the chest," he continued.

He said he saw Magee still moving and he started to fire again but the gun clicked. (Christmas, McClain and Jackson all died in the battle.)

"I yelled out, 'stop firing — please stop firing,'" Thomas said.

"Just about the same time I felt sharp pains in my back and my legs gave out and I crumpled down," he concluded.

In answer to Harris's question, Thomas said "somewhat over an inch of my spinal cord was shot away and I am paralyzed permanently from the waist down."

Thomas sat quietly in his wheelchair when he finished his story as the gun he had used was brought out of an evidence cupboard and shown to Miss Davis and her lawyers. He gave her a long, impenetrable look as she examined the gun.

Then Thomas was subjected to merciless cross-examination by one of Miss Davis's attorneys, Leo A. Branton, who tried in various ways to discredit his testimony.

"You know don't you, that the shot that hit you didn't come from inside the van?" Branton asked.

"Yes," Thomas replied.

He said, however, he didn't know whether it was fired by San Quentin guards or not.

However, Thomas repeatedly gave a firm "no" to Branton's suggestions that the shooting might have taken place in a number of other ways than Thomas described.

Among Branton's suggestions was one that Thomas had hit the judge with a bullet aimed at Magee or another that his first shot had hit Magee, triggering the shotgun blast which killed the judge.

Branton also made much of confusing testimony given earlier by Thomas to law officers about the whereabouts of Christmas during the escape.

"Because of emotional involvement . . . you have given many different statements," Branton suggested, referring to the fact that Thomas's wife is a niece of the late judge.

Thomas replied that he was not particularly close to the judge but that he feared for the jurist's safety because he had a shotgun at his head.

Throughout the minutes of terror, Thomas said, "occasionally thoughts would come to me about how to get out of this predicament . . . Then I would think, 'don't do anything that would cause them to shoot the judge.'"

This was the reason, he said, that he did not grab a shotgun left lying on the floor of the van at one point.

Thomas also testified to Branton's pleasure that he had never heard the phrase "Soledad Brothers" during the morning.

Five other witnesses have said they heard demands that the Soledad Brothers be freed. The prosecution contends that the alleged conspiracy in which they say Miss Davis participated was aiming at freeing the Soledad Brothers, particulary George Jackson, with whom they say she was in love.

Today, several Marin lawmen were due to testify about how they were disarmed and helplessly watched the shoot-out, like many other officers.

Meanwhile, the Independent-Journal has been told that an important witness whom the prosecution couldn't locate, Judge Haley's bailiff, has been found in Suthern California.

James Layne, who left the sheriff's department last year, is now living in Ridgecrest, Kern County, and working there for a water district. He has been served with a subpoena and is expected to testify soon, an investigator for the attorney general's office said.

Gunmen Rob Petaluma Store

Two armed gunmen held up the Petaluma 7-11 store at 1:45 a.m. today getting $89 in food stamps and an undetermined amount of cash.

Clerk Terry L. Dillbeck, on the job only five days, told police the two young men entered the store witnh guns drawn and ordered the cash register to be opened. He said only cash and food stamps were taken and that both appeared nervous that a customer might walk in the door.

The robbers were described as between 19 and 22 years old, five feet, 10 inches tall, with shoulder length hair and dark clothing. The guns were believed to be .22-caliber pistols.

Assault Case Suspect Sought

Marin Sheriff's deputies are looking for a man described as a Mexican, about 23 years old who allegedly raped an 18-year-old hitchhiker near China Camp Monday.

Deputies said the man driving a late model Volkswagen picked up the girl in Cotati and promised to drive her to her home in Palo Alto, but took her to a secluded area near China Camp instead.

Afterwards, according to deputies, he drove the girl to Sausalito and released her about 5 p.m.

Cross Atop Church Will Shine Only Twice Yearly

The Novato Plan Review Committee last night approved the illuminated cross for the new church building at 1929 Novato Boulevard, but limited illumination to the religious holiday seasons.

The planning staff had recommended that the church retain its original plan for a wooden cross.

The committee also approved plans by Major Investment Co. for a five-unit apartment building on .36 of an acre on the north side of San Marin Drive west of San Mateo Way and plans by Ross Tankersley and Wayne Womack for two four-unit apartment buildings on two lots on the west side of Third Street

Buffet, Dance For Schoonover

A buffet dinner-dance for John C. Schoonover, candidate for the Novato City Council in Tuesday's municipal election, will be held at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Church in Ignacio.

During the evening there will be a community sing-a-long with musical film shorts. The social hour will begin at 7 p.m.

Painting Exhibit

A showing of contemporary paintings by Ralph Holmstad of Sausalito will be in the San Anselmo headquarters office of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Association through April. Paintings include abstracts, figures and still-life.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Try this quiz on the April 6 birthday of Raphael (1483-1520), the Renaissance painter:

T F 1. Rafaello Santi (his full Italian name) was a lazy boy who refused to learn how to paint until his angry father Giovanni spanked him.

T F 2. In 1499, studying in Umbria under the great master Il Perugino, young Raphael was so skillful in imitating the works of his teacher that today experts still argue over which is which.

T. F 3. At Florence, in an argument over painting styles with Michelangelo, Raphael lost his temper, took a hammer, and broke the nose off the uncompleted statue of David.

T F 4. His genius came to the attention of the Pope, who made him chief architect of St. Peter's Church in 1514 and director of excavations.

T F 5. Inspired to do many paintings of Mary, mother of Jesus, Raphael is perhaps best known for having done the world-famous "Sistine Madonna."

ANSWERS

1. FALSE — Raphael was eager to learn from his artist father, and was not lazy.

2. TRUE — There is no question, indeed, about Raphael having done many masterpieces.

3. FALSE — Works of art were destroyed by vandals, not sculptors and painters.

4. TRUE — Michelangelo did not work as an architect at St. Peter's until 1547.

5. TRUE — The museum at Dresden has this oil, painted by Raphael in 1518.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Speculation Is Fun, But The Sure Thing Scores The Points

Are you a speculative bridge player, or do you keep an eye out for sure things? There's more excitement in speculation, more security in the sure thing. You pays your money and you takes your choice.

SPECULATOR

South was a born speculator so he won the first heart trick and tried the diamond finesse. The finesse lost, and thingswent from bad ro worse.

East returned the queen of spades, and South was in trouble. It was too late to switch to clubs, for East would get two clubs, two spades and one diamond. Instead, South continued with the diamonds.

East took his second diamond trick and led the jack of spades to knock out declarer's last stopper in that suit. Now South could cash his eight tricks, but East took the rest.

CLUBS ARE SAFE

South should win the first heart and lead clubs instead of diamonds. East can take the king of clubs and force out the king of spades. Declarer now knocks out the ace of clubs while still controlling each suit. He can surely win two spades, three hearts, two diamonds and three clubs.

If you like sure things, your best course is to count tricks at the beginning of the play and tackle the suit that guarantees the contract. Be sure to estimate the damage the opponents can do each time you give them the lead.

If you prefer excitement, don't bother to count your tricks. You'll have the excitement, and your opponents will have the tricks!

The Kentfield School District board has scheduled a policy workshop at 8 p.m. on April 18 at Wolfe Grade School, according to Supt. Anthony C. Bacich. He said policy matters would be discussed, but no definite items had been scheduled.

Seven Lawmen Killed In March

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Seven law enforcement officers were killed in the line of duty in the nation last month, the FBI said Tuesday.

The deaths brought to 27 the number of local, county and state policemen killed during 1972, the agency said.

Thirty-four were slain during the first three months of 1971.

The FBI said 13 officers have been slain in southern states, eight in the northeast, and three each in western and north central states this year.

Acquittal In Harrisburg 7 Case

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—A defense attorney said today the jury's 10 to 2 vote for acquittal made it unlikely the government would seek to retry the Harrisburg Seven on conspiracy charges.

Thomas Menaker also said there was a good chance the defense could prove that the government discriminated against the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister, who were convicted Wednesday for smuggling letters in and out of prison.

"It is not likely they are going to retry the case when the jury vote was 10 to 2 for acquittal," Menaker said.

The jury was dismissed because it had failed to reach a unanimous verdict on the charge that the seven antiwar activists had plotted to disrupt the government by conspiring in 1970 to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, blow up Washington heating tunnels and vandalize draft boards. The trial lasted 11 weeks.

Six of the seven defendants, including Sister Elizabeth, are free on bond ranging from $5,000 to $10,000. The bonds will remain in effect until the government decides whether it intends to retry the seven or dismiss the charges against them.

The activists, except Berrigan who was returned to jail, plan an afternoon antiwar protest demonstration today at a defense plant 25 miles south of here, where Harrisburg Seven supporters recently damaged bomb casings which had been loaded on a freight car.

WELL-WISHERS — Sister Elizabeth McAlister is greeted by well-wishers as she leaves the Federal Building in Harrisburg, Pa., after the trial of the Harrisburg Seven. A jury returned an acquittal verdict yesterday on conspiracy charges. (UPI Telephoto)

The defense has asked for a post trial hearing in the case and trial Judge R. Dixon Herman set May 2 for the hearing at which the defense will argue that the letter smuggling conviction should be thrown out because no one has ever been prosecute for smuggling a letter in an and out of a prison.

Defense attorney Paul F. O'Dwyer said if Judge Herman did not dismiss the convictions on May 2, an appeal would be filed with the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

"If reason doesn't prevail on this level, certainly it will prevail on that level," O'Dwyer said.

Lawrence Evans of Dillsburg, Pa., a supermarket owner who was juror No. 6, said only he and another juror, a woman, held out to the end for conviction.

Petaluma Sets Special Session To Enact Development Policies

The Petaluma City Council yesterday sifted through details of ordinances establishing planned unit development and set a special meeting for Monday at 7:30 p.m. to enact them.

One ordinance creates a planned unit development district which will permit a variety of land uses in one development. The other ordinance establishes a planned community district to handle developments of 40 acres or more.

Included in the ordinances are provisions requiring that facilities such as schools, parks, fire and police protection, sewer and water systems are shown to be adequate to serve the proposed development. The council softened the wording somewhat to allow developers to show that services will be available within a reasonable time period.

The ordinances also require that school districts and other agencies with influence in the area to be developed will have the opportunity to submit reports and recommendations on the development and its effects.

In the past, residents have complained that uncontrolled growth has swamped local schools with students and urged that school boards be given a chance to comment and make recommendations.

After introducing the ordinances at the special meeting Monday, the council will discuss possible methods of enforcing the growth limit of 500 new living units per year.

The council has considered establishing a seven-member committee to sift through building applications and to recommend which can be built under the limit.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Mental Health In High Rises Versus Single-Family Homes

A Canadian psychiatrist believes that living in a high rise is more detrimental to mental health than living in a single-family dwelling. Most of the researcher's objections to apartment complexes are theoretical, but are based on his experiences as mental health director of a Toronto child guidance clinic. Dr. Daniel Cappon admits that mental health is difficult to define, but he used various psychiatric, social and medical disturbances as an index of social apathy. It was obvious he did not like high-rise living.

He saw numerous children who were deprived of running about for fear that they would make noise and arouse the wrath of neighbors and the landlord. As a result, they remained in bed or became lethargic, restless and introverted.

THEY WERE forced to live too close to adults. As a result, the adults became tense and irritable. Adolescents also suffered from "nothing to do" in contrast to those living in single-family dwellings. Most of their friends were indoor rather than outdoor types. Furthermore, in public housing, vandalism rates were high (accounting for 30 per cent of maintenance costs).

The struggle for identity in the high rise was much greater than among those living in single unit homes. A feeling of insecurity was not good for the ego, especially among children. Obviously, those living in high rises spent more time watching television.

ADULT MALES in high rises suffer from deprivation of masculine outlets and many are forced to share what society considers feminine household chores. Mothers develop anxieties because they cannot keep an eye on their children playing in the streets.

Dr. Cappon also mentioned the poverty-stricken squatters in Caracas, Venezuela. These people were happy until placed by government edict into high-rise public housing. They broke down emotionally and became politically menacing. He inferred that many high rises were like prisons and that people who lived in them tended to be inadequate and indifferent. They neglected to vote and leaned heavily on the welfare (mother) state.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

POOR NEIGHBOR

B. R. writes: A 15-year-old boy who lives in the apartment above plays handball on the uncarpeted floor. The racket is driving me nuts. I've asked him to stop, but he refuses. Is there any way I can steel my nerves to live with this poor excuse for a neighbor?

REPLY

Be thankful he doesn't bowl. The best approach is to soften the young man's "nerve" through kindness and courtesy. He will stop the ball playing when he realizes that his friend (you) is disturbed by the noise.

CAT FAMILY

Mrs. A. D. writes: Would visiting a person who owns 15 cats have any effect on my 10-month-old son?

REPLY

No, except that it might be a bit crowded. Keep the cats away from your son and do not let him crawl on the floor if the cats have run of the house.

CONCEPTION WHILE REDUCING

T. A. writes: Can a woman become pregnant while reducing?

Yes, provided the other criteria are met.

KGO (7), 8 p.m. — "The Young Sound of Spring" is a one-hour special focusing on the musical talents of groups from Bay Area schools. Bill Bixby hosts the 11th anniversary production of the "Young Sound" series. Featured is the San Rafael High School Jazz Ensemble among others.

KQED (9), KQEC (32), 8:30 p.m. — "NET Playhouse" presents "Gertrude Stein: When This You See Remember Me," chronicling the life of the American author and art patron. It is a repeat.

KRON (4), KCRA (3), 10 p.m. — Joey Bishop joins Dean Martin for an hour of comedy and music.

KQED (9), KQEC (32), 10 p.m. — "Masterpiece Theater" offers part II of "The Last of the Mohicans," based on James Fenimore Cooper's novel. Kenneth Ives stars. It is a British Broadcasting Corp. production. The program was filmed in Scotland.

Security At Centers Off One Visitor

A sheriff's deputy tried to search him for metal objects, but Vincent rebelled. "No one is going to touch me. I've never been so humiliated in my life," he said according to the sheriff's office.

As a crowd of about 30 persons gathered, Vincent refused to be searched, but took off his coat and threw it, his wallet and some change on the floor. He then threatened to strip off his pants too.

But the stalemate ended when Vincent made a second, more successful trip through the metal detector and was allowed to go on his way at 2:30 p.m.

Deputies said a flashlight in Vincent's coat probably set off the device which is part of the elaborate security measures in effect since shortly after the shoot-out and bombing at the Hall of Justice in 1970.

Johnson Coffee

A coffee for Larkspur City Council candidate Elizabeth Johnson will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Crandon G. Losee, 69 Hatzic Court, in Madrone Woodlands.

Felony Dope Charge Draws Innocent Plea

David Griffin Taft, 24, of Larkspur, pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court Tuesday to felony charges of possessing marijuana and cocaine. Trial was set for May 30.

Taft was arrested in November after police stopped his damaged car. Police said they found drugs while searching Taft and the vehicle.

The Wall Is Up Again In Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—The wall locked in East Berliners and shut out West Berliners again when its gates closed midnight Wednesday, ending an eight-day holiday grace period for families divided by brick and concrete.

The barriers were scheduled to open again during the May 17 to 24 Pentecost holiday, and East Germany and the Soviet Union said it may be for the final time unless West Germany's parliament ratifies the nonaggression pacts with Moscow and Warsaw.

Backers of the accords, instigated by a policy of rapprochement with the East begun by West German Chancellor Willy Brandt more than a year ago, said the family reunions enjoyed by an estimated 500,000 West Berliners would aid the campaign to get parliament to ratify the pacts.

The "goodwill gesture" by East Germany marked the first time West Berliners were permitted into the eastern half of the city in six years and the first time they were permitted to visit other cities in East Germany in 20 years. The wall was erected in 1961.

The Big Four ambassadors' agreement in September to lessen tension in Berlin gives West Berliners the right to visit the east for 30 days a year. But the Soviet Union has said it will not sign the agreement if the nonaggression pacts are not ratified.

The West German parliament votes on the pacts May 4, and the ratification bill faces stiff opposition. The fate of Brandt's ruling coalition could depend on the outcome.

Some of the opposition is aimed at West German recognition in the pact of Poland's territorial rights up to the Oder-Neisse line, which once was German territory.

"It was wonderful to see my sister again," an East Berliner said. "Now I am looking forward to the Pentecost holiday. But I hope the pacts will be ratified so we can meet on a permanent basis."

Superior Court Appearance Ordered

Hollenbeck, 24, of 701 McClary Road, was ordered Tuesday to appear in superior Court April 10 to face a charge of attempting to take a television set from a Mill Valley home last month.

TIBURON VOTERS . . . ONE MINUTE PLEASE

SOME SERIOUS MISCONCEPTIONS HAVE EMERGED FROM THE COUNCIL CAMPAIGN. YOU SHOULD KNOW THE FACTS.

MISCONCEPTION

- "There are proposals to change the zoning of certain single family residential areas in Tiburon to apartment zoning. (Political advertising claim)
- The present City Council is responsible for "allowing" overbuilding of multiple developments.
- The present City Council approved the defacement of Mt. Tiburon.
- The new Hilarita will produce . . . depending on how you hear it . . . "500 units" or "500 people" in "low cost, low income" housing which somehow "sneaked in".

FACT

- Not one square inch is being so considered. Just the opposite is true.
- Not so. The City Council has no control over multiple developments except on appeal or if in Planned Development Zone. Nor does the Planning Commission. This is the responsibility of Bd. of Design Review (three Planning Commissioners). Both the Zoning Ordinance and the multiple zoning areas were adopted by the 1967 Council.
- Not so. The City Council of 1966 and 1967 approved what has happended there.
- Totally inaccurate. a) units approved = 112 b) total bedrooms in these units = 255. Therefore, the impossible can happen only if sexes and ages are right, there are two persons in every bedroom, with never a vacant apt. c) the new Hilarity will be a private (not public) moderate (not low) income development; d) The Record — after 16 public hearings Re-Zoning approved — Planning Commission (5-0..2 absent) and City Council (3-0..2 absent); Master Plan — Commission (5-1..1 absent); Council (3-1..1 absent); Precise Plan — Commission (6-0..1 absent); Council (4-1)

COUNCILMAN ANNE ELLINWOOD'S RECORD

- As a citizen . . . even before incorporation . . . she fought creeping mulitple zoning; as a councilman she urged design controls and has a voting record against the "uglies" whenever any came before Council.
- As a citizen she urged that the Council not approve weaknesses in the Zoning Ordinance; as a Councilman she has consistently urged change and on April 3rd the Council initiated "radical surgery" on that part of the ordinance affecting multiple developments.
- As a citizen . . . in 1967 . . . hers was the only voice speaking out against the Mt. Tiburon "uglification"; as Councilman she has participated in the planning which will help to heal the scars.
- As a citizen and Councilman she has supported redevelopment of the old Hilarita site by our community's own non-profit corporation . . . local people working together for local people . . . to build an AIA designed complex . . . and a better community.

Youth Movement At Peacock Gap

By RALPH CHATOIAN

A youth movement has sprung up at the Peacock Gap Country Club pro shop in the person of Rob McQuade, who at 24 must be the youngest head golf pro in the Bay Area.

McQuade, a West Virginia native and one of 15 children, officially took over the head pro duties on Easter Sunday. He's replacing veteran Harry Lawrence, 69, who has retired. McQuade is the "old man" of the pro shop since his three helpers — Ed Armbruster, Larry Santiago and Kevin Hood — are all younger. They are part-time workers who are attending College of Marin.

Rob's enthusiasm really shows. "The potential here at Peacock Gap is great," he said. "We want to have more tournaments here and we're starting an industrial league later this month. And I want to get a solid junior program started."

His interest in junior golf stems from his early start at the game, at age 8.

And like his age, don't let his size fool you. He has to stretch to reach 5-foot-7 and weighs 135 pounds wringing wet. But when he puts his tee shot 240 to 260 yards down the middle of the fairway he looks six feet tall. He has already toured the par 72 Peacock Gap course with rounds of five and six under par.

AS EXPECTED, it's McQuade's first golf pro job, although he was tutored by a man who many consider the best teacher in the game, Claude Harmon of Wingfoot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N.Y. He attended high school in New York and the Lehigh University for one year.

He quit college and joined the Marines and within six months in the Marine Corps, after officer candidate school, was awarded his commission as a second lieutenant, an officer at 20. But 14 months later he resigned his commission.

"I was given a guarantee of flying a phantom jet when I received my commission but later they switched and wanted me to fly a helicopter," he explained. "I didn't want any helicopter flying so I just got out . . . resigned my commission."

SO AT 21 Rob came to California, started selling insurance and working on his golf game. While living in San Francisco he met Gail Nielson and his bachelorhood ended. He and his bride bought a home in Pacifica from where he commutes, "but I'm hoping to build a house in Mill Valley."

There are no children, but there are five huge Afghan dogs. Rob's wife breeds them as a hobby.

No. 1 on his list of priorities is the industrial handicap league, for men and women, to be played on weekday evenings.

"WE'VE ALREADY filled three of the five nights," he said, explaining the summer program will start April 24 and run through October. He's scheduled an organizational meeting for 7:30 p.m. next Monday to explain the rules to all interested golfers.

The enthusiasm shows.

SERIES OPENERS

Favorites Triumph In Hockey Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Players and coaches alike prefer to look on the start of the Stanley Cup competition as a new season, but from the first night's results, at least, there hasn't been much change from the old season.

Form held up on all four fronts Wednesday night as the quarterfinals got underway, with the first and second place finishers in each division jumping off to 1-0 leads on their home ice. And the players who were in the forefront all year long, such as Phil Esposito and Gerry Cheevers of Boston, Vic Hadfield of New York, Gump Worsley of Minnesota and Tony Esposito of Chicago, once again had starring roles.

Phil Esposito, the leading scorer in the National Hockey League with 66 goals and 133 points, scored twice and Cheevers registered his fourth career playoff shutout as the Bruins blitzed the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-0 and Hadfield, a 50-goal scorer, also came through with a pair of goals as the Rangers edged the Montreal Canadiens 3-2 in East Division contests.

In the West, the 42-year-old Worsley turned in a shutout and 39-year-old Dean Prentice scored two goals to lift Minnesota to a 3-0 victory over St. Louis and Tony Esposito, Phil's brother, was beaten only once as Chicago overcame the stubborn Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1.

All four series resume tonight at the same sites before shifting to Toronto, Montreal, St. Louis and Pittsburgh for weekend games.

Phil Esposito broke a scoreless tie with his goals at 17:24 and 19:41 of the second period, and he called the first one "the greatest goal of all time because it went in."

Once Esposito opened it up, the Bruins put the game away with third-period goals by Don Marcotte, John McKenzie and Fred Stanfield. Cheevers, who put together a 31-game unbeaten string during the regular campaign, turned aside 27 Toronto shots.

"There was only one real tough shot," Cheevers said. "That was (Jim) Harrison's shot in the first period. We were real disciplined on defense. We didn't give them the shots. We played it real tight."

Hadfield's second goal of the game came with only 7:17 left to play and provided the Rangers with their first playoff victory over Montreal after 11 consecutive losses, dating back to 1957. Bobby Rousseau, a Canadian star for 10 years, set up both of Hadfield's scores with goalmouth passes and Hadfield also drew an assist on the Rangers' other goal by Bill Fairbairn.

Claude Larose and Frank Mahovlich scored for Montreal.

Bob Leiter scored for Pittsburgh with the game only 1:25 old, but Tony Esposito shut off the Penguins the rest of 'the way and Chicago went on to win on two goals by Pit Martin and one by Jim Pappin.

Pittsburgh Coach Red Kelly later criticized the officiating of Referee Bill Friday, who called 17 penalties, including three misconducts and three majors.

"Chicago doesn't need Friday's help," said Kelly, who was particularly incensed at a major to Eddie Shack. "They got plenty of talent of their own. We had a pretty good game going and our guys were as good as they were until Friday got into the act."

Rondon To Fight Foster Tomorrow

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The world light-heavyweight championship will be decided tomorrow tonight when Vicente Paul Rondon of Caracas, Venezuela, and Bob Foster climb into the right for a scheduled 15-round fight.

Neither Foster nor Rondon has ever been defeated by a light-heavyweight and both men are rated as two of the finest punchers in the sport.

Foster, a 33-year-old native of Albuquerque, New Mexico, stands six-foot-three and a half and will carry a two-inch height advantage into the nationally televised bout.

Rondon, 28, was recognized as the World Boxing Association's champion when he knocked out Jimmy Dupree in Caracas on Feb. 27, 1971. He has won 37 of his 44 pro bouts.

Foster won the world boxing council crown May 24, 1968, when he knocked out the late Dick Tiger in the fourth round of a bout in Madison Square Garden. He has successfully defended his title four times.

At stake, beside the undisputed light heavyweight title, is $50,000 guaranteed each fighter.

San Diego State Issues Threat To Quit League

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—San Diego State has threatened to withdraw from the Pacific Coast Athletic Association unless its football team is allowed to pull out by itself.

The move is a part of plans to upgrade the football program of the Aztecs.

Earlier this year, Aztec athletic director Dr. Ken Karr asked for PCAA approval of the football pullout but was rejected. He said he would withdraw all teams from the conference if his same request is denied at the next meeting June 5-6.

Washington To Face Pittsburgh Steelers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —The Pittsburgh Steelers of the American Football Conference will meet the New York Giants on the weekend of Aug. 5 and the Washington Redskins Sept. 9 in Pittsburgh and will play the New Orleans Saints on Sept. 2 in Memphis, Tenn. in preseason games.

A team spokesman said it would be decided later whether the two exhibition games in Pittsburgh would be played on Friday night, Saturday night or Sunday afternoon.

Warriors, Bucks Tonight

MILWAUUEE (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors face the end of their most successful season tonight unless they can somehow beat the Milwaukee Bucks.

Entering the fifth game of their National Basketball Association playoff, the Bucks lead 3-1 in the best-of-seven series. A Warrior win would send the teams back to Oakland Saturday night for game No. 6.

Despite Warrior center Nate Thurmond neutralizing Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Bucks, Golden State has had little luck stopping the rest of the Milwaukee team. Jabbar and Oscar Robertson scored only 26 pgints between them in the Bucks 106-99 win over the Warriors Tuesday night but Bob Dandridge and Curtis Perry combined for 48.

Thurmond's play hasn't reflected any outward concern he may have about his future. There are rumors he is about to jump to the Carolina Cougars of the rival American Basketball Association for $2 million.

But the general manager of the Cougars shrugged aside the rumor.

Bob Bartels, financial adviser for the veteran 6-11 center, said the Carolina team was using money from an ABA "war chest" to try to lure Thurmond away from the NBA. But Scheer denied there is any such war chest.

"If Thurmond wanted to discuss business after the playoffs," said Scheer, "he's welcome to."

Thurmond is in the final year of a two-year, $250,000 contract with the Warriors. Warrior owner Franklin Mieuli plans to talk with his big center about the future as soon as the playoffs end. An option year remains on Thurmond's contract.

Walla Walla Signs Movie Actor Russell

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI)—Walla Walla of the Northwest League has announced the signing of three infielders, including movie actor Kurt Russell.

Russell, 21, who has appeared in several Walt Disney productions, played second base last year for the Bend (Ore.) Rainbows. Also signed were two other Bend players—Jim Van Wyke of Richland, Wash., and Curt Daniels of Vancouver, Wash.

Athletic Director Post To Koentopp

It is his third post at the Jesuit University. the 1959 Gonzaga graduate also is coach of the baseball team and chairman of the physical education department. He succeeds T.H. (Hank) Anderson who resigned earlier this year.

No Break In Strike

Gloomy Outlook Foreseen

NEW YORK (UPI) —The pressure on the major league players and their executive director mounted today as hardline clubowners seemed willing to let baseball's first general strike continue indefinitely.

All eight opening-day games originally scheduled for today as well as Wednesday's opener at Cincinnati were postponed and it was obvious that no games would be played Friday. It also is unlikely that any games will be played Saturday or Sunday and some clubs are talking about cancelling games well into next week.

The St. Louis Cardinals, whose president, August Busch, Jr., sounded the hard line a week ago, took the lead by announcing the Cards are cancelling all games "until further notice." Some owners were reported to be willing to compromise during their meeting in Chicago Tuesday night but more and more seem to be taking the Busch-line.

At issue is a demand by the Major League Players Association and executive director Marvin Miller that the clubowners make up a 17 per cent costof-living increase in the players' pension fund. The players offered to accept the owners' last money offer if they could also use what they claim is "surplus" money in the pension fund but the owners turned down the plan, terming it "imprudent."

The strike was called by the team player representatives by a vote of 47-0-1 last Friday after they received a strike vote of 663-10.

Ewing Kauffman, owner of the Kansas City Royals, and Jim Campbell, general manager of the Detroit Tigers, were among the most vocal of the hard-liners Wednesday as the strike went into its fifth day.

"If the strike is not settled within seven days, the players will have to go through spring training again," said Kauffman. "And they'll go through it with no salary.

"I told the players they were damned fools to go on strike," he said. "I told 'em wait until next year because the reserve clause is coming up. I think because they struck now, they'll lose next year.

"It's time the players learned the facts of life," added Kauffman. "In the American League last year, there were only three teams that showed a profit — Boston, Detroit and Baltimore."

"It could be over tomorrow or it could last another month," said Campbell when asked about the duration of the strike. "I don't think there should have been a strike. They should have kept negotiating, getting the facts and various things on the pension program."

Campbell added that he thinks the clubs will need a week to become operational after the strike is ended.

"Like ticket sales in Detroit," he said. "We're still doing business as usual but ... then there's hotel accommodations, transportation and things like that."

Manager Earl Weaver of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles said that many of the Orioles "didn't want the strike" and in Chicago, the White Sox permitted players to work out at White Sox park. Seventeen players showed up.

No new date has been set for any further meetings between Miller and John Gaherin, the chief negotiator for the club owners.

SWIMMER DE MONT ON OLYMPIC ROAD

I-J Special Report

DALLAS, Tex. — Rick DeMont of Terra Linda took a giant step toward earning a United States Olympic team berth here yesterday, placing sixth in the 500-yard free style in the National Amateur Athletic Union Swimming Championships.

DeMont, 15, was a finalist in a field that included American record holder John Kinsella of Indiana University and former 400-meter world record holder Tom McGreen of the University of Southern California.

DeMont, training with the Marin Aquatic Club but swimming unattached, lowered his best time by five seconds to 4:34.5.

His coach, Don Swartz of the Marin club, said his race was "just outstanding, a good omen of what is to come" in DeMont's best event — the 1650-yard free Saturday.

Four other Marin Aquatic Club swimmers raced yesterday in a "very impressive" local showing at the national championships, according to Swartz.

Jo Hislop, 16, improved her 500 free time to 5:16.1, although not placing.

Maura Campion, 13, also topped her best mark in that event by more than a second, turning in a 5:17.4.

Denise Ham, 17, and Paul Cane, 18, swam the 100 butterfly and 100 breast stroke events, respectively, but were slightly off their previous top records in 1:02.0 and 1:02.8, respectively.

Bay Area: 1 Strike, No Balls

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" was last today on the hit parade of fans of the San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics.

An awesome stillness hung heavy over Candlestick Park, home of the Giants, as their scheduled 1972 opener against the San Diego Padres today was postponed because of the players strike.

Instead of greeting an expected throng of about 45,000 spectators, refurbished Candlestick Park lay barren. A Giants spokesman said the date of an opening game at the park is now indefinite.

The A's were scheduled to open their new season today in Chicago against the White Sox but that game also has been postponed.

The Giants announced that fans may exchange their tickets to cancelled games for similar tickets to other games. They can do this by mail or at the box office windows at Candlestick.

RAIDERS GET AIDE, LOSE ANOTHER

On the plus side, Paul Roach, a coaching aide at North Dakota University, Wyoming and Wisconsin, became the new offensive backfield coach for the National Football League team.

Roach has tutored such pro running back notables as San Francisco's Vic Washington, Miami's Jim Kiick and Green Bay's Dave Hampton.

Swimming Program To Start

Coach Don Swartz says that the 45-minute sessions will be held Monday through Thursday evenings until mid-June for youngsters with little experience in swimming.

Swartz said, "The goals of our program are four-fold: It is designed as a low pressure, organized recreation; it will improve a child's physical fitness; it provides basic instruction in competitive strokes; it can serve as an introduction to competitive swimming at an individual's wish."

It is not necessary to sign up the first night, but Swartz said the Marin A.C. has had to close spring sessions in the past because of large turnouts.

Redwood and San Rafael High School pool sessions will begin at 5 p.m., while Terra Linda High starts at 5:30 p.m.

NBA Playoffs Tonight

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The final barrier standing in the way of a National Basketball Association playoff series between Milwaukee and the Los Angeles Lakers may be cleared tonight when the Bucks face the Golden State Warriors.

Milwaukee holds a 3-1 lead in games over the Warriors and needs only a victory tonight to clinch the series and set up the clash with the Lakers that will determine the Western Conference champion and, many believe, the eventual playoff champion.

The New York Knicks attempt to squar their Eastern Conference skirmish with the Baltimore Bullets at two victories apiece as the two teams meet at New York in an afternoon game. The contest was scheduled for 1 p.m. EST since the New York Rangers will be entertaining the Montreal Canadiens in Stanley Cup hockey action tonight.

The Boston Celtics will play host to the Atlantic Hawks in the fifth game of their Eastern Division semi-final Friday night. They are tied at two games each.

Meanwhile,the Lakers, setting a multitude of records during the regular season, wait in the wings—impatient to have a go at it.

Guard Gail Goodrich summed up the feeling by saying, "I would like us to start the next series as soon as possible. If we have too long a layoff, we may lose a little of our timing."

Coach Richie Guerin hopes his Hawks can come up with an effort similar to the one they produced in Atlanta Tuesday night when they edged the Celtics 112-110.

Rain Forces Prep Track Postponements

High school track meets in Southern Sonoma County were postponed yesterday due to rain.

The scheduled Sonoma County League meet between Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park and Piner High of Santa Rosa was set to run today at Sonoma State College.

The showdown between North Bay League foes Petaluma High School and Napa High, featuring some of the best long and middle distance runners in the area, was rescheduled for May 1 at Petaluma.

Trevino Talks Golf

Take It Easy, Tarzan

By LEE TREVINO

Okay, you sat in front of the tube all winter watching Arnie, Jack, Gene or even ol' Lee swing away on those taped golf shows. You're itching to get after it.

Don't swing hard too quick. The shots you saw on TV didn't tune up YOUR MUSCLES. The hacker's first sign of spring is an achin' back.

The average guy feels so powerful he takes a death grip on his club and tries to murder the ball. Then he butchers some shots and winds up sore in body and spirit.

Until your muscles are ready, hit it easy. You'll get stiff easy. As you get older — you got to have faith in your pro's advice on this — I think lighter clubs, weaker shafts and low compression balls can help your game. I see 20-handicappers hitting balls that they coulnd't mash with a sledgehammer.

A few sit-ups in front of the TV those winter days will tone up your body for your first game. I jump rope to keep my legs firm. Man, you never know when somebody's gonna ask you to tango.

NCAA Sues Second Cager: McDaniels

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— Jim McDaniels became the second former college basketball star sued by the National Collegiate Athletic Association within a period of six weeks Wednesday.

The NCAA filed a suit in U.S. District Court in Louisville, Ky., seeking $285,763.80 from McDaniels, the Carolina Cougars, the American Basketball Association, Athletes Advisory Group, Inc., and agent Norman Blass.

In announcing the suit, Earl Ramer, president of the NCAA, said, "The NCAA does not protest the signing of a professional contract by an athlete at any time. But the NCAA will take any action available to protect the integrity of intercollegiate athletics. We have been very much discouraged by the fraud and deception perpetrated against intercollegiate athletics."

On Feb. 23, the NCAA filed a similar suit against Howard Porter, former Villanova star, for $216,663. These are the only suits ever brought by the NCAA, although the organization has been sued many times.

McDaniels led Western Kentucky to a third-place finish in the 1971 NCAA tournament. Western Kentucky since has vacated its place and was required to refund $66,318.80, which it earned for its participation in the tournament.

Kentucky Defeats ABA Nets

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The real Kentucky Colonels finally stood up Wednesday night.

The Colonels, who set an American Basketball Association record with 68 victories during the regular season, finally broke into the win column after two stunning upset losses to the New York Nets in opening round playoff action.

Walt Simon and Artis Gilmore scored 25 points each and Gilmore took down 22 rebounds to spark the Colonels to a 105-99 victory. New York leads the best-of-seven series 2-1.

In the only other playoff action Wednesday night, utah downed Dallas 96-89 to take a commanding 3-0 lead. Virginia, which also holds a 3-0 lead, tries to eliminate the Floridians tonight while Indiana, which leads 2-1 in games, is at Denver.

"We made up our minds we were coming in here (New York) to win," said Simon, a native New Yorker. "We had our backs to the wall. We have a good team but we must avoid turnovers. This is the first good game I ever played against the Nets."

John Roche, who scored 22 points for the Nets, second only to Rick Barry's 39, credited Kentucky's outside shooting for the victory. "We tried to gamble and cheat from the outside," said the rookie from South Carolina. "We were dropping back on Gilmore and (Dan) Issel, (Les) Hunter, Simon and (Louis) Dampier killed us with their outside shooting."

Issel and Hunter each scored 19 points and Dampier had 12.

Ex-Football Star Faces Gun Charge

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

MARSHALL, Tex. — Joe Don Looney, a star halfback for the 1962 Oklahoma Sooner football team, was charged Wednesday with possessing an illegal submachine gun. A companion was also charged with plotting to assassinate a Houston Federal judge.

Federal agents arrested the pair at Looney's Diana, Tex., home.

Ronald Davis Frick, 24, of Los Angeles and formerly of Honolulu, was charged with complicity in a plot to kill U.S. District Judge Ben C. Connally. He was held in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Looney was charged with violating federal firearms laws. Agents said they confiscated a 45-caliber submachine gun and a half pound of marijuana at Looney's residence. He was released on a $10,000 bond.

"We have no evidence Looney had anything to do with the alleged contract to kill the judge," Assistant U.S. Attorney Cevil Emerson said.

Basketball

NEW YORK — Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels scored a double in his rookie season when he was named Wednesday the American Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player for 1971-72 and voted center on the All-League team.

Teammate Dan Issel drew the most votes in the running for first team honors with 40 and a total of 92 points to secure one of the forwward slots. Rick Barry of New York was named the other forward after registering 34 first place votes and 86 points. Gilmore, at center, received 85 points and 38 first place votes.

Bill Melchionni of New York, 19 first place votes and 81 points, took one of the guard posts and the other went to Donnie Freeman of Dallas, who had 81 points and 33 first team ballots.

Baseball

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians Wednesday announced right-handed pitcher Steve Dunning had been cut to reach the 25-player limit.

He was to report to the Portland farm club.

Dunning, 22, came straight to the Indians varsity in June, 1970, from Stanford. It will be his first time in the minor leagues.

Tennis

HOUSTON, Tex. — Upsets were the rule, rather than the exception yesterday in the quarterfinals of the $50,000 River Oaks Tennis Tournament.

Tiburon's Bob Lutz, the sixth seed, fifth-seeded Arthur Ashe, seventh-seeded Marty Riessen, and eighth-seeded Charles Parrell were all unhappily surprised yesterday.

Bowrey beat Riessen, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Nikola Pilic ousted Ashe, 6-3, 6-4; John Alexander beat Lutz, 6-7, 6-4, 6-2; and ninth-seeded John Newcombe defeated Pasarell, 6-3, 7-5.

Ramsay Picked

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Jack Ramsay, who resigned as coach of the Philadelphia 76ers at the end of the regular National Basketball Assocation season, was named head coach Thursday of the Buffalo Braves, succeeding John McCarthy who was fired March 27.

Terra Linda Sets Parade For Baseball

The Terra Linda Athletic Association will celebrate the beginning of its 14th baseball season with a parade and ceremony Saturday.

The parade will begin at the Terra Linda fire house at 9 a.m. and will proceed along various streets to the Vallecito Field at Nova Albion and Monticello roads, where the ceremony will take place at approximately 9:30.

Dignitaries expected to be present include San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini and police chief Joseph J. Brusatori, director Andrew J. Snyder of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, and Dixie Elementary School District superintendent Clifford W. Campbell and assistant superintendent Joseph B. Goff.

The TLAA sponsors Pee Wee (age 9-10), Junior (11-12) and Babe Ruth (13-15) baseball leagues for boys, plus two girls softball leagues for 9-11 and 12-15 age brackets. Approximately 500 youngsters are involved.

4 Considered In Cal Cage Coach Search

They are Bears assistant Phil Vukicevich, a former USF coach; USC assistant Stan Morrison, head coach Fred Goss of UC Riverside and assistant Bernie Simpson of Seattle University. Morrison and Simpson are former Cal Players while Goss played at UCLA.

Greener grass ...and a guarantee!

With Park 100 Lawn Seed—blended especially for Bay Area growing conditions—you get a greener lawn and a money-back guarantee. If Park 100 doesn't perform to your expectations, Northrup King will refund the full purchase price.

What makes Park 100 work is a combination of grasses: two improved narrow-leafed ryegrasses, Pelo and NK 100, plus Park Kentucky Bluegrass and creeping red fescue. They're precisely blended for even appearance, rich green color and controlled growth (less mowing!). Other benefits are summarized by Bay Area residents who've used Park 100:

"It mows very easily—there is no browning of the leaf tips." "Park 100 is the most uniform grass I've seen for establishing a lawn from the seedling stage." "It just filled in so good that we haven't had any weed problems." Buy Northrup King's Park 100 Lawn Seed, and have a greener lawn this year.

Marin Gals Play To Win In Slow Pitch League

By RON LENT

A bevy of Marin County gals over 18 have a solution to the major league strike: hire the Marin County Slow Pitch Softball Fun League members.

The women, participating in a 10-team five-game schedule starting April 30, are apparently willing to back this offer.

"We'd be willing to play opening day for the San Francisco Giants against the San Diego Padres at Candlestick Park. They (the Padres) probably wouldn't show up, but for us they might," mused Carol Foti, league secretary.

The gals — 15 each on the Gassy Lassies, Lucky Lodgers, Simon's Herem, Cookin' Mamas, Larry's Otter, Dorset Dolls, Fairfax Shell, Marin Belles, Water Lillies, and Rancho Nicasio — admit there are certain playing differences involved, most notably the rules. But the gals are apparently willing to play.

"I'm a roving shortstop," the Woodacre resident continued, "but I can also play catcher."

Mrs. Foti, a 5-foot-3, 113-pound performer, admittedly would not mind playing against major league competition, like the Padres, but she says "we're not playing for trophies or money; we just play to win."

Although her dialogue on the Giants and Padres was in jest, Mrs. Foti's softball views were not. "We do take this game seriously. We've been practicing each Sunday for two months now, and we're red hot ready to start the season."

The pert, 30-year-old noted, "some of the girls come in for a rude awakening when they discover there is a lot of work involved. We want to play a good brand of softball, so we do practice a lot. We're very serious about this point. If we're going to spend money on baby sitters, you better believe we're playing for real."

Apparently, so are her colleagues, because the two-year-old league has no recruiting problems. "We get players mostly by word of mouth. You know, one person tells another. There are a few openings left on some teams, but not many."

The women play all five games during the season ending in mid-August with 10 players in the lineup. "We have all the regular nine positions — pitcher, catcher, three outfielders, four infielders — but we also have a roving shortstop who moves around the diamond, hoping to be where the ball is hit."

Additionally, the gals have unlimited substitution, meaning the girls can return to the lineup after being previously removed. "The only difference," Mrs. Foti pointed out, "is that "they have to start out again in the outfield."

She stated that, unlike the big or little leagues, batting helmets are not required. "The pitcher throws the ball in a three to 10-foot arc, and it can't be hummed in there; so we know pretty much where the ball is. And we have pretty good coordination, too."

On the topic of men, Mrs. Foti asserted that "in regards to women's softball, a man's place is in the dugout. True, we have them as coaches and managers, but they have to take this seriously. And they also tried to sneak in girls under 18 who might be better players, but we won't allow this anymore. This game is for the girls over 18. And that's the way it is going to stay."

If the league maintains its age and other "serious" guidelines, Mrs. Foti and her assorted cute cohorts may achieve their common goal of developing "good sportsmanship, womanship (sort of like fellowship), wholesome fun and a good grade of softball."

Though the objectives are ambitious, the Marin County Slow Pitch Softball Fun League women are bent on fulfilling them.

German Team Meets Sonoma In Soccer Tilt

Six players from Petaluma and two more from Rohnert Park will be on the Sonoma County Junior Soccer League all-star team which will play a touring team from Braunschweig, Germany, next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Forward Ken Westphal and goalie Russell Ahlers of the Petaluma Leghorns are considered two of the better players on the all-star squad. Other Leghorns are Ronald Shields, John Smith, Stanley Hockerson and Eric Nelson. Tom Prasad and Mike Dawson represent the Rohnert Park Vikings.

The game is the fifth in a six-game Bay Area tour for the Germans. Admission to the game will be $1 for adults, 50 cents for youngsters of high school age or under, and free for California Youth Soccer Association players with official cards.

One Change In Swim Leaders

The Redwood High School 400-yard freestyle relay team of Troy Dunham, John Goepp, Spencer Eldred and John Redig provided the week's only change in the Marin County Athletic League's best swimming times when it swam a 3:30.6 Tuesday afternoon against Novato.

The same aggregation had the previous best, 3:31.8.

Redig equaled his own league best in the 50-yard freestyle with a 23.2 clocking against Novato.

The best times:

200 Medley Relay — Redwood (Pete Brunstetter, Paul Cane, Corky Hull, John Redig), 1:46.0; 200 Free — Spencer Eldred (Redwood), 1:54.6; 200 I.M. — Rick DeMont (Terra Linda), 2:06.0; 50 Free — John Redig (Redwood), 23.2; Diving — John Summerfield (Novato), 362.45; 100 Fly — Rick Demont (Terra Linda), 49.5; 400 Free — Spencer Eldred (Redwood), 4:06.2; 100 Back — Roger Rechsteiner (Novato), 1:00.8; 100 Breast — Paul Cane (Redwood), 1:03.5; 400 Free Relay — Redwood (Troy Dunham, John Goepp, Spencer Eldred, John Redig), 3:30.6.

Prep Sports Events Get A Drenching

Sports events involving Marin County high school teams were rained out yesterday.

Washed out were a Drake vs. Tamalpais golf match, Marin Catholic's track and field meet at Cardinal Newman in Santa Rosa, San Rafael's tennis match with College of Marin and Redwood's tennis match at Berkeley High. All events were non-league.

Endriss Eyes New Fences

By LEW CODDINGTON

If somebody does not restrain Al Endriss and his merry band of impromptu construction workers, Redwood High School may end up with a domed stadium or something of the sort.

Endriss, who is baseball coach and athletic director at Redwood, recently ended a five-year quest for dugouts at the Giants' home diamond, with a little help from his friends.

Now he is setting his sights on an outfield fence. With the kind of support he's been getting, it could be built within a year. After that, who knows?

"They've been absolutely great," said Endriss about the people who've helped him. "Just terrific."

Much of the help in the push to get dugouts came from the Redwood Benchwarmers, an adult booster group, which lent $500, enabling Endriss to purchase materials from contractor Tony Morena. The obliging Morena sold them at cost.

Labor? Enter stonemason David Bettega and two of his workmen. Enter also Benchwarmers Bill Secor, Al Connor and Doug Hartman to do some of the less technical work. (Those three Benchwarmers all have sons on the Redwood team who are not benchwarmers.)

The Redwood players also labored vigoroulsy. They worked on the construction for two entire Saturdays, in addition to their regular chores keeping the diamond in good day-to-day shape. They also agreed to work for a paper drop run by the Redwood International Student Exchange, getting in return some of the paper reclamation proceeds, which in turn go towards repaying the loan.

"It's good for the kids to work to get something, instead of having it handed to them," said Endriss. "We realize these things are frills — you can't sell the public that school money can be spent this way.

"But if we show good faith like that, it's easier to get things sometimes."

Among the projects Endriss has planned for the future: putting a fence around the field, enclosing the bleachers, and getting an electric scoreboard ("not the exploding type"). The fence will be a major undertaking, eight to 10 feet high along the foul lines and 12 or 16 feet in center field, and could cost a couple of thousand dollars, but Endriss is confident.

Can a dome be far behind?

Best Foot Forward — Redwood also believes in setting fashion trends. The Giants will have red shoes on their home uniforms this year.

13-Step Bicycle Safety Check – And A New Emblem To Mark Its Value

Look for the new 1972 bicycle safety check emblem, especially designed as an official seal to denote that a bicycle rider has successfully passed the 13-step bicycle inspection. It's an emblem of thoughtfulness and carefulness — showing that a bicycle rider is thoughtful and careful enough about himself and his fellow bicycle rider about road safety, and showing that the bicycle rider wants to reduce injury accidents.

BICYCLE SAFETY CHECK 1972

In California during 1970, 6,845 bicyclists were involved in fatal or injury accidents. Eighty-nine of these accidents resulted in death — almost all of the remaining accidents resulted in injuries to the bicyclist.

In Marin County during 1970 there were 50 bicyclists injured in traffic accidents, of these 22 were in incorporated cities and 28 were in unincorporated areas (county roads.).

Market Continues To Surge

NEW YORK (UPI) — Breaking out of a six-week narrow trading range, the stock market continued to surge ahead during the first two hours of trading today. Turnover was fairly heavy.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, which closed at an all-time high Wednesday, gained 0.44 to 109.44.

The two-hour turnover amounted to more than 8,630,000 shares, with advances leading declines, 855 to 392, among 1,607 issues across the tape.

Prior to Wednesday, the market had traded for more than a month in a range of around 925 to 950 on the Dow. Analysts said investors were reacting favorably to the break out of this range.

There still is some concern about the Communist offensive in Vietnam, but analysts said investors thus far have not been discouraged by the adverse news.

"The Chief sure would like to get his hands on whoever said we have a stranglehold on our industry."

Stockholders' Meeting April 13

Bank of Marin's annual meeting of stockholders will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 13, at 1108 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael.

Bank President W. P. Murray Jr. said the main item on the agenda is the annual election of directors. Bylaws of the bank provide for nine directors, but management will propose only eight directors because of the recent death of Forrest E. Brown, one of the original directors of the bank.

In his annual report to shareholders, Murray said 1971 was the most prosperous year in the bank's history. Consolidated net income amounted to $529,192, an increase of 28 per cent over the previous year. Per share earnings came to $4.23 as compared with $3.58 the previous year.

State Farm Mutual Reports Profit For '71

I-J Special Report

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — State Farm Mutual, the world's largest insurer of automobiles, today reported 1971 sales of $1,854,741,231 and profit of $212,460,986, after federal taxes of $105,090,233.

President Edward B. Rust said that "in light of this performance, we are continuing the policyholder dividend program inaugurated in mid-1971." Rust said that dividend program resulted from "what has to be the most astounding turnaround in the history of the auto insurance business.

"Just three years ago, in 1969, State Farm Mutual reported the largest underwriting loss ever suffered by an auto insurance company — $91.6 million. In 1970, we were able to turn it around to a $27.1 million profit."

Price Increase

OAKLAND (UPI) — Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. has announced an increase of approximately 3 per cent, effective April 15, in prices of mobile home custom fabricated products. The company said the new prices were within allowable limits granted by the Federal Price Commission.

New Pipelines Are Declining

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not one major pipeline project is presently under way in the United States, according to a research report by Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes, investment banking and brokerage house.

This is in sharp contrast with 1968, the all-time peak year for Free World pipeling construction, when 27,180 miles of new construction was reported, the Hornblower report says, noting that the situation has been deteriorating ever since.

A banner year for pipeline projects is expected in 1973, the report estimates, due to the substantial backlog built up by construction delays in the United States, the Arctic, Europe, and the Middle East.

INVESTING

Petroleum Company Examined

By ROGER E. SPEAR

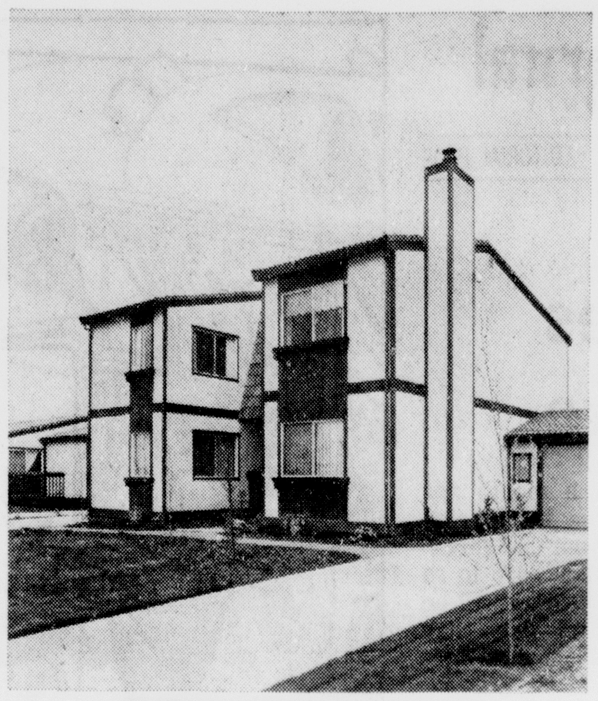
Q. I am interested in a stock called Creole Petroleum on the American Exchange. I am aware that their holdings in Venezuela could be a problem. I am trying to build a portfolio of 5 dividend paying issues for retirement. Is the risk in Creole too great? — H.P.

Q. At present price Creole yields 11 per cent. What is your opinion of the speculative stock? — L.B.

A. The dividend, $2.75 per share in 1971, can only be considered insecure. Earnings barely covered the pay-out in 1969 and 1970 and in 1971 fell short by a good margin. The earnings outlook is darkened by the latest in a series of restrictive measures imposed by the Venezuelan government. Increased product valuations, which added an average 34 cents per barrel for Creole's exports, have effectively raised the tax base on company shipments. Penalties will also be imposed in each quarter that volume varies more than two per cent year-to-year. Payments into a fund will be required henceforth to guarantee that facilities will be returned to the government in good condition when concessions expire. Creole's share should average about 30 cents a share or $233,000 annually. Although the icnreased costs incurred as a result of these latest measures may be passed along to customers, the competitive position of Venezuelan crude has been weakened.

Q. I hold 6 stocks, some bought 30 years ago. My largest holding, 700 Baltimore Gas & Electric, is about half my portfolio value. I am worried that I have too many eggs in one basket. But, I hate to sell because of the tax and also because I need this income. What is your opinion? — L.J.

A. NYSE-listed Baltimore Gas is well worth holding for its 6.3 per cent yield. Although this single holding dominates your portfolio, its relatively stable nature lessens any possible risk. Annual dividend increases should continue.



RETIREMENT COMMUNITY

Temelec Greens, new adult and retirement community in Sonoma County's historic Valley of the Moon, has four models open for inspection. Sale price is less than $25,000. Units have tile roofs with stucco-type exterior. Model sizes range from 960 to 1,170 square feet of living space. Valley of the Moon Realty in Sonoma is the exclusive sales agent.

Yacht Creditors Hearing Sought

State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger has called for public hearings to hear from creditors who allege that two Marin yacht brokers owe them money.

The two yacht brokers are Ernest William Chamberlain, doing business as Raccoon Strait Yacht Sales at 40 Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael; and Gene C. Erickson, doing business as Cipperships at Harbor Drive, Sausalito.

The hearing will be held in room 3057 of the State Building, 350 McAllister Street, San Francisco, on April 25, commencing at 9:30 a.m. and to be continued from day to day until completed. Purpose of the hearings is to get the names and addresses of creditors and their claims and to give the yacht brokers a chance to defend against the claims.

Danish Shippers Buying Vessels

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Danish shipowners have placed orders at home and abroad for 2.8 million tons deadweight up to 1975.

The 125 vessels range from modest coasters to mammoth tankers of 284,000 tons built at the giant Lindoe Shipyard on Funen.

Stock Split Approved By Clearing House

Commerce Clearing House this week approved a split of the company's stock on a two-for-one basis through a 100 per cent distribution of additional $1 par value common stock.

The board also declared a first quarter cash dividend of 10 cents per share on the outstanding shares prior to the stock distribution (equivalent to a rate of 5 cents per share on the increased number of shares outstanding after the stock distribution).

Both the stock distribution and payment of cash dividend will be made on April 28 to stockholders of record on April 12.

Giant Machine For Big Forging

DUSSELDORF Germany, (UPI) — Damag Hydraulic GMBH has announced plans to build a 150 thousand-ton forge manipulator for National Forge of Erie, Ohio.

The giant machine, which will be the second largest manipulator built by Demag, will have an operating pressure of 2,430 pounds per square inch, will be able to handle work up to 75 inches in diameter and move it at the rate of 115 feet a minute, a company statement said.

It said the manipulator will have an overall length of 44½ feet and will take approximately one year to build.

Lucas Valley Data Center Among The Nation's Largest

Plans are progressing on what promises to be one of the largest data processing centers in the nation, to be located at the corner of Lucas Valley Road and Highway 101 north of San Rafael.

Firemans Fund-American Life Insurance Co. is going ahead with designs on a three-story building with 300,000 square feet of floor area on a 38-acre parcel across the highway from Northgate Industrial Park.

John J. Byrne, manager of the real estate department for Firemans Fund, said it will be the company's central data processing center for the entire nation, which means that smaller data processing centers like those in Chicago and Dallas will be feeding into the main plant in San Rafael.

When the plant is completed in 1974, it will take more than 500 employees to operate it.

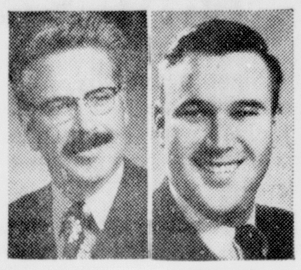
MILL VALLEY YARN and Needle Art Shop, which has the only elevator in town, is expanding upstairs into space formerly occupied by a custom dress-making shop.

The shop is located at 138 Throckmorton Avenue. Owners Else Tavela and Bea Lufi announced that they are moving all needlepoint, crewel embroidery and rugs upstairs, leaving the hand-knitting and crocheting yarns downstairs. "We have the only elevator in town, so it will be easy for customers to get upstairs," said Mrs. Lufi. Classes will be held upstairs in knitting, crocheting, stitchery and macrame (knot tying).

The expansion of the shop will coincide with the Mill Valley Stitchery Fair, which is scheduled for April 14 through 16 at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

BANK OF MARIN will hold its annual meeting of stockholders on Thursday, April 13, at 8 p.m. in the lobby of the main office at 1108 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael. Main item of business is the annual election of directors.

ALFIE'S VARIETY store on Tiburon Boulevard at Blackfield Drive may soon change hands, but both the present owner and the prospective purchasers maintain that the sale is being held up by legalities.



Corbett — Beacock

Michael J. Lagomarsino has owned the store for about two years. He is negotiating to sell to Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Leete of Belvedere.

W. T. GRANT store, now located at the Novato Fair, plans to move to the proposed new $7 million shopping center on the Pinheiro Ranch north of Novato. Burns Properties of Sausalito will develop the 250,000-square-foot shopping center. It's still a couple of years away.

HART W. CORBETT of Novato has been named assistant vice president in Wells Fargo Bank's head office loan adjustment department in San Francisco. He was formerly loan officer.

Corbett joined Wells Fargo in 1962, served as credit officer in the Petaluma office and as assistant manager of the Northgate office in San Rafael.

BEACOCK & MAXSON is the new name of the Earle & Solvason Inc. realty firm at 645 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera.

Donald A. Beacock of Larkspur and John S. Maxson of Tiburon, who have operated Earle & Solvason since 1967, decided to change the firm's name. Services will continue unchanged. Beacock is current president of the Marin County Board of Realtors.

IRVING E. TUFTS of Novato recently retired as executive assistant at the Pacific Coast head office of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., San Francisco.

Tufts began work with Metropolitan in 1927 at the New York home office and transferred to San Francisco in 1937.

Michael D. Ullstrom has joined the staff of Fox & Carskadon Inc. in the Tiburon office as a salesman. He was formerly associated with Van Vleck Realty in San Jose.

Big Brother Makes Mill Valley Secure

Sleep peacefully, Mill Valleyans. Leave your homes unlocked with confidence. All is well. Big Brother has so decreed.

That you may not worry over crime in your city, Big Brother has ordered that the names and addresses of all residential burglary victims be dropped into the Memory Hole. You know what happens when something is dropped into the Memory Hole, don't you? It is disintegrated, dissolved, gone forever — shredded more thoroughly than an ITT memo.

Big Brother is your Mill Valley City Council. On Monday night, the council voted 4-to-0 (Jean S. Barnard was absent) to order your police department to withhold names and addresses of all residential burglary victims from everybody except "duly authorized law enforcement agencies or personnel."

THIS SHOULD make your life much sweeter in Mill Valley. You will not know that your neighborhood is being "worked" by burglars — unless some neighbor is so thoughtless as to tell you that his house has been entered. So far, there is no threat that such an ingrate may be prosecuted for deviationist activities.

Big Brother moves carefully. Realizing that many of you Mill Valleyans may still believe in that old-fashioned, irrelevant notion called "the people's right to know," he decreed in that 4-to-0 city council vote that the police shall "make known from time to time . . . information concerning burglaries in this city, including the number committed in a given period and the general location of each incident."

IT WILL BE delightful, won't it, to learn that a month ago there were three burglaries somewhere in your neighborhood? (If the police care to so announce, that is; there will be no way to check up, since they are forbidden to show the reports to anybody).

If it works for burglaries (and how can it fail, when Big Brother in his infinite wisdom has ordered it?), the system may be extended to other crimes. Mill Valley may well become a crime-free city, as far as anyone knows.

It will be a little difficult, perhaps, when the time arrives that the names of murder victims are withheld to spare the feelings of their kin, for the sudden disappearance of healthy residents to be explained. But Big Brother no doubt will arrange for that in time.

DO NOT DOUBT Big Brother. He has excellent reasons for everything. Consider the excellent reason he put forth at Monday night's city council meeting: "We know that other cities are withholding burglary information from the newspapers."

So you see, it is relevant, it is meaningful. Do not say that you are being deprived of part of the police protection for which you pay taxes by the suppression of information that would hep you avoid loss. Big Brother knows best.

The four who voted for Big Brother are George E. Wickham, Robert H. Andresen, Edward J. Boessenecker and Jerome C. Hauke. Wickham and Andresen are retiring at the end of their present city council terms. Boessenecker's term has two years to run. Hauke is a candidate for re-election next Tuesday.

(Maybe we should have withheld that information.)

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Legislature Should Retake Powers It Gave Away

By EARL G. WATERS

There has been a trend in the past few years of the Legislature reaching for greater authority over administrative matters. This has been evidenced in such proposals as that which sought to rule over the apportionment of highway project money, presently the sole jurisdiction of the Highway Commission.

More recently it was proposed that all rate decisions of the Public Utilities Commission be subjected to final review and approval of the Legislature.

Constitutionally the state, like the federal government, is divided into three separate branches of government. The Legislature to establish the policies by writing the laws, the administration to execute those policies, and the court to rule upon the constitionality of the laws.

THERE ARE FINE lines which separate these functions and the court has injected itself at times into both other branches. And the Legislature on occasion has overstepped into the area of administration. The executive branch is not without fault and not only legislates but often attempts to interpret laws as well.

The proposal to oversee the functions of the PUC is clearly overreaching on the part of the Legislature. For the PUC exists by a vote of the people. If there is to be a change in the authority for rate decisions, it is for the people to decide, not the Legislature.

The Highway Commission is a different matter. It was created by the Legislature and its powers were granted by the lawmakers. While it would appear ridiculous and unworkable to plunge the disbursement of highway funds into the arena of politics, it is within the authority of the Legislature to do so.

AS FORMER SENATE President Pro Tem Hugh Burns always cautioned his colleagues, "put first things first". If the Legislature is concerned over slippage in its powers, it should start looking at those things which are properly vested with the Legislature that it has delegated to the executive branch.

The most glaring loss of authority has been in the rule making powers which it has granted to the executive. By this method the administration has gradually grown to be, volume wise, a greater lawmaker than the Legislature itself.

Almost every agency has the authority to adopt rules and regulations. These, once adopted, have the same force and effect as the laws passed by the Legislature. Through administrative law taxes can be levied, property can be taken, and people can be jailed.

THERE ARE NUMEROUS examples of regulations being adopted which go far beyond that which was intended by the law, have no authority in law, or are diametrically opposite to the law.

This is partly due to the fact there is no veto of regulations. A greater contributor to this is the fact that those passing rules do not have to run for office. Because of this they are less responsive to the public.

It would be a simple matter for the Legislature to return unto itself all lawmaking powers. All that is needed is a requirement that all administrative regulations be subject to ratification by the Legislature.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

'Tis better to be alone than in bad company. — George Washington.

We must resist the mad impulses to intervene and interfere in the problems of other nations, and especially since we are so notably unsuccessful in solving our own problems at home. — John S. Knight.

"Before I started driving, I was in aerospace."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Larkspur Post Office Model For Others

We have been reading a lot about the poor service rendered by the post office lately.

There is one that does not fall in this category, we mean the Larkspur Post Office.

The postmaster and his entire staff are most courteous and helpful, sometimes going beyond the call of duty, for which we thank them and are most grateful.

Jack Anderson, McCarthy Compared

Referring to the furor kicked up over the charges by columnist Jack Anderson, it seems a good time to check on his reliability — particularly since his charges are not made under oath.

The April issue of Reader's Digest has an interesting item on Anderson as a part of a broader story dealing with news handling by newspapers, radio, and TV.

It seems Anderson charged OEO Director Rumsfeld with remodeling his office in lavish style. The story turned out to be completely false and this was demonstrated to Anderson. Characteristically the columnist refused to retract the story and few of the papers which carried the column were decent enough to print a correction.

The original source of the false story was a disgruntled Democrat who formerly worked for the agency. Anderson just hadn't bothered to check it out.

It brings back memories of Joseph McCarthy, doesn't it?

Clutter Of Candidates' Signs Annoying

Being a citizen of San Anselmo and very much interested in seeing the unique character of the city maintained, I feel compelled to protest the awesome sight of the yellow campaign signs that are currently plaguing fences, mail boxes, etc., within this town. Such littering of the landscape for personal gain makes one wonder what other degradations this candidate might bring to the city for personal gain.

One talks about keeping San Anselmo from pollution and "Los Angelesation" while he clutters the landscape with yellow campaign signs!

I am pleased to see the majority of the candidates recognize the use of such signs as being a little "heavy" for small town politics. And, most important, as defacing to the esthetic peacefulness of San Anselmo.

Bribe Taking Seen As Common Occurrence

Re I-J March 31, "Must Return Half of Bribes." On an inside page, a middle of the page article (as though a news filler) appeared an article concerning a recently retired Consolidated Edison (New York) vice president and his suit against Con Ed for his retirement pay. Con Ed's counter-suit was for recovery of $32,000 in bribes taken by the veep. The ruling went that the veep must pay Con Ed one-half the bribes, in return for his $743-month retirement pay.

Granted, this makes news, probably because of Con Ed's business as a public utility and the recent notoriety in which it was involved. Multiply this incident by the thousands of times it happens in the private sector and it is little wonder so many of our youth (as well as middle agers and the elderly) despair at the way business is conducted. Credibility gap — in every phase of life!

Hilarita Project Referendum Sought

I formulated the questionaire on Tiburon Ecumenical Association's agenda at their information meeting of March 23. The council had five days to prepare the answers, and I had been promised that answers would be supplied by qualified authorities. Mr. E. G. Weed, president of the TEA, answered most of the questions himself. . .

The maximum occupancy of the proposed project shows 510 occupants of which approximately 286 would be children. Would there be difficulties in absorbing a large number into the Reed School district? Total taxes from Hilarita would be approximately $34,000 of which Tiburon would receive about $1800 per year. Cost of services (police, fire dept., schools, etc.) would be a tax burden to the rest of the community.

The stipulation in the option agreement between the Housing Authority and the TEA states "not less than 20 per cent of the units would be leased by the Marin Housing Authority". TEA has now admitted that this percentage has been raised to 30 per cent and can possibly go higher. This can mean over 40 per cent of the occupants may be on welfare.

Contrary to the statement of the TEA Fact Sheet, the Parish Council of St. Hilary's Catholic Church did not formally endorse Hilarita.

I questioned the statement by TEA "to control the types of people allowed into Hilarita by careful screening by a control group". The Housing Authority cannot legally qualify applicants except economically and neither can the TEA in regard to low-income applicants.

Many concerned citizens like myself approved of the original concept of 56 units. However, in order for the TEA to control the project, the financial feasibility forced the concept to increase first to 100 units and then to 112 units. This was more than twice the maximum number of units per acre limited by the Tiburon Master Plan, approximately 8 per cent of the total population.

"We all feel that this is a matter of great importance to the community. The current plan should be subject for a public referendum. Many like myself are skeptical of the verbal assurances of Mr. Weed and the TEA.

When Dr. McBride Gives Warning, It Would Pay To Take Heed

(Reprinted from Macon, Ga., News)

Dr. William McBride of Sydney, Australia, says a drug called Imipramine — and marketed in this country under the brand name of Tofranil — may be responsible for the birth of armless babies.

We should listen carefully to what Dr. McBride has to say. The last drug he warned us about was Thalidomide.

According to the doctor, Imipramine affects the nervous system, destroying the nerve cells that supply limbs to unborn babies. The orange tablet is proscribed for women who suffer from fits of crying, fatigue, sleeplessness or headaches, and industry sales reports indicate that 3.6 million prescriptions were sold in the U.S. last year at an estimated retail value of $12.4 million.

Dr. McBride says there are at least three cases of armless babies born in Sydney in which it has been established that the mothers had taken Imipramine in early pregnancy.

Of course, that is three too many. The Food and Drug Administration should waste no time looking into the validity of Dr. McBride's claim. And if what he says is true, Imipramine should be taken out of the hands of pregnant women.

Nixon's Rhetoric Adds Fuel To Controversy Over Busing

ST. LOUIS — It would be pleasant to think that President Nixon's belated venture into the politics of the busing controversy had quieted the antibusing contagion. The evidence in Missouri, a border state with a boot heel reflecting the Deep South is uite to the contrary.

The candidates for governor — no Senate seat is up this year — are all proclaiming their undying opposition to the heinous practice of busing school children. They repeat the alleged evils of this assault on the rights of free Americans like a litany learned from some calamitous encounter with a bus at an early age.

Getting into the middle of the act, Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, the leading candidate for governor in the Democratic primary, introduced an antibusing resolution in the state Senate calling for a constitutional convention to approve an amendment putting a stop to busing for racial integration. It was passed virtually without opposition. The Missouri House is expected to follow suit before the Legislature adjourns.

IF TWO-THIRDS of the states adopt resolutions with identical language, a convention must be called to pass on the amendment. Just here the ambivalence of the President's televised essay on busing is painfully evident. Waiting to speak out until after the Florida primary, he proposed a moratorium on court-ordered busing with the explanation that the process of amending the Constitution is too slow to put an end to forced busing.

This will not deter the Blackwells, the quick-on-the-draw politicians, who see a chance to exploit an issue inflamed out of all reason by fear and frustration reflected through the prism of race. That 36 states will adopt identical resolutions is unlikely. Although several have already done so. Yet the threat is there as it was in the prayer and the one-man, one-vote amendments.

It is a threat against the Constitution of the United States. The fundamental charter of our freedoms — the embodiment of the vision of the founding fathers. If the Constitution is to be frivolously amended at the whims of political passions of the moment, as in the false issue of busing, the anchor of our faith and our hope will soon be no more.

When the prayer amendment was attracting what appeared to be the required support of the states, the perils in that kind of contstitutional convention were all too apparent. If an amendment overruling the Supreme Court and allowing prayer in the public schools or against busing, why not an amendment to require that all athletic events be carried on network television or an amendment probibiting mini skirts above a certain length? The possibilities are infinite if the Constitution is to be used as a vehicle to enforce the convictions of a passing majority.

AN ANALYSIS in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch showed that in the 1970-71 school year 54 per cent of public schools were bused at a cost of 833 million. But as the director of the transportation in the state Department of Education, William E. Haynes, pointed out, the reasons were important. "I am not aware," Hayes said, "of any school district in the state that buses children to achieve racial integration."

Children are bused in Missouri for a variety of reasons. Busing in St. Louis is designed to relieve crowding and to help handicapped children. The St. Louis Board of Education, fearing the flight of ever-more whites to the suburbs, has refused to bus children to suburban schools for the sole purpose of ingegration.

As the Missouri experience shows, busing is a tool for achieving many objectives. It may be quite irrelevant to integration or it may be a temporary expedient to correct the serious imbalance in educational opportunity as between white and black.

The Department of Justice has a suit pending in federal district court in St. Louis challenging the racial make-up of schools in suburban Kinholch. Black parents in North St. Louis have filed a similar suit contesting the racial composition of the city's schools. The Nixon moratorium may put a stop to that kind of action. But the antibusing contagion has been inflamed by the Nixon rhetoric.

Clumsy Handling Of ITT Case Leaves Many Nagging Questions

It is hard to imagine a major public issue being handled more clumsily than the ITT case. Nobody comes out with a whole skin, from the attorney general-designate who had to have his memory "refreshed" on so many issues to the corporate officer who ordered the shredding of the documents in its Washington office.

Perhaps, because of all the clumsiness, we may never know the facts. There are surface issues, and there are more fundamental ones. On the surface, it is not clear that the Justice Department's decision not to press a case against ITT's acquisition of the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. was a bad decision. If it wasn't, it's hard to see how malfeasance was involved. Also on the surface, was a political convention ever held when the big hotels were not pressured to contribute?

But the basic issues are less easy to downgrade. They concern the relationship of big business to government, and the role of great conglomerates in the national economy. These are continuing questions, and they must not be dropped.

BIG BUSINESS works hard at its relationship to government. ITT was on good terms with the Johnson adminstration. Its major expansion, as Nixon defenders point out, came under previous presidents. Indeed, there have been many complaints that the Nixon team was less friendly to business than its predecessors. This may be because with President Nixon's election, business expected the milennium. They soon found out differently, although a door to the White House through Peter Flanagan has been opened wide. Mr. Flanagan may be one of the casualties of the ITT situation.

Business has a right of access to government. But of course it has no right to special privilege of any sort. Its interests are ex parte, naturally. The government has to protect the public interest, which is bound to be broader than the selfish interest and necessarily inhibitory of many of business's own concerns.

Vast conglomerates and the takeover process by which they grow make possible great abuses. They distort the economic system and the normal operation of a competitive and free market. Like the tax laws, which make it advantageous to buy up failing companies in order to obtain tax losses, the conglomerate process sometimes repeals both common sense and sound economics.

A PARTICULAR COMPANY in the hands of a conglomerate can play havoc with its competition by leaning on the strengths of its parent. Is that fair? A conglomerate can milk its component elements, to the detriment of the investors who have put their money in good faith in these components. There are many other distortions of the economic process, not to mention the menace of bigness in terms of power.

Conglomerates in a much smaller scale can be more reasonably defended. They spread risk and benefit. And yet even the most modest of them do something to the healthy influence of straight competition between like businesses.

Until the ITT case is somewhat clarified, it will continue to harm President Nixon's reelection chances. It will cast a cloud over Atty.-Gen.-designate Richard Kleindienst's service in that high and delicate office. The Democrats are split on the issue, and many of them will vote for Mr. Kleindienst's confirmation. Their relations with ITT in its Hartford takeover efforts are not above suspicion.

We need fresh air and straight information. So far, we haven't had much of either.

It Takes Some Monkey Business To Liven Council Meeting

Many city council meetings are boring. Councilmen drone on and on conducting the routine business of the city. Most meetings are little more than gab sessions.

Once in awhile some issue arouses public interest enough to draw a crowd to the meeting, but generally only a few persons including the reporters attend the meetings. Before elections, some candidates attend meetings to see what kind of job they are running for. But many do not even attend then.

At a recent San Anselmo City Council meeting, one candidate showed up with his wife and a pet monkey on a leash. The monkey kept that meeting from getting dull by climbing up and down a curtain at the rear of the council chambers.

It would be appropriate to say that the council was up to some monkey business, but it wasn't.

MARIN COUNTY is undertaking a program of construction of bicycle and horse trails. We agree that it is a good idea to get bicycles off the streets wherever possible. It is also a good idea to get horses off the streets because occasionally they will shy at cars.

The only thing we object to is the means of financing these trails.

Why should the public be taxed for trails that benefit only a few?

Wouldn't it be more appropriate to license bicycles and horses and use that money to pay for the trails?

INCREDIBLE AS IT may seem, work has actually started on the Novato freeway bypass!

When completed, it will eliminate the only traffic lights on Highway 101 between the Golden Gate Bridge and Willits. It will also speed up commute traffic from the north to San Francisco.

The old highway in Novato was a bottleneck for traffic long before the city incorporated. It was one of the main reasons for incorporation of the city.

Even after incorporation, the question was not settled. There were years of haggling on where the freeway route should go. At one time the state Division of Highways has proposed routes labeled from A through M. It finally settled on the J route, the one that goes north just east of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad in the center of the city.

This route required two crossings of the railroad and considerable cutting of hills and filling of swamp land. For years, the plan was known and no one did anything about it.

Suddenly, after the funds have become available for the project, a last-minute try by a group of environmentalists to stop it in the courts failed.

So the $14 million project finally is under way and, barring something unforeseen at this point, should take traffic around the heart of Novato in about three years.

Candidates Need Ingenuity To Get Some Press Coverage

WASHINGTON — When you get right down to it, the Democratic primary races are really a fight for press space and free television time. Because there are so many candidates in the race and none of them has said anything new since they started running, it's very hard for a presidential aspirant to get on the tube or in the papers unless he does something unique.

Mayor John Lindsay, for example, spent the night sleeping on the couch of a $6,000-a-year worker in Milwaukee "to identify with the little man." He was offered the worker's bed, but Lindsay said he'd rather sleep on the couch because he tossed and turned a lot at night.

As time goes on, each candidate's staff is going to have to escalate the type of stunt which will attract press and TV coverage.

I CAN IMAGINE in the next few months the following conversation in a candidate's office:

"Senator, we've come out with a dandy idea which will get us on the local CBS station. We've entered your wife in a roller derby Saturday night against the Bloodhawks."

"My wife can't roller skate."

"It doesn't make any difference as long as she can fight. We've set it up so 'Hated Hanna,' the captain of the Bloodhawks, pulls your wife's hair out. Then your wife hits her in the solar plexus and Hated Hanna will go right over the railing.

"Two other Bloodhawks will attack your wife from the rear and start stomping on her, but her teammates will come to your wife's aid and kick the two across the rink."

"I'm not sure Penelope is up to that."

"It's essential, senator. This state is bananas about roller derbies, and if your wife gets beaten up by the Bloodhawks, we'll pick up 5 per cent in sympathy votes alone."

"Well, I'm going to go there to see that Penelope doesn't get hurt needlessly."

"YOU CAN'T, senator. We've booked you to perform a heart transplant at the General Hospital on the same evening."

"A heart transplant?"

"Yes, we've found a retired factory worker who says you can operate on him. It will be a good chance for you to dramatize your concern for the lack of decent medical treatment in the country. The NBC station is sending out a film crew, and Sander Vanocur will cover it live."

"All right, if you think it will help. Tell my wife I'll meet her back at the hotel after the operation."

"Oh, we forgot to tell you. You're not sleeping at the hotel Saturday night. You're sleeping at the zoo. They have a white leopard out there that everyone is crazy about, and we think if you spend a night with him you'll get your picture on every front page in the state."

"Good grief, isn't there any other way of getting exposure?"

"BELIEVE US, senator, if there were, we wouldn't put you through all this. Now, tomorrow morning you have to be at the state fair with Penelope at 9 sharp."

"That shouldn't be so difficult."

"We're in the sky-diving championships?"

"You're not competing. You're just starting the show. Both of you jump out of a plane at 2,000 feet, free fall for a thousand feet, and then yank on your parachutes. ABC bought the idea sight unseen."

State's Taxable Sales Reach $13 Billion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Board of Equalization reported yesterday taxable sales in California during the fourth quarter last year reached an all-time high of $13 billion, up 13 per cent from the previous year.

The board said it was the largest year-to-year percentage increase for any fourth quarter since 1955.

A major increase for the increase during the final three months of 1971 was a 39 per cent year-to-year gain in sales by new car dealers who accounted for 10.5 per cent of all taxable transactions.

The board noted a "resurgence" in demand for big merchandise such as automobiles, mobile homes, boats and houses—items for which longterm installment payments are used. It said that proportionally consumers spent less in the stores featuring lower priced items.

Now more than ever
The St. Francis IS San Francisco

This grand hotel has just topped its own magnificence. Thirty-two superb new floors served by five outside glass elevators. All of this crowned with Victor's for the finest dining and the exciting new Penthouse for luncheon, evening cocktails and nightly dancing.

The lavish new Victorian Lobby is graced with soaring rosewood paneling complemented by rich ruby-red furnishings and breathtaking chandeliers. Charming hostesses clad as European troubadours serve your favorite refreshment here. Glass doors lead into the Carriage Entrance, a dramatic drive-through of arches and glittering fixtures.

You can still enjoy the entertainment and intimacy of the Piccadilly Bar; the oriental serenity of the Terrace Room; the elegant English Grill; and the new Dutch Kitchen, a delightful bit of Old Holland.

And that's just the beginning. Now the Hotel St. Francis also offers sky-high panoramas of the Bay, the City and the Mountains. A lovely garden terrace. 1200 beautiful guest rooms. Twice the prior convention facilities, including the new Grand Ballroom. And all of this in the heart of San Francisco's specialty stores and theaters.

Yes. The St. Francis IS San Francisco . . . all wrapped up into one fantastic hotel. With a grand new look. And a legendary tradition of excellence and gracious hospitality. Come enjoy it. Come and stay.

Candidates Reply To Youth Paper

The fourth issue of "Free Youth," a newspaper sponsored by the Marin County Youth Commission, was released yesterday devoting the bulk of its space to the approaching June 6 election.

Included in the issue were responses from supervisorial candidates to the newspaper's question of why youth should support the various candidates.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., incumbent from the Second District, urged youth to look at his record and "vote for me if you think my record deserves it."

Meanwhile, his two challengers — Barbara Boxer and Dr. William J. Filante — appealed directly to youth for support.

Mrs. Boxer, a Greenbrae housewife, said she represents "no 'special interests.'' I owe no political debts and will push for an enforceable countywide plan which will stop the 'Los Angelization' of our county." She added that she also supports low-cost housing for students.

Filante, however, said his "ability and training as a physician to seek out causes and find true remedies for problems not just emotional responses," deserves the support of youth.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, seeking reelection to his Third District seat, reminded youth that "I was the only supervisor to defend the first issue of 'Free Youth.' "

James Dougan of San Rafael, seeking the ourth District seat being vacated by Supervisor Louis H. Baar, said, "When elected I will endeavor to work with and assist young adults in perfecting government by eliminating nonsensical waste in spending."

Another Fourth District contender, attorney Gary T. Giacomini of Woodacre, simply urged those interested in supporting him to call his headquarters.

The only woman running in the Fourth District, women's liberationist Patricia Maginnis, called for support because women and youth have been "ostracized in the decision making process" in the past.

The final candidate responding, Michael Peevey, also in the Fourth District, called for a "coalition behind my campaign which will not only win in June but offer basic leadership in the future . . ."

The newspaper, circulated on every Marin High School campus, also includes a new column, "Pitchforks and Poppies."

Recipient of the first pitchfork was the Independent-Journal "for its consistent editorial policies." While excluding any examples, the newspaper said "The youth of Marin County can almost always count on you to oppose anything constructively offered by them."

Poppies went to "those organizations attempting to help Marin's young people."

Committee Kills 'Equal Rights' Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —With Senate leader James R. Mills declaring the legislature wouldn't "turn and run on a phony issue," a Senate committee Wednesday killed a proposal to ratify the so-called "equal rights" amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

On a surprise 2-2 vote, the Senate Rules Committee rejected the resolution by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles. It needed three votes to clear the committee.

"The problem is simply that of somebody hanging a good name on a bad piece of legislation," Mills, committee chairman, told newsmen moments after voting against the measure. The San Diego Democrat said he feared no women's backlash.

The issue now shifts to the Assembly, where the Rules Committee of the lower house takes up a similar resolution Thursday by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park.

Mills and Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, cast the two "no" votes in committee, while Sens. Robert J. Stevens, R-Los Angeles, and Joseph J. Kennick, D-Los Angeles, voted "yes." A fifth committee members, Sen. Stephen Teale, D-Rail Road Flat, was absent but was reported against it.

Explaining the committee's action, Mills said it "just indicates the legislature of the largest state is not going to turn and run on a phony issue."

The proposed 27th amendment to the federal constitution, which already has been ratified by a handful of states, would guarantee women equal rights with men. Three-fourths of the 50 states must ratify it to become law.

The soft-spoken Mills said many of his Senate colleagues agree with his assessment of the proposed amendment as "poor legislation."

"It has gone as far as it has," Mills added, "because many congressmen and legislators are afraid of the consequences of voting against it."

The Rules Committee members had been urged privately by other senators to stop the legislation there so that they wouldn't have to face the issue on the floor, Mills said.

About a dozen women's rights proponents had gathered hoping to testify in support of the measure but the committee moved quickly to a vote on Kennick's motion and rejected it without debate.

Rapid Transit Budget Hiked

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Staff members have suggested a $26.3 million budget for the Bay Area Rapid Transit District for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The budget was $12.3 million for the current year.

Manager B.R. Stokes told the district's administration committee Tuesday the increased budget is necessary because additional employes will have to be hired when district trains start running.

Stokes said for budgeting purposes he "assumed" trains would start Sept. 1 on the southern Alameda line between Oakland and Fremont.

Imitation Bomb Policy Advances

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Criminal Justice Committee has approved and sent to the lower house floor a bill making it illegal to mail an imitation bomb.

But the committee amended the measure by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, Tuesday to restrict its provisions to a fake bomb mailed with the "malicious" intent of convincing the recipient that it is a real explosive.
